

3000 AD

By A. J. Reffes

Progress Publishers

For Kathy, friend, mentor and wife. Stupor Mundi

Copyright © 2024 by A. J. Reffes. All rights reserved. Published by Progress Publishers, Berlin, Germany.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

| | |
|---|-----------|
| INTRODUCTION | 3 |
| JOE BIDEN DECLARES WAR ON AMERICA | 4 |
| EXPLOSION AT LOS ALAMOS | 6 |
| JOE BIDEN'S GLOBAL RED THEATER | 8 |
| THE ASSAULT ON TRUTH | 10 |
| AMERICA'S ANIMAL FARM | 13 |
| RAMADAN DARKNESS DESCENDS ON EUROPE | 15 |
| BLACK FUHRER TURNED LOOSE | 17 |
| CLASS WAR USA | 19 |
| AMERICA'S FREEDOM OPPOSITION GUNNED DOWN | 22 |
| BRITAIN'S REDS SHUT DOWN MUSEUM | 24 |
| AN ANTIUNIVERSE CALLED AMERICA | 26 |
| ISLAMIST RED GUARDS ATTACK AMSTERDAM | 29 |
| THE MEANING OF DUE PROCESS | 31 |
| BLACK POWER VERSUS THE CLASSICS | 33 |
| MENGELE ALIVE | 36 |
| BRIDGE COLLAPSES INTO DEI WATERS | 38 |
| DEI MISSILES DOWN BOEING FLEET | 40 |
| 3000 AD | 42 |
| BRITAIN'S ESTABLISHMENT ABOLISHES THE NATION | 45 |
| OBJECT ONTOLOGY: A TECHNICAL TERM FOR SANITY | 47 |

INTRODUCTION

These reports are intended for a general, nonspecialist audience. They run the gamut of the arts and sciences, historical and current events, and should provide the reader with useful introductions to given topics. May they encourage a few happy hours of suggestive thought!

JOE BIDEN DECLARES WAR ON AMERICA

Time: December 11, 1941. Place: the Reichstag, Berlin, Germany. Action: Fuhrer and Reichskanzler Adolf Hitler announces Germany's declaration of war against America. The declaration was handed to American Charge d'Affaires Leland Morris by German Foreign Minister Joachim von Ribbentrop in von Ribbentrop's office. Declaration of war: a formal act by which one state or actor announces war activity against another. The declaration involves the public signing of a document by the actor himself or by an authorized representative. Less than a century after a totalitarian regime declared war against a free society, a declaration of war has been signed by the leader of this very society in an act of treason without precedent in the history of the free world. Less than a century after Hitler declared war against America, this former global policeman of freedom has collapsed from a stab in back delivered by its president, in an act of moral, spiritual and cultural assassination which has defied the imagination of civilized people, and this president has signed a declaration of war against his own people. Less than a century after the leader of the Axis Powers declared war against the leader of the free world, American President Joe Biden has signed a document showing how far the cancer on the West has advanced. This cancer called communism, voted into office in a landslide in the early twentieth century under a ticket marked progressivism, has advanced to consume the highest office in the greatest land of liberty in modern times. It has advanced to consume the office of the president of the United States, and on March 7, 2024, its present occupant, Joe Biden, delivered a signed declaration of war against the nation, a declaration masquerading as a State of the Union address. Mandated in Article II, Section 3, Clause 1 of the United States Constitution, which states that "the President shall from time to time give to the Congress Information of the State of the Union, and recommend to their Consideration such measures as he shall judge necessary and expedient", the annual State of the Union address was transformed on March 7 by Joe Biden into a declaration of war by the electorate and establishment he leads against two centuries of American liberal democracy and the values of the Enlightenment which gave birth to the nation on the battlefields of Lexington and Concord. Traditionally comprised of a report on the nation's budget, economy, news, agenda, progress and achievements, the State of the Union address was perverted on March 7 by Biden into the manifesto of an alien religion and the triple headed monster, marked Gender, Race and Class Politics, which it has brought to life with the surging currents of hatred, fanaticism and discontent. Look at Biden's travesty of a State of the Union message and hear him proclaim that a progressive society walks away from and bows down to the forces of Islamist terror. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society retreats from Afghanistan and surrenders its soldiers to the Taliban, along with billions of dollars in state of the art military equipment. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society has diplomatic and economic relations with the terrorist dictatorships of China and Iran. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society is a partisan society which divides people along gender, race and class lines and discriminates against successful, white males. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society has weaponized its law enforcement authorities against the national leader of the freedom opposition, Donald Trump, criminalizing the exercise of his constitutional right to speak freely and challenge the 2020 presidential election. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society has weaponized its law enforcement authorities and sought to prevent Donald Trump from appearing on the ballot for the 2024 presidential election, on the grounds that he did what he had a right to do, and led a insurrection against a regime which refused to provide redress against the 2020 presidential election whose fraudulent character was recorded by eyewitnesses, surveillance cameras and mobile telephones. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society licenses and foments black power violence under banners marked Black Lives Matter. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society recognizes the religion of transgenderism, which rejects the findings of science that DNA, genes and their chromosomes determine human gender, and proclaims that gender can be changed by human intervention or by a simple declaration and belief that one is a member of the opposite sex. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society recognizes such a thing as transgender rights, enacts a transgender Equality Act, as its president proclaims to psychotics who claim they are members of the opposite sex: "I have your back". Hear him proclaim that a progressive society is an inflationary society which borrows and prints money without restraint to finance social welfare handouts. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society has an open borders policy which has allowed eight million illegal aliens for whom freedom and civilization are unknown words into the nation. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society releases illegal aliens into the nation and allows them to settle far and wide. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society grants asylum to these illegal aliens and allows them to commit murder, mayhem, robbery and vandalism with impunity. Hear him proclaim that a progressive society is a sanctuary for crime committed by its dark avatars, by Marxists, Islamists, drug gangs and degenerates of all stripes and varieties, a sanctuary which has expelled the voices of the Enlightenment from its midst: "In his Inaugural Address on January 20, 2021, President Biden promised that he would reverse the 'state of chaos' that Americans, according to the president, had experienced during the Trump era. More than three years later, President Biden delivered his final State of the Union address on March 7 before this year's presidential election. He criticized his predecessor multiple times, without explicitly mentioning Donald Trump by name, in what sounded more like a no holds barred campaign speech for Biden's likely rematch against Trump than a typical State of the Union address. 'The state of our union is strong and getting stronger,' President Biden proclaimed midway through his address, which began with a call for increasing US support for Ukraine. America did not even come first in the constitutionally mandated State of the Union address that is supposed to be focused on the state of this country. Russian President Vladimir Putin must have found it entertaining when President Biden delivered this message early in his address that was meant for Putin: 'We will not walk away. We will not bow down. I will not bow down.' President Biden walked away from Afghanistan when he ordered the hasty retreat that devolved into chaos and cost thirteen American service members their lives. President Biden left Americans behind and abandoned billions of dollars of weapons for the Taliban to use or sell. He also has bowed down to autocrats, especially the Chinese and Iranian dictators. 'I will always be a president for all Americans,' President Biden said towards the end of his address, after shouting much of the time as he delivered the most divisive, partisan State of the Union address in modern history. President Biden would have us believe that the American people are much better off today than they were during the Trump administration era. The truth is, however, that America is incredibly weak on President Biden's watch at home and abroad because of Biden's disastrous domestic and foreign policies. And most Americans know it. Forty three percent of Americans surveyed in the most recent New York Times—Siena College poll responded that President Biden's policies are hurting them personally, while only eighteen percent responded that the president's policies are helping them personally. Only twenty four percent responded that the United States is on the right track. President Biden promised to restore calm and stability, economic prosperity for the middle class, and unity to America. He has portrayed himself as the guardian of democracy 'against all threats foreign and domestic,' presumably including against his predecessor. Instead, President Biden has presided over chaos, rampant inflation hurting the average American, unprecedented division, and his own attack on democracy and core American values. President Biden's State of the Union address lasted a little over an hour. It took him about forty minutes before he addressed the issue at the top of voters' minds—the border crisis for which he did not take any responsibility himself at all. President Biden falsely blamed Republicans for the illegal immigration crisis and mounting chaos that his open border policies have created." (Biden's State Of Disunion by Joseph Klein). Time: September 2, 1945. Place: the battleship USS Missouri. Action: Japanese Foreign Minister Mamoru Shigemitsu signs the Japanese Instrument of Surrender as General Douglas MacArthur's Chief of Staff, General Richard Sutherland, looks on. A totalitarian regime, member of an Axis alliance along with the Third Reich and Fascist Italy, surrenders to the arsenal of the free world. Less than a century after this shining victory, the scene has been reorganized. The deck chairs have been reversed and the ship replaced. America has surrendered to the forces of a new totalitarianism, marching under the banners of Marxism and Islam. The ship is now named the Titanic and it is commanded by treason at the highest level, treason whose name is Joe Biden.

