American Corners is a joint partnership project that promotes cooperation and understanding between the United States and Georgia by providing accurate information about the U.S. Access to American Corners and their collections is free and open to all interested citizens of Georgia.

American Corners feature an English language collection of American fiction and reference books on U.S. government, history, culture. Corners also provide access to information about the U.S. through supervised Internet access, audio, and American films and documentaries.

American Corners support local English instructions with an extensive collection of English teaching materials which are frequently used by local students, teachers and U.S. Peace Corps volunteers.

American Corners also offer American speakers on a variety of topics and host a range of classes, clubs and activities. American speakers have discussed topics as varied as American baseball, the U.S. Constitution, U.S. exchange programs, holiday traditions, and more. American Corners sponsor clubs, such as American music clubs, poetry clubs, and video clubs, which allow people to practice their English or just learn more about American culture and traditions.