EXPLOSION AT LOS ALAMOS

Its code name was Trinity. It was mankind's first detonation of a nuclear weapon. Conducted by the United States Army at 5:29 AM on July 16, 1945 at the Jornada del Muerto desert in New Mexico as part of the Manhattan Project, it created an explosion equal to twenty five kilotons of TNT and sent a blinding column of radioactive ash, dust and debris ascending into the heavens, stopped in its terrifying flight only by the force of gravity, and then raining down poison upon the land never before seen in the history of mankind. This blast, this turbulence, this vortex, this mushroom cloud, produced by a weapon which would be deployed against Japan in August 1945, was preceded by another explosion which had taken place over a period of seven years, commencing in 1938. More massive and devastating than the nuclear fireballs which would hit New Mexico, Hiroshima and Nagasaki, this was a bomb which rained down treason on the arsenal of the free world and would handicap its commitment to freedom for all time to come. This bomb was detonated by a figure celebrated as the father of the nuclear bomb. It was detonated by the director of the Manhattan Project's Los Alamos Laboratory. It was detonated by a theoretical physicist who earned his doctorate in physics at the prestigious University of Gottingen in Germany in 1927. It was detonated by a figure who became a professor of physics at the University of California at Berkeley in 1936 at the young age of thirty two. It was detonated by a figure whose achievements in theoretical physics included contributions to research in electrons, positrons, nuclear fusion, wave phenomena, field theory, neutron stars, black holes and cosmic rays. Defying the imagination of civilized people who could not conceive of an act of treason so immense, an act committed against the leader of the Allied Powers during World War II and against the nation which would be global superpower for freedom thereafter, an act committed in this nation's highest scientific circles by a figure whose scientific intellect had ascended into the stratosphere and inspired students throughout the world, this bomb was detonated by one Robert Oppenheimer. Look at the career of Robert Oppenheimer and see a container filled with fire burst across the Los Alamos Laboratory, across the nation, across the free world, and reduce the West to smoke and ashes. See him serve as a member of the American Communist Party. See him serve as an agent of the Soviet Union. See him serve as a scientist for the cause of communism. See him inform the Soviets about America's program to develop nuclear weapons. See him provide access to the Soviets of America's nuclear secrets. See him enable the Soviets to construct a bomb which would threaten the free world as it had never been threatened before and cast a shadow of panic and fear across the lives of decent, law abiding citizens: "Comrade Beria, In accordance with your instruction of 29 September 1944, NKGB continues measures for obtaining more detailed information on the state of work on the problem of uranium and its development abroad. In the period 1942-1943, important data on the start of work in the USA on this problem was received from our foreign agent network using the contacts of Comrade Zarubin and Kheifitz in their execution of important tasks in line with the executive committee of the Comintern. In 1942 one of the leaders of scientific work on uranium in the USA, Professor Oppenheimer, while being an unlisted member of the apparatus of Comrade Browder, informed us about the beginning of work. On the request of Comrade Kheifitz, confirmed by Comrade

Browder, he provided cooperation in access to research for several of our tested sources, including a relative of Comrade Browder. Due to complications of the operational situation in the USA, dissolution of the Comintern, and explanations of Comrades Zarubin and Kheifetz on the Mironov affair, it is expedient to immediately sever contacts between leaders and activists of the American Communist Party and scientists and specialists engaged in work on uranium. NKGB requests the consent of the leadership. PEOPLE'S COMMISSAR OF STATE SECURITY USSR Commissar of State Security First Rank, MERKULOV." (Letter from Boris Merkulov, Commissar for State Security, to Levrenty Beria, Commissar for Internal Affairs, October 2, 1944. Top Secret, digitalarchive.wilsoncenter.org). Look at the career of Robert Oppenheimer and see a dark trajectory of disloyalty launched from the depths of hell. See it mark out a rampaging monster: long term membership in the Communist Party of the United States, long term membership in the communist underground and long term service as an Soviet intelligence asset. Look at the career of Robert Oppenheimer and see a spy dedicated to the Soviet Union. See the director of the Los Alamos laboratory direct treason against the nation. See a pseudoAmerican place himself in the service of clandestine Soviet operations. See an accomplished swimmer in the channels of Soviet espionage against America. See a Manchurian Candidate dangle from the wires of the NKVD, the GRU and the international communist movement and conspiracy and give to the Soviets the knowledge they needed to do what their religion commanded. This was to construct a doomsday bomb and blast freedom into extinction: "The Merkulov letter to Beria raises the question of whether Robert Oppenheimer was a spy for the Soviet Union during the wartime period when he directed the Manhattan project. The letter must be read in the context of Soviet intelligence operations in the United States during World War II. Robert Oppenheimer's long time membership in the Communist Party of the United States was made secret in 1942 because he was being used as a Soviet intelligence asset by the communist underground to help obtain atomic secrets. Oppenheimer was being run through the American Communist Party and the Comintern, the Communist International, until 1944. Soviet intelligence decided that such operations were too risky because of increased FBI surveillance of Communist Party operatives. At the time that Stalin acceded to President Roosevelt's request and dissolved the Comintern in 1943, Soviet intelligence had to reorganize its espionage channels in the United States. The letter addresses that problem, among others. The letter is questioned by Gregg Herken, who wrote in Brotherhood of the Bomb, 'it is difficult to know whether this cable is evidence of Oppenheimer's complicity or reflects the (understandable) desire of Kheifetz and other NKVD operatives to curry favor with their boss.' Gregory Kheifetz was operating under cover as Soviet vice consul San Francisco from late 1941 to the summer of 1944. Herken argued in a posting on H-Diplo: 'I suspect Kheifetz, who was recalled to Moscow in mid 1944, of padding his resume by claiming that he had recruited Oppenheimer. Kheifetz's motive was simple: he was trying to avoid execution for failure to perform while he was the NKVD's main spy in the Bay area.' Herken is mistaken. Kheifetz was not recalled for failing to perform nor for inactivity. Nor was he sent to the gulag. He was recalled because he was named in a secret letter to Stalin by an NKVD officer in the Washington, DC rezidentura. He was accused of being part of a ring led by rezident Vasili Zarubin, supposedly working for the Germans and the Japanese. Stalin ordered them all recalled to Moscow to investigate the charges, which were dismissed. The officer, Lieutenant Colonel Vasili Dimitrovich Mironov, also sent an unsigned letter to J. Edgar Hoover, exposing the intelligence activities of the Zarubins and Kheifetz, which the FBI named Anonymous Letter. The author of the letter to Stalin was revealed only in 1994 by Lieutenant General Pavel Sudoplatov in his memoir Special Tasks. It is clear from the contents that both the letters to Hoover and Stalin were sent by Mironov. Soviet intelligence, furious at Sudoplatov for revealing a damaging secret, refused to confirm the story or make Mironov's letter to Stalin public. Instead, Soviet intelligence presented the disinformation that Kheifetz was recalled for 'inactivity' and that Sudoplatov had not been in charge of atomic espionage during the critical period of World War II. This line, unfortunately, has been perpetuated by Herken, Amy Knight and others. See the chief of Soviet nuclear espionage in America inflict untold damage upon the Manhattan Project. In fact, Kheifetz was cleared of the charges against him, promoted and given a medal. He was chief of section of Department S, atomic espionage, until he fell victim to the antisemitic purge of 1947. Mironov's letters to Hoover and Stalin hurt Soviet atomic espionage efforts, but by then the bulk of the damage to the Manhattan Project had been done. Former intelligence officers we interviewed in Moscow stressed that Oppenheimer's assistance was of great importance during the 1942-1944 period. After that the question of who would run him and how he would be contacted produced competition between the NKVD and GRU. Neither group succeeded because their purpose was overtaken by events. By the end of the war the Soviets had what they needed to build their own bomb and in 1946 Beria called an end to all contacts with American sources in the Manhattan Project." (The Merkulov Letter by Jerrold and Leona Schecter, in Was Oppenheimer A Soviet Spy? A Roundtable Discussion by Jerrold Schecter, Leona Schecter, Gregg Herken and Hayden Peake). In ancient Greek mythology, the Gorgons were three monsters, named Stheno, Euryale and Medusa, who were able to turn people who looked at them into stone. A noiseless flash engulfs the sky. A sheet of sun cuts through space. Then a thunderous roar the likes of which people had never heard before. Then waves of heat people had never felt before. Then particles of poison to which people had never succumbed before. Then cities of rubble in which people had never been buried before. Then fields of death people had never seen before. Fleeing on a dark beach and seeking sanctuary in the water, people look back in horror and turn to stone. They have seen a holocaust unleashed by the enemies of freedom under the direction of Robert Oppenheimer.

JOE BIDEN'S GLOBAL RED THEATER

"In 1934 Orson Welles directed Macbeth for the Negro People's Theater, as part of the Federal Theater Project. He also worked with John Houseman in the production of The Cradle Will Rock, a musical by Marc Blitzstein. According to Houseman, it was 'a play with music (while others, at various times, called it an opera, a labor opera, a social cartoon, a marching song and a propagandistic tour de force).' Blitzstein wrote the play in only five weeks. The original production with Howard da Silva and Will Geer was banned for political reasons. It eventually was performed at the Mercury Theater (108 performances). Welles later recalled: 'Marc Blitzstein was almost a saint. He was so totally and serenely convinced of the Eden which was waiting for us all the other side of the revolution that there was no way of talking politics to him. When he came into the room the lights got brighter. He was an engine, a rocket, directed in one direction, which was his opera--which he almost believed had only to be performed to start the revolution.' " (Federal Theater Project, Spartacus Educational). An engine for communism. A rocket for communism. An opera for communism. Propaganda for communism. Productions for communism. Songs for communism. A revolution for communism. A national march for communism. Such was the Federal Theater Project, a project established by Franklin Roosevelt in 1935 as part of the New Deal, a project which would achieve infamy as the first government sponsored theater program in the history of America to promote a religion dedicated to the destruction of freedom. Less than a century after the Federal Theater Project broke dark new ground in proselytizing with American tax dollars on behalf of the enemies of America, America's publicly funded red stage has gone global and spread its terrifying Klieg lights into every nation on Earth. Look at Joe Biden's revival of the Federal Theater Project on a global stage and see American political theater supplant the sounds of freedom's song. See plays staged in African lands, financed by American taxpayer dollars, promoting the religion of transgenderism. Emerging from the squalid womb of a Marxist nightmare known as Gender, Race and Class Politics, transgenderism proclaims that what science has discovered to exist,

DNA, genes and strings of genes called chromosomes, does not in fact exist, and what science has discovered to exist, the genetic basis of gender determination, does not in fact exist, and gender can instead be changed by human interventions or by a simple declaration and belief that one is a member of the opposite sex. See plays staged to promote the rights of transgender psychotics. See plays staged condemning capitalism as a system of violence against women. See plays staged condemning capitalism as a system of environmental degradation. See plays staged condemning capitalism as a system of white supremacy. See plays staged condemning capitalism as a system of violence and exclusion against immigrants. See plays staged promoting communism in the name of African democracy. See plays staged promoting communism in the name of hip hop and black culture. See plays staged condemning capitalism as a system which deprives people of their rights of free expression, free association, peaceful assembly and their right to access information. See plays staged condemning capitalism as a system of discrimination against gays and lesbians. See plays staged condemning capitalism as a system of bigotry, intolerance and cultural chauvinism. See plays staged promoting discrimination against white males in the name of diversity. See the production of gender theater, race theater, class theater, gay theater, lesbian theater, climate activism theater and illegal alien theater, and the funding of world revolution through American federal grants: "The Biden administration is spending taxpayer dollars to stage plays in an effort to teach Africans about LGBTQ rights. A State Department grant allocates money to 'improve communication at the level of the local community on the social issue of LGBTQ rights and domestic violence via participatory theater' in the African nation of Chad, according to a federal grant description. The Biden administration has paid out several grants to use theater to educate foreigners about environmentalism, racism, immigration. The grant was offered under the Africa Regional Democracy Fund, a State Department program intended to support the 'advancement of civil and political rights, freedom of expression, association, peaceful assembly and access to information in African nations. The State Department approved an estimated $26 million in grants under this program during the 2023 fiscal year, according to a government spending database.' The US Department of State supports a wide range of strategic programs to advance US interests abroad,' a State Department spokesperson told the Daily Caller News Foundation. 'Culture—from music to sports to theater—is a vital component of the United States' people to people diplomacy efforts in Chad and around the world and supports broader U.S. foreign policy goals,' they continued. The US Embassy in Chad released a solicitation for grant applications under this program in March 2022, stating that its spending would help strengthen 'democratic institutions in subSaharan Africa.' Teaching people in Chad about LGBTQ rights and domestic violence through theater will cost American taxpayers $120,000, according to a federal grant listing. The grant was approved in October 2023 and will carry on through September 2024. Biden's State Department has made liberal use of theater in pursuing its goals abroad. The State Department under Biden has paid to use theater and dance to engage youth in North Macedonia about environmental issues, to raise awareness about immigration issues, to teach people in Belgium about 'fighting racism and discrimination through theater' and to educate Bosnians about 'tolerance and intercultural cooperation,' federal grant listings show. The department funded an 'ecotheater' production in Austria that touched on issues related to the climate, according to a federal grant listing. Biden's State Department has also supported other forms of performance art abroad, including funding 31 different programs across 23 countries using hip hop to assist climate activism and promote diversity, among other things." (Not Kidding: Biden Funding Theatrical Productions To Teach Africans LGBT Rights by Robert Schmad). Look at Joe Biden's global political theater and see communism promoted in the name of democratic norms, institutions and human rights. See communism promoted in the name of protecting women, youth, the weak, the vulnerable and the marginalized. See capitalism condemned as a violation of fundamental freedoms. See communism promoted as a system of citizen participation. See communism promoted as a system of free and fair elections. See the rejection of meritocracy, the promotion of gender politics, the establishment of affirmative action, and the setting of quotas for the placement of women in elected and appointed offices. See the promotion of communist issues and the development of communist parties. See the promotion of communism in the name of achieving world peace. See the promotion of regimentation of journalism and the arts in accordance with the principles of political correctness. See the rejection of liberal democracy and the promotion of local, national, regional and global communist revolution: "The Political and Economic Section of the US Embassy in Chad is pleased to solicit project proposals under the Department of State's Africa Regional Democracy Fund (ARDF) grants program, which provides limited foreign assistance resources to support programming that strengthens democratic institutions in subSaharan Africa. ARDF grants support projects that address one or more of the following objectives: 1. Support protection from, mitigation of, and responses to human rights violations and abuses, in particular human rights violations affecting the most vulnerable, by strengthening human rights frameworks, institutions, and oversight. 2. Support local and international human rights organizations and institutions to promote human rights systems, policies and protection, with a focus on women and youth. 3. Strengthen the capacity of community based organizations, including faith based organizations, and resident, vendor, or other associations, through civic education and citizen participation to advocate for human rights and democratic norms that advance public involvement in civic life. 4. Support local civil society to hold government accountable for free and fair, credible electoral and political processes. 4. Support throughout the electoral cycle, not only the voting process, at the national or subnational level. Support could include providing assistance to help increase the percentage of women holding elected and appointed national, regional, and local offices; support for legislation that ensures fair processes; independent journalism on electoral issues; and issue based political party development with civil society input. 5. Support to political processes, such as peace processes and negotiations, which seek long term democratization and respect for human rights and accountability, with a particular focus on empowering women, youth, and marginalized and vulnerable populations." (Africa Regional Democracy Fund 2022, US Embassy Chad, usembassy.gov). At Malaya Dmitrovka 6 in the Tverskoy District of Moscow stands the former site of Lenkom Theater, also known as Lenin's Komosomal Moscow Theater. Named after Komsomol, the communist youth league set by Vladimir Lenin, it was the "theater for working youth" and disseminated communist propoganda from the new Soviet stage. In 1935, communist public theater debuted in America in the Federal Theater Project. Back by popular demand in the twenty first century, it has been delivering encore performances throughout the world from public funds in Joe Biden's America.

THE ASSAULT ON TRUTH

Sturmgewehr. Assault rifle. Adolf Hitler's name for a weapon developed in Germany during World War II which made history. In 1943, the Sturmgewehr 44 burst onto the scene spraying mass death in the form of automatic fire and would set the standard for infantry rifles throughout the world. For the past one thousand years since its birth in Northern Europe, the Faustian culture of the West has been engaged in an assault far more deadly than the Sturmgewehr's assault on the battlefield. This world unique culture, whose fearsome symbol is the scholar and sorcerer Faust, avatar of a will to power never before seen in the history of mankind, has been engaged in an assault on truth far surpassing the mental destruction perpetrated in primitive cultures. As different from Classical Culture, whose prime symbol was Apollo, avatar of reason and reality, as an early summer morning is different from a late winter night, the West has promoted the doctrine of the relativity of truth on the pages of philosophy treatises and made menticide the theme, aim and mission of its holy writ. Western culture is a Faustian, romanticist, relativist culture, and the period of its Age of Enlightenment, with its philosophy of empiricism and objective truth, was an anticurrent and countermovement to the general, defining, relativist trend. The first major assault on truth was fired by one of the citizens of the Enlightenment who lived during its shining glory and was determined to bring it to a close. It was fired by a subversive and fifth column operating within who sought to revive that which had been endemic in the West prior to the Enlightenment, expel the alien Enlightenment concern for empiricism and objective truth, join forces with the advancing armies of relativism, and return the West to its Faustian roots. His aim was as clear and unequivocal as it was criminal and quintessentially Western: "I have found it necessary to deny knowledge in order to make room for faith." To deny knowledge: a bold, brazen assault on the mind never before stated with such shameless clarity in the history of mankind. To deny knowledge: a frontal assault on man which defines mental sickness as nothing else does, and has tolled out the death knell of human advancement. To deny knowledge: a declaration of war which would spray out mass moral and spiritual destruction and bring civilization to a close, conducted in the only culture in which it could have been conducted: in the world shaking, imagination defying, sanity breaching, Faustian culture of the West. I have found it necessary to deny knowledge in order to make room for faith. A clarion call to sleeper relativists throughout the West to rise up and overthrow the alien Enlightenment edifice of sanity in their midst and reestablish the West's native orthodoxy. This clarion call was issued by the most influential philosopher in the West, by a philosopher who expressed and systematized Faustian type thinking as no philosopher had ever done before, and would inspire two centuries of relativistic philosophies, and launch the West on its downward trajectory into the abyss. This clarion call was issued by Immanuel Kant, and his magnum opus, the Critique of Pure Reason, is Satan's Bible of civilizational collapse. Listen to his doctrine and then listen to his latter day students who have taken control over the twenty first century. Immanuel Kant. Kant proclaims that the perceived world of physical objects in space and time is a universal delusion produced by man's perception. Socalled knowledge is acquired independently of all experience; it has no empirical basis; and is on that account purely subjective and is knowledge of nothing. When man is conscious, he is conscious of nothing, when man perceives something, he perceives nothing, and man is blind because he has eyes and because he has a functioning visual system. A sense organ which functions properly serves as a screen and veil over reality. The only true philosophy is that which is opposed to realism, common sense and ordinary experience, and is the philosophy of transcendentalism, apriorism, idealism, relativism and subjectivism: "I understand by the transcendental idealism of all appearances the doctrine that they are all together to be regarded as mere appearances and not things in themselves, and accordingly that time and space are only subjective forms of perception, not determinations given for themselves or conditions of objects as things in themselves. To this idealism is opposed realism, which regards space and time as something given in themselves, independently of our perception." (Critique of Pure Reason). Kant proclaims that true philosophy is that which acknowledges that man's perception creates objects, and objects do not create perception, as common sense erroneously maintains: "Hitherto it has been assumed that all our knowledge must conform to objects. But all attempts to extend our knowledge of objects by establishing something in regard to them apriori have ended in failure. We must therefore consider whether we may not have more success in the tasks of metaphysics if we suppose that objects must conform to our perception." (Critique of Pure Reason). The Twenty First Century. Now listen to Kant's latter day students follow in the footsteps of their master and spray out automatic weapons' fire against the noblest activity pursued by man: the pursuit of truth. Listen to them proclaim that because master Kant taught that all knowledge is relative to the human race and there is no such thing as knowledge, there is no such thing as mathematics. Listen to them proclaim that mathematics is subjective and partisan. The law that two and two equal four has no relation to reality but is a product of Eurocentric bias and the patriarchal, white supremacist, capitalist system. People who believe that there is such a thing as a science of mathematics have been brainwashed and programmed by the white, male, capitalist establishment. The notion that mathematics is culturally neutral is a product of Western mythology. The notion that mathematics is an empirical science endangers people's welfare and leads to environmental catastrophe. All attempts to construct a science of mathematics have ended in failure because it is self evident that no knowledge of any kind is possible. The science of mathematics, impossible and inconceivable, must be swept away by a movement to reestablish sorcery and witchcraft and overthrow Western civilization: "A Brooklyn College professor has said that the idea that math is objective or neutral is a myth. The math educator Laurie Rubel also tweeted that the mathematical equation $2+2=4$ 'reeks of white supremacist patriarchy'. She has also received support from several academics at universities and colleges across the country who retweeted and promoted her claims. The tweets from Rubel are part of a trend on social media where a number of math professors and academics from top universities have debated the 'Eurocentric' roots of American mathematics. 'The idea that math (or data) is culturally neutral or in any way objective is a MYTH. I'm ready to move on with that understanding. Who's coming with me?' Rubel said in a tweet. While in another post, she added: 'Along with the 'of course math is neutral because $2+2=4$ ' trope and the related (and creepy) math is pure and protect math', this reeks of white supremacist patriarchy. I'd rather think on nurturing people & protecting the planet (with math in service of their goals).' She also recommended people to read about 'mathwashing' by posting a link as well as writing, 'or read Cathy O'Neill's work @mathbabedotorg on Weapons of Math Destruction or any or all of Rochelle Gutierrez's scholarship.' Harvard PhD candidate Kareem Carr supported Rubel and tweeted: 'People say it's subjectivism to ask if math is Western. I don't get that. It's an objective fact that some groups were more involved in the creation of modern math than others. They may have been trying to make it objective but it's not stupid to ask if they actually succeeded!' Rochelle Gutierrez, Maths Ed Professor, community activist, frequent user of Creative Insubordination, said: 'YES! This attends to the Cultures/Histories dimension of mathematics (addressing Western/Eurocentric maths). And, we also want to attend to the Living Practice dimension (which is more about imagining a version that builds upon ancestral knowings, but does not yet exist).' "($2+2=4$? New York Professor Says Purity Of Math Reeks of 'White Supremacist Patriarchy' And Internet Loses It by Divya Kishore). Listen to today's neoKantians proclaim all truth is relative to time, place, tribe and culture. The notion of empirical science is a product of racism, imperialism and capitalist oppression. The notion of universal, objective truth is a lash of discrimination against blacks, indigenous people and people of color. Mankind must be liberated from the dogma that there is such a thing as science and must return to the rule of faith and force: "Abolition Science is an abolitionist project that envisions a science and math delinked from racial capitalism, imperialism and oppression-- a science and math that serves all people. to undermine the racial capitalist logics of Western science & math that necessitate the continued exploitation and violence against land and BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, People of Color). 1. imagine and shape alternative math and science futures. 2. build a collective community to shape a vision for liberation. 3. historicize science and math to understand how it operates in the present. 4. be a resource for places of teaching and learning." (Abolition Science, website). An echo chamber is a hollow enclosure built to produce reverberation. The sacred music of the Christian Age was heard in the echo chambers of churches and cathedrals. The opera houses and concert halls of the seventeenth, eighteenth and nineteenth centuries were designed as echo chambers. The famous Hamilton Mausoleum in Scotland has the longest echo time of any building in the world. The twenty first century has seen the construction of an echo chamber by students of the master builder of madness, Immanuel Kant. This is an ideological echo chamber in which people amplify and reinforce their preexisting psychoses. Kant set the stage for the construction of this unholy edifice. Listen to the constant reflections of its sounds. There exists no absolute, universal, empirically derived knowledge. All knowledge is relative to gender, race and class. Science does not exist. DNA, genes and chromosomes do not exist. Males can become females and females can become males by human interventions or by a simple declaration and belief that one identifies as a member of the opposite sex. Science is a handmaiden of hatred and rage and should be deployed to support theories of doomsday global warming which demand the dismantling of modernity. Science is a handmaiden of old time religion and should be deployed to prove that a one cell zygote at the moment of conception contains a supernatural soul which makes it an actual human person, and that abortion is thus murder. The hard, polished stones of this echo chamber were set into place by Kant's apprentices. The echoes within have risen to thunderous roar and shattered civilization.

AMERICA'S ANIMAL FARM

On August 17, 1945 in Britain, a book was published which would achieve international recognition and success. It is a fable about a group of farm animals who rebel against their human master and seek to create a society in which all animals are equal. But the revolution is betrayed by one of the animals, by a pig named Napoleon, who proceeds to set up a dictatorship in which he enjoys special privileges, and the farm reverts to the state it had been in before the revolution. The original motto of the revolution was All Animals Are Equal, but after the revolution, this was replaced by Napoleon with the motto: All Animals Are Equal, But Some Animals Are More Equal Than Others. The book is called Animal Farm and it was written by George Orwell, and it is the story of the 1917 communist revolution in Russia. Before it was recognized as a modern classic in the late 1940s, the book was ignored and suppressed across the West as being politically incorrect and offensive to communism and the Soviet Union. Less than a century after it was first published, Orwell's masterpiece has taken on a new life. It has assumed new meaning as a terrifying description of a nation exalted for a century as the leader of the free world. In an illustration of how far the moral cancer on the West has advanced, George Orwell's Animal Farm serves as a story both of the former Soviet Union and the United States of America in the twenty first century. It serves as a story of a nation which, two centuries after its birth on the battlefields of Lexington and Concord, has descended into a Soviet system of two tiered justice in which members of a ruling communist majority are exempted from the rule of law which governs the anticommunist minority. Communism was voted into power in America in the early twentieth century in a landslide under a ticket marked progressivism. Since that time, it has mutated into a monster under the name of Gender, Race and Class Politics and embarked upon a rampage throughout society, leaving no home, school, office or business unravaged in its wake. In America in the twenty first century, this neoMarxist nightmare has brought to life the pages of Animal Farm and crushed the voices of liberal dissent and the anticommunist opposition. In America in the twenty first century, a communist majority and establishment have shredded the nation's constitution and burned down the nation's house of freedom, built up with the blood and treasure of the soldiers of the Thirteen Colonies, and set up a society of masters and slaves, devoid of the defining principle of the old America: the equality of all people before the law. Look at the new America and see officials of the establishment and nobody else allowed to commit crimes with impunity. See John Brennan, an official of the establishment, lie under oath to Congress and state that drone assassinations conducted near Pakistan did not produce collateral deaths, and state that the CIA did not illegally access Senate computers. See him lie with impunity and see him appointed head of the CIA, and become a famous cable news commentator. See him next lie while a news commentator and state that Donald Trump was a Russian agent and that Joe Biden never ran a global influence peddling operation while he was vice president, an operation established by a laptop full of emails and voluminous eyewitness accounts. See James Clapper, an official of the establishment, lie under oath to Congress and state that the NSA did not illegally spy on Americans. See him lie with impunity, and see him become a famous cable news commentator and lie again, stating that Donald Trump is a Russian asset. See an official of the establishment, Eric Holder, defy a congressional subpoena with impunity. See an official of the establishment, Andrew McCabe, tell serial lies with impunity under oath to Congress and to officials at the FBI and Office of the Inspector General. See an official of the establishment, Hillary Clinton, violate the law by transmitting and receiving classified information over an unsecured private server, and violate the law by destroying thousands of emails under subpoena, and do so with impunity. See an official of the establishment, James Comey, lie 245 times under oath to Congress when he stated he did not know or could not remember the FBI Crossfire Hurricane investigation of Donald Trump which he had authorized, and do so with impunity. See him violate the law by retaining copies of classified FBI memorandums containing conversations with Donald Trump, and violate the law by leaking these documents to a person without security clearance, and do these things with impunity. See an official of the establishment, Joe Biden, unlawfully remove classified documents from the government and retain them at his home and office, and do so with impunity. See an official of the establishment, Fani Willis, obstruct justice, tamper with witnesses and commit fraud to conceal her illegal relationship with one of her office colleagues, and do so with impunity. Now see the operation of a double standard without precedent in the history of the nation. See the national leader of the freedom opposition, Donald Trump, together with his staff, including Michael Flynn and Peter Navarro, jailed for crimes members of the establishment were allowed to commit with impunity but which they themselves did not commit. See them jailed not for what they did but for who they are. See them jailed, and along with them citizens throughout the nation and people throughout the world, because they stood up for freedom. See them jailed and see all people jailed, because when innocent people are jailed, no person is free, and see an offense committed against innocent people, and a crime committed against all humanity, which will live forever in the annals of infamy: "In 2011, then Homeland Security Advisor to President Obama, John Brennan, swore before Congress that drone targeted assassination missions near the Pakistani border had not led to 'a single collateral death.' That was an obvious lie with grave consequences, given that Brennan was sworn under oath and was one of the top officials in the US national security community. Yet there were no subsequent repercussions. In fact, the opposite occurred. Brennan was subsequently rewarded with a 2013 appointment as CIA Director. But the next year, once again, Brennan lied to Congress, assuring the Senate Intelligence Committee that his CIA had not secretly accessed senate staffers' computers. Again, there were no consequences for his repeated lies. Instead, Brennan, upon retirement, went on to be an MSNBC/NBC analyst who helped to promulgate the Russian collusion/laptop disinformation hoaxes. In 2013, Director of National Intelligence James Clapper also lied under oath to Congress when he laughably stated that the National Security Agency did not spy on American citizens. Later, when called out by senators, Clapper fudged in a televised interview. 'I responded in what I thought was the most truthful, or least untruthful, manner by saying no.' Try that contortion with the IRS. Some members of Congress referred a criminal complaint of perjury against Brennan to then Attorney General Eric Holder. Nothing happened. Again, one of the chiefs of the American national security community was exempted after lying to members of Congress. Clapper went on to a lucrative position as a CNN national security analyst, and at one point he claimed that Trump was a Putin asset. As far as Eric Holder, he had earlier defied a congressional subpoena and was held in contempt by the House. The Department of Justice, however, chose not to pursue the complaint. Later in the Trump administration, Trump adviser Peter Navarro would be sentenced to four months in jail for similarly resisting a congressional subpoena. Was it a crime or not to resist a congressional subpoena? The Justice Department's Inspector General concluded that Andrew McCabe, the former FBI deputy director and interim director, had lied repeatedly to a variety of officials, including FBI Director James Comey, various FBI agents, and officials of the Office of the Inspector General. On some of these occasions, McCabe was sworn under oath. Yet in 2020, the Department of Justice chose not to pursue the IG's criminal referrals. McCabe went on to become an outspoken CNN News contributor. Note that General Michael Flynn, Trump's National Security Advisor, was indicted—and convicted—for similarly lying to the FBI in 2017. In 2016, an FBI investigation found that Hillary Clinton, as Secretary of State, had violated the law by transmitting and receiving classified information over an unsecured private server. Subsequently, she destroyed thousands of emails and some devices, some of which were under subpoena. Our criminal justice system no longer treats the accused equally under the law. If the defendant is deemed a conservative, like a Michael Flynn, Peter Navarro, or Donald Trump, then the full force of prosecution falls upon them. But if a Biden, Brennan, Clapper, Clinton, Holder, or Willis, then the state contorts itself to find excuses, exemptions, and mitigating circumstances not to pursue justice—and so often to the point of absurdity and the erosion of Americans' confidence in their laws. In these high profile cases in this polarized era, a cynical public now expects any accused prominent leftist to remain unindicted, while any non leftwing target will be indicted, convicted, and jailed—for the same alleged offenses." (Guilty!—But Not Really Guilty? By Victor Davis Hansen). In George Orwell' allegory, the animal revolutionaries called the system they established Animalism. This was another name for communism. In the twenty first century, another synonym has been added, descending into a disgrace never before seen in the history of mankind: One Hundred Percent Americanism.

RAMADAN DARKNESS DESCENDS ON EUROPE

It is derived from the Arabic word ramida, which means burning, scorching, blazing, glowing and intensely hot. It begins on the last night of the month of Shaban and ends on the last night of the month of Ramadan, between the first and last sightings of the crescent moon. The holiest time in Islam, it is a month of hatred and fanaticism as white hot as they are blind and unthinking. It is called Ramadan and in the twenty first century, this month of fasting, prayer, reflection and solidarity among the Community of the Faithful has blotted out the sunlight of freedom in Europe and spread darkness, the darkness of fear and control, across the land. The gate to this darkness, to this Pillar of Islam, to this name for Allah, to this Ramadan was opened by a fifth column operating within Europe. It was opened by the agent of an international movement and conspiracy whose armies have taken control of the West. It was opened by a cancer in its final stages of development which has spread into every sector of society. It was opened by a monster on a rampage, assembled and brought to life by the surging currents of a religion elected to high office in a landslide, under a ticket marked progressivism, in the early years of the twentieth century, a religion which presently defines the Western establishment. This religion was founded by Karl Marx in the nineteenth century; it originally peddled class war; but emerging from a laboratory manned by Marx's assistants in the twentieth century, it mutated into a nightmare called Gender, Race and Class Politics and breathes fire into every family, home, school, office and business. In the twenty first century, it has formed an alliance with another movement opposed to freedom. This movement is the second religion dominating the world. It was born in the deserts of Arabia and is called Islam. It too was elected by the people in a landslide and defines the establishment in a swathe of nations across the East. The Gender, Race and Class monster which controls Europe has let into the continent the Eastern movement of Islam to assist it in its mission to destroy civilization. These fearsome movements have launched a double barrel assault against the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment, and sent the story of the West hurtling into the abyss. Two popular movements, one from the East and one from the West, both dedicated to the destruction of freedom, have joined forces and assumed control over the world, and in Europe, in the birthplace of freedom, they have reversed the Battle of Tours, won by the West in 732 which stopped the advance of Islam, and set into motion a process of Islamification which has made the birthplace of freedom unrecognizable. Europe today bears no resemblance to the Europe of yesteryear. Europe today lies prostrate beneath the whip hand of two masters, Marxism and Islam, and rendered bloodied and lifeless beneath their relentless lashes, it has acquired a new calendar and a new method of keeping time. In Europe today, every day is a day of hate, every month is the month of Ramadan, and the passage of time is marked, not by the movements of a clock, but by the number of smashed windows, burned down buildings, torn up cities and dead bodies increasing. Europe today is Islam; it is Ramadan; it is one thousand years of freedom annulled; it is the final chapter of a story of treason composed by Marxists which has made darkness descend on the continent. Europe today. The holy land of Ramadan, the holy books of the faithful, the holy mosque of the prayerful and the holy city of Mecca. Europe today. The community of Allah's most faithful and fanatical followers, swords unsheathed and ready to kill. Europe today. The voices of reason, enlightenment and the infidel crushed and silenced forever. Europe today. The rule of Islamist governments, Arab governments, and their war against Israel and the West. Europe today. Bombings, stabbings, stone throwings and rocket attacks launched against the Jewish redoubt of freedom in the Middle East. Europe today. ProHammas marches for a holocaust demanding the extermination of Jews. Europe today. The sacrifice of liberal democratic norms and values before the gangster law of Sharia. Europe today. The house of the Quran, the house of bigotry, the house of intolerance and the house of war. Europe today. The rule of the family, the family of sons and daughters of Allah and the One True Faith, displacing the rule of courts and constitutions which once protected human rights. Europe today. Subjugation and servility before the decrees of the Prophet in Heaven. Europe today. Ramadan lights blaze in city halls and Hamas flags festoon their rooftops, beckoning passersby to convert to terror. Europe today. Streets named after Islamists and governments enforcing Islam at the point of a gun. Europe today. Socalled conservative parties reject freedom and place mayors and city councils in the service of Islam. Europe today. Illegal migrants allowed to spread a plague in the form of an alien religion and allowed to overrun cities in the name of achieving inclusion and diversity. Europe today. Eyes dazzled and blinded by spectacular fireworks displays spelling out the subversion of once free nations. Europe today. Unclean, unpleasant, a veritable sewer of ignorance and superstition, a bloody field of riots and demonstrations, an ideological echo chamber patrolled round the clock by thought police, a continent without an enclave of freedom remaining: "Well, it's that time of year again: the Holy Month of Ramadan, when one of the holiest things you can do is to grab a copy of your Holy Book, fly to the Holy City of Mecca, make your way to the Holy Mosque (Al Masjid Al Haram), fall to your knees, and pray with all your mind and heart and soul for the extermination of the infidel. To be sure, many of Allah's more fervent believers, having carefully perused the words of His Holy Book, recognize that prayer in itself is woefully insufficient, and that in order to properly celebrate this holiest of months it is necessary to act upon the Holy Book's injunctions that they do their own part to bring about the infidel's consummate and unmitigated destruction. So it is that in 1973, Egypt, Syria, and eight other Arab governments took the occasion of Ramadan to launch the Yom Kippur War against Israel. In 2016, the Pulse nightclub shooting in Orlando, in which the jihadist Omar Mateen killed 49 people and wounded 53, occurred during Ramadan. When the Holy Month came around in 2022, Palestinians were once again motivated to up their game, subjecting the people of Israel to a series of devastating rocket attacks as well as dozens of stabbings, bombings, and other sacred activities. And during last year's Ramadan, some of the most pious of Muslims launched rockets into Israel from every direction—Gaza, Lebanon, Syria—while equally devout rioters waving a Hamas flag occupied the Temple Mount and threw stones at Jews who were engaged in prayer at the Wailing Wall, probably for peace on earth and good will toward men. Suckers! Which brings us to the present day. You might say that this time around, Hamas started its Ramadan celebration a few months earlier, namely on October 7. Since that day, alas, Israel has made things rather tough for the Prophet's ardent followers in Gaza. The other side of that coin, needless to say, is the proliferation of pro Hamas marches that have taken place weekend after weekend in the streets of major cities all over the part of the world that--still governed (for the time being, anyway) more or less in accordance with Western democratic norms instead of being subjected to the harsh tenets of sharia law--is designated by the Koran as the House of War. In those marches, the sons and daughters of Allah have been joined by individuals who, while not yet converts to the True Faith, are patently eager to demonstrate their willing subjugation to it. Surely Allah, in his Heaven, is smiling down on these acts of pure servility. But these marches aren't the only way in which compliant infidels are announcing to the world their deference to Islam. This year, for the first time, the city of Oslo, Norway, is commemorating the month of Ramadan with a spectacular public display of brilliant, twinkling lights in the shape of half moons. These lights have been placed around Oslo's City Hall (where, a few weeks ago, passersby could see a Hamas flag flying proudly) and along a couple of neighboring streets. Those streets, as it happens, are named for two of the most distinguished Norwegians of all time--Roald Amundsen, who led the first teams to reach both the South and the North Pole, and Fridtjof Nansen, who was also a major explorer (leading the first team to cross Greenland), but who won even greater distinction as a diplomat, playing a key role in the peaceful separation of Norway from Sweden and introducing the 'Nansen passport' for persons left stateless after World War I. Neither Amundsen nor Nansen was a Muslim (Amundsen was a devout Christian who, during his perilous polar expeditions, felt he was entirely in God's hands; Nansen was an atheist), but no doubt the names of these streets will, in the fullness of time, be changed to honor Muslims who have played key roles in Norway's Islamization. " (Europe's Ramadan by Bruce Bawer). Turkey. Iran. Dubai. Indonesia. Syria. Somali. Saudi Arabia. The train of Islam winds its way around the world, taking on board true believers, darkening the skies with the smoke of revolution, and crashing through the citadels of science and sanity. Its last stop is Europe at the end of time.

BLACK FUHRER TURNED LOOSE

The principles of assembly are these: (1) Place the tools and the men in the sequence of the operation so that each component part shall travel the least possible distance while in the process of finishing. (2) Use work slides or some other form of the carrier so that when a workman completes his operation, he drops the part always in the same place—which place must always be the most convenient place to his hand—and if possible have gravity carry the part to the next workman for his own. (3) Use sliding assembling lines by which the parts to be assembled are delivered at convenient distances. (My Life And Work by Henry Ford). The assembly line. A manufacturing process in which parts are added as the semifinished product moves from workstation to workstation, and the parts are added in sequence until the final product is produced. The assembly line. A sequential organization of workers, parts, tools and machines designed to produce products with maximum efficiency. Commencing operation on October 7, 1913 at the Highland Park Ford Plant in Michigan, the assembly line produced Model T automobiles faster than their paint dried and transformed the world of manufacturing. Five decades after the Ford assembly line began producing automobiles at a rate never before seen, another assembly line was established which transformed the world of politics, and for the first time in history, inflicted mass produced destruction on mankind. While Henry Ford was the father of the industrial assembly line, the father of the political and ideological assembly line was a nineteenth century theologian born in Trier, Germany. He invented a monster called Tribalism and told his workers how to augment it as it moved through workstations of hate. The first version of this monster was called Class Hate and it declared war on successful people from all walks of life, from business to philosophy to science to technology to engineering to the arts, branding them as the bourgeois enemies of the proletariat, the working class, and calling for their extermination. This inventor's name was Karl Marx. A century and a half after he taught his students how to augment and mass produce a monster, his assembly line finally commenced operations in the mid twentieth century, powered by the forces of civilizational collapse, when his monster received its first and second augmentations. These were the politics of feminism and black power, and they called for the extermination of males and whites, respectively, and created a sweeping vortex of violence never before seen in the history of mankind. The finished product, called Gender, Race and Class Politics, achieved the dark vision of Karl Marx and was an immense success with the masses. It moved like a cancer across the West, spread into every sector of society, broadcast its hymns of hate in classrooms, courtrooms, corporate suites and cabinet offices, and brought the story of civilization to a disgraceful and terrifying finish. This monster is a three headed Gorgon which has turned the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment, the foundations of freedom in the modern world, into ashes and stone. In the city of College Park, Maryland, a short six kilometers away from the nation's capital, and the home of the flagship campus of the prestigious University of Maryland, a scene of civilizational collapse is on display in spectacular fashion, and has already been inscribed on the tombstone of the West. In the city of College Park, a neoMarxist avatar of mental illness has spread panic and fear in the streets. Listen to Kayla Aliese Carter proclaim that a progressive university is a radical university whose campuses are battlefields, whose classrooms are war rooms holding race war sessions, and whose professors indoctrinate students in the necessity to abolish freedom. A progressive society has established a policy of discrimination against whites in the name of racial equity. A progressive society is a black socialist society which has burned down capitalist America and set fire to its white inhabitants in the name of black liberation. A progressive society is a black welfare society which has abolished the need for blacks to work by subsidizing them with money stolen from whites. A progressive society is a revolutionary society which has reduced whites to the status of chattel slaves of blacks. A progressive society is a violent society which has corralled whites into Warsaw ghettos and opened fire. A progressive society is ruled by black anger and rage against the capitalist system. A progressive society is governed by policies, programs and practices which excludes whites from neighborhoods, schools, work forces and from the human race. A progressive society has abolished the right of free speech and enforced adherence to the black communist party line. A progressive society has abolished liberal democracy on the grounds that it is a reactionary system and replaced it with a regime of black bias and disenfranchisement of whites. A progressive society has abolished liberal democracy on the grounds that it is a colonialist system and replaced it with a regime of black fascism. A progressive society condemns capitalism on the grounds that it oppresses and exploits blacks. A progressive society judges people by the color of the skin and not the content of their character and is an affirmative action regime which gives preferential treatment to blacks. A progressive society condemns capitalism on the grounds that it is a system of white supremacy. A progressive society encourages blacks to support themselves by rejecting honest work and by begging, stealing and selling drugs. A progressive society excuses all forms of criminal conduct perpetrated by blacks. A progressive society is a police state goosestepping to the drumbeats of black power. A progressive society is a regime of persecution of the voices of freedom, voices led by Donald Trump, which defunds them, detonates them, strangles them and shoots them down in cold blood. A progressive society is a social media platform which relentlessly attacks anticommunists, incites violence against them, plans for the destruction of civilization, and has launched a holocaust against the white population: "There is a controversy brewing in the City of College Park, Maryland over its 'racial equity' leader Kayla Aliese Carter, who is tasked with eliminating systemic racism in the departments of the liberal [leftist] city. Carter has called for the United States to be burned down to allow for 'Black Liberation.'" The city says that it is investigating, but Carter is an interesting snapshot of what I have called the radical chic in academia and society. She is a revolutionary who called for violence while complaining that she is being asked to work for a living. In addressing the controversy, the City of College Park will now need to establish a free speech principle that will apply equally to revolutionaries and reactionaries alike. In 2022, Carter joined the city workforce under Mayor Fazlul Kabir to implement a 'racial equity' agenda across all city departments, affecting policies, practices, programs and budgets. Under Kabir's leadership, she was to work on reviewing 'all current policies and programs' for any bias and 'disparate impact for black people.' Carter however appears to prefer arson to analysis. She has long voiced violent and racist views. She helps guide fellow armchair revolutionaries on 'how we will eat and live and grow after we burn it all down.' She has little patience with incremental changes and calls for others to 'dismantle this shit.' Carter maintains that it is only the destruction of society that will result in true justice: 'I can't wait for society to collapse so MY ideology can rise from the ashes!' She also rejects criticism of violence, asking 'Why do black people always have to rationalize our violence and anger?' After all, she noted on Instagram, 'we are at war against colonialism.' She has posted on how she has facilitated and cohosted events with people committed to her view of black liberation. In these public statements, she repeatedly rejects calls for nonviolence in seeking the destruction of society: In one May 2020 post, she asked 'Do you all understand why the oppressed are constantly shamed out of using violence? BECAUSE THE OPPRESSOR WANTS TO BE THE SOLE PROFITEER OF VIOLENCE. THEY DON'T WANT TO DEAL WITH BACK TALK. 'DO AS I SAY NOT AS I DO' No.' Using yT for white people, she even slammed those who tried to be inclusive at work: 'This yT man in my meeting just said, 'I want to take a moment and give the floor to any black participants to tell us what MLK Day this year meant to you.' I SWEAR. I AM WHEEZING. WHO HIRES THESE PEOPLE?' While working at one of the most far left governments in the country, she portrays her life as working within a system of white supremacist oppression. In one posting, she added at the end 'White man calling, I got to go.' While the Kabir administration pays her $75,600, she is not happy with having to work to feed herself due to this white supremacist, capitalist system. Instead, she posts how she should be a 'collage artist' or a 'lady of leisure.' However, her preferred job description may not resonate with employers outside of the City of College Park government: 'I need a new job but the problem is that I don't want to work. I just want to lie in my bed being a girl. Can anyone help me with this?' Yet, she says capitalism is to blame for forcing her back into criminal conduct: 'Tired of being so underpaid, and also tired of applying to new jobs. I don't want to go back to selling drugs but this economy is getting desperate.' " (College Park Under Fire Over Self Professed Revolutionary 'Racial Equity' Leader by Jonathan Turley). Kayla Aliese Carter is a phantom from another time, a nightmare resurrected from the Third Reich with only the colors of the flags, shirts and armbands changed, a twenty first century fuhrer straight off an assembly line first set up by Karl Marx. She roams the world, from London to New York to Paris to Los Angeles, and stays alive because the electricity of gender, race and class politics keeps her alive. These Marxist currents of hate have incinerated civilization.

CLASS WAR USA

On April 9, 1917, a sealed train carrying a virus set off from Zurich, Switzerland. This virus was a movement and conspiracy known as communism and its operations were directed by Vladimir Lenin, leader of the Russian Bolshevik Party. On April 16, 1917, the train arrived at its destination in Petrograd and Lenin took control of the burgeoning communist movement in the country. On November 7, 1917, Lenin led an armed insurrection at the Winter Palace in Petrograd, overthrew the liberal government of Alexander Kerensky, and abolished freedom in Russia. The New York Times headline of November 8 reports on the outbreak of a cancer which would spread far and wide: Extremists Rise To Power In Russia. From The Outset of Revolution, They Have Thwarted Efforts Of Moderate Governments. Sapped Kerensky's Rule. The communists staged a totalitarian coup, ignited communist movements across Europe, Asia, Africa and the Americas, and created a day which would be celebrated by the enemies of freedom throughout the world: November Revolution Day. In a stark illustration of how far the cancer of communism had advanced, Lenin's revolution swept into the arsenal of the free world in the 1930s, and in tickets marked Progressivism and a New Deal, it won power in a landslide. The people of the United States of America voted to establish communism as their state religion, and inaugurated the succeeding, final red decades of the nation, which would dig the nation's grave in the twenty first century. In addition to Progressivism and a New Deal, communism has had many names in America. It has been peddled in a veritable alphabet soup and Scrabble board of new word combinations, peddled as New Frontier, Great Society, Centrism, Third Way, A Kinder and Gentler Nation, Compassionate Conservatism, Yes We Can, Change We Need, Hope, Build Back Better and Let's Finish The Job. A synonym and byword for the American establishment, communism has composed the epitaph of the nation, inscribed on a tombstone of treason and disgrace. In the twenty first century, it has rendered the former arsenal of the free world morally, spiritually and politically unrecognizable. Look at America today and see the expropriation of successful people with a rifle blast called a wealth tax. See the construction of a Berlin Wall to prevent successful people from leaving the nation to escape expropriation, a wall called an exit tax. See a whirling mass of tax tyranny raze to the ground the nation's house of justice and hurl its constitution to the winds. See round the clock tax audits and investigations conducted against successful people and the confiscation of their wealth enacted under an Ultra Millionaire Tax Act. See state imposed wealth redistribution justified in the name of the mystical oneness of all people. See the Rembrandts, the diamonds, the yachts and the stock portfolios earned by successful people taken away from them in the name of social justice for the poor. See the households of successful people taxed at rates of two percent, three percent, two hundred percent and three hundred percent. See the earned gains, the lawful gains, the honest gains, the capital gains and both the realized and unrealized gains produced by successful people disappear within the monstrous jaws of a social welfare state. See successful people placed into captivity and cannibalized by a regime which has repealed individual rights. See the class of successful people, who pay all the taxes and support all of the nation, tarred, feathered, vilified and vituperated against by the emperors and their mobs. See the government reject its constitutionally mandated mission to protect freedom and become an organized crime regime in the service of communism. See millionaires, billionaires and producers from all walks of life run for their lives before a national house on fire spreading a whirlwind of state interposition and aggression. See the rule of law replaced by a national feeding trough filled to overflowing with expropriated wealth on which the swine of the Earth engorge themselves. See the language of envy, covetousness, hatred and discontent rise in a miasma from the sewers, form a mass base of support for tyranny, poison the political parties and process, raise a battle cry for universal tax violence and human enslavement, and make America, the former arsenal of freedom, unfit and unsafe for human habitation: "The wealth tax is back. We have previously discussed the constitutional and policy concerns surrounding the push by Democrats like Senator Elizabeth Warren (D-Massachusetts) to introduce a wealth tax that would start with billionaires. It would not likely end there. The law would also apply the same type of California approach to wealthy families fleeing the tax grab with a huge 'exit tax' so that there is no escaping from tax vortex. In addition, under the Ultra Millionaire Tax Act, Warren and others would add $100 to increase tax audits and investigations. The captivity tax highlights the wealth redistribution mindset underlying Warren's 'experiment'. Warren thrilled audience for years by telling the rich she was coming after 'your Rembrandts, your stock portfolio, your diamonds and your yachts.' In one Democratic debate, she got applause by rubbing her hands together after stating that she would take some of the wealth of fellow candidate John Delaney, a self made millionaire worth $65 million. She has now made good on that threat. The reintroduction of Ultra Millionaire Tax Act would add a 2 percent tax on households worth $50 million to $1 billion and a 3 percent tax on households worth more than $1 billion. Warren is again repeating that talking point of President Joe Biden that billionaires pay less than the average citizen in taxes. That has been repeatedly challenged. The claim is based on dubious accounting. A commonly cited White House study from September, 2021 included unrealized capital gains in its analysis—something that neither wealthy nor middle class citizens are taxed on. Warren and Biden want that to change but it is a false measure on the current tax burden. It is also worth noting that 'the top 1 percent's income share rose from 22.2 percent in 2020 to 26.3 percent in 2021 and its share of federal income taxes paid rose from 42.3 percent to 45.8 percent.' The top 50 percent of all taxpayers paid 97.7 percent federal income taxes. The bottom 50 percent paid the only 2.3 percent. We previously discussed the push in California to impose a retroactive tax on the many citizens and companies fleeing that state due to its high taxes and other problems. Warren wants to do the same nationally. So if businesses are fleeing the country due to these policies, they would have to essentially pay for the freedom in a type of captivity tax. It is incredibly short sighted. We need these businesses and we will not be able to coerce them into saying by trying to make it more expensive to leave. Indeed, the captivity tax only magnifies the impression of a tax system that is becoming an extension of the eat the rich rhetoric used by Warren and others. Politicians have long turned to the 'Eat the rich! battle cry when things are not working out politically or economically. When struggling in the 2020 Democratic presidential primaries, Senator Elizabeth Warren (D-Mass) pledged a wealth tax, declaring that she was coming after 'the diamonds, the yachts and the Rembrandts, too.' Then New York City Mayor Bill DeBlasio, another Democratic contender at the time, was barely registering in the polls when he promised that 'we will tax the hell out of the wealthy.' The Warren proposal would turn the eat the rich rhetoric to an all you can eat tax plan for the government. There are major constitutional concerns raised by the plan to tax unrealized capital gains. However, this is clearly playing well with much of the base of the party. The Wharton Budget Model at the University of Pennsylvania did find that Warren's legislation would raise $2.7 trillion in revenue but it would also reduce capital by 31 percent, depress average hourly wages by 1.2 percent and reduce gross domestic product (GDP) by 1.2 percent in 2050." (Eat The Rich: Warren Plan Would Impose Wealth Tax, Captivity Tax And Allocate $100 Billion For Increasing Audit by Jonathan Turley). Look at America today and see the destruction of the capitalist system and the rejection of the American Dream, the belief that a person can achieve and deserves to achieve success through hard work in a society which values freedom. See people who are successful punished for their success and subjected to a taxation rate of one hundred percent in the name of their paying their fair share in taxes. See the hardworking sacrificed on the altar of the indolent, the intelligent sacrificed on the altar of the ignorant, the ambitious sacrificed on the altar of the shiftless and the successful sacrificed on the altar of the unsuccessful, in the name of achieving the highest human good of universal equality. See successful people expropriated in order to finance government programs to support the lowest classes of society and human bacteria multiplying in the cesspools of the Earth: "The hyper concentration of wealth among a tiny number of multimillionaires and billionaires is a crisis for American capitalism and the American Dream. Wealth inequality is at its highest level since the Gilded Age. The wealth share of the richest 0.1 percent has nearly tripled since the late 1970s. It is time for the ultra millionaires to pay their fair share so that critical government programs can be bolstered to help the everyday American. Our proposal will make a meaningful difference in the lives of Americans who need the most help and bolster our country's shrinking middle class." (Warren, Jayapal, Boyle Introduce Ultra Millionaire Tax On Fortunes Over $50 Million, warren.senate.gov, quoting Representative Brendan Boyle). It was one hundred and forty meters long and four meters high. The top of the wall was lined with smooth pipe, making attempts to scale it difficult. It was reinforced by mesh fencing, signal fencing, antivehicle trenches, barbed wire, beds of nails and one hundred and sixteen watchtowers whose guards fired at people seeking to escape by running through a sand bank called the Death Strip. This was the Berlin Wall separating East Berlin from the West. For three decades symbolizing communism as nothing else did, it was an Iron Curtain of terror whose guards killed two hundred people seeking to escape into the West. The fall of this nightmare known as the Wall of Shame saw the area around it strewn with debris from broken concrete blocks. In the twenty first century the blocks were put together and reassembled in America. There they formed a new Iron Curtain guarded by wealth taxes, confiscatory taxes, exit taxes and captivity taxes. Constructed by the communist establishment in control of the nation, successful people and all people, rich or poor, who desire to live in freedom, have fled from it. Outside its confines, civilized people throughout the world have gazed at it in horror and pronounced the immortal words: Ich bin ein Berliner.

AMERICA'S FREEDOM OPPOSITION GUNNED DOWN

He has been the ruler of Russia since 1999. In power for a quarter of a century, he is the longest serving Russian or Soviet leader since Joseph Stalin. Under his rule, the brief period of freedom in Russia came to an end and the nation reverted to tyranny. Scoring zero on Transparency International's Corruption Perceptions Index, The Economist's Democracy Index, Freedom House's Freedom In The World Index and Reporters Without Borders' Press Freedom Index, Vladimir Putin's Russia can be encapsulated in a single terrifying list. This is the list of political opponents killed on orders from Putin. The list is long and provides a post mortem of the nation. The cause of death of Russia today is Vladimir Putin's murderous dictatorship. Look at the list of Putin's opponents and see Death stalk the land and claim the voices of freedom. Boris Nemtsov, shot dead on a bridge near the Kremlin, February 27, 2015. Sergei Magnitsky, killed by denial of medical care in a Moscow prison on November 16, 2009. Natalya Estimirova, fatally shot in the head and chest in Ingushetia on July 16, 2009. Aleksandr Litvinenko, fatally poisoned by radioactive polonium-210 in London on November 23, 2006. Anna Politkovskaya, shot dead in her apartment building in Moscow on October 6, 2006. Sergei Yushkenov, shot dead in front of his home in Moscow on April 17, 2003. Yvgeny Prigozhin, killed in a planned airplane crash in the village of Kuzhenko on August 23, 2023. Copies of Putin's criminal playbook were made by Satan, carried by his whirlwind out of the country, and placed into the world's former arsenal of freedom. They have been set down in the highest offices of the land and decreed as secret government policy. In a stark, brutal illustration of how far the moral cancer on the West has advanced, the cancer called communism, voted into power in a landslide in the early twentieth century under a ticket marked progressivism, the tactics of a dictator ruling the former world headquarters of communism have been adopted by the establishment of the United States of America and employed to eliminate the last remaining voices of freedom in the country. These voices are led by Donald Trump and they have been subjected to a round the clock barrage of prosecutorial and judicial abuse the likes of which the nation has never seen before, a level of abuse which has sounded the death knell of the rule of law in the nation and inscribed on its tombstone the imagination defying words: Vladimir Putin's America. Look at America today and see the prosecution of the opponents of communism and the prosecution of nobody else. See criminal counts filed against the opponents of communism and against nobody else. See the operation of a two tier system of justice which brings the opponents of communism to its bar and brings nobody else. See Special Counsel Robert Hur refuse to bring criminal charges against Joe Biden for intentionally removing and retaining classified government documents, for transmitting classified information to unauthorized individuals, for destroying evidence of his crimes, and for attempting to obstruct the course of justice by attempting to coerce Hur to change his report inculcating Biden. See Special Counsel Jack Smith prosecute Donald Trump on criminal charges from which Joe Biden was excused. See New York State Attorney General Letitia James publicly state that her mission in office is to prosecute, expropriate and jail Trump in any manner she can without regard to facts, fairness or justice. See New York County Judge Arthur Engoron impose against Trump a fine of half a billion dollars for a victimless crime in which no act of force or fraud was committed, a fine which violates the Constitution's Eighth Amendment ban on excessive fines and cruel and unusual punishment. See Manhattan District Attorney Alvin Bragg prosecute Trump for a federal offense the federal Department of Justice had rejected. See the Justice Department refuse to interview Hunter Biden, search his property or prosecute him for felonies, and see the department give him immunity from jail, because his father is the leader of the establishment. See the Justice Department refuse to prosecute communist terror groups such as Antifa and see it help them sharpen their axes to commit further acts of terror. See the Justice Department refuse to prosecute proDemocrat lawyers such as Rachael Rollins and proDemocrat FBI Director James Comey for leaking classified government documents to the press. See the Justice Department prosecute Donald Trump's National Security Advisor Michael Flynn for making false statements, but prosecuted simply because he was Trump's national security advisor. See a legal system biased, dishonest, reek with double standards and selective prosecutions, weaponized to pursue figures unpopular with the establishment, and fashioned into a tool of totalitarian enslavement in a nation descended into the abyss: "For many citizens, mendacity, or dishonesty, is wafting from various courtrooms around the country. The odor is becoming intolerable for many Americans as selective prosecution is being raised in a wide array of cases. The problem is that courts have made it virtually impossible to use this claim to dismiss counts. Yet there is a disturbing level of merit to some of these underlying objections. For years, conservatives have objected that there is a two tier system of justice in this country. I have long resisted such claims, but it has become increasingly difficult to deny the obvious selective prosecution in a variety of recent cases and opinions. I have long stated that the charges against Trump over documents at Mar a Lago are strong and based on established precedent. However, the recent decision of Special Counsel Robert Hur not to bring criminal charges against President Joe Biden has undermined even that case. Hur described four decades of Biden serially violating laws governing classified documents. The evidence included Biden telling a third party that he had classified material in his house and actually reading from a classified document to his noncleared ghostwriter. There is evidence of an effort to destroy evidence and later an effort of the White House to change the report. There is also Biden's repeated denial of any knowledge or memory of the documents found in nine locations where he worked or lived. Hur ultimately had to justify the lack of charges based on a belief that he could not secure a conviction from a DC jury with an elderly defendant with diminished mental faculties. Although Special Counsel Jack Smith could still proceed on obstruction counts, his prosecution of Trump for the retention and mishandling of national security documents is absurdly in conflict with the treatment Biden is receiving. In New York, the legislature changed the statute of limitations to allow Trump to be sued while New York Attorney General Letitia James effectively ran on a pledge of selectively prosecuting him. She never specified any particular crime, just promising to bag Trump. Ultimately, James used a law in an unprecedented way to secure an absurd penalty of roughly half a billion dollars, even though no one lost a dime because of the Trump loans. Manhattan District Attorney Alvin Bragg has also come up with an unprecedented way of using a state law to effectively prosecute Trump for a federal offense that the Justice Department has already rejected. The same odor has been lingering in the Hunter Biden cases. The Justice Department had reached a ridiculous plea agreement with Hunter Biden that would have allowed for no jail time and a sweeping immunity agreement that would have protected him from all of his other alleged crimes. As the plea agreement fell apart in court, the prosecutor admitted that he had never seen a defendant given such a deal over his long career. This came after the Justice Department had allowed the statute of limitations to run out on major felonies and scuttled efforts to conduct searches and interviews. Even after that embarrassing hearing, the Justice Department was still trying to preserve the agreement. It is not just the Trump and Biden cases where there is a stench of selective prosecution. Consider a few other recent cases. In California, US District Court Judge Cormac J.

Carney issued an opinion that found such evidence of selective prosecution against conservative groups. In considering a far right group, Carney noted that the Justice Department has had sharply different approaches based on the political views of the defendants. Antifa and other leftist groups often see charges dropped, whereas federal prosecutors seek draconian sentences against conservative defendants. 'Such selective prosecution leaves the troubling impression that the government believes speech on the left more deserving of protection than speech on the right. The government remains free to prosecute those, like Defendants, who allegedly use violence to suppress First Amendment rights. But it cannot ignore others, equally culpable, because Defendants' speech and beliefs are more offensive. The Constitution forbids such selective prosecution,' Carney noted. That treatment was equally glaring when federal prosecutors convicted an Antifa supporter who took an ax to the door of Senator John Hoeven's office in Fargo. He was given no jail time, and the FBI even returned his ax. " (The Odor Of Mendacity: 2024 Could Turn On Smell Of Selective Prosecution From Georgia To New York by Jonathan Turley). "A great deal of the background to this story is accurate. SMERSH, a contraction of Smiert Spionam—Death to Spies—exists and remains today the most secret department of the Soviet government." (Author's Note by Ian Fleming). The story is From Russia, With Love, the fifth novel by Ian Fleming featuring British Secret Service agent James Bond. The story is about a plot by SMERSH to assassinate Bond and discredit his organization. Described in terrifying detail by Fleming, the killing of the opposition migrated from the Soviet Union to Vladimir Putin's Russia and landed in America in the twenty first century.

BRITAIN'S REDS SHUT DOWN MUSEUM

In 1816, Richard FitzWilliam, an Anglo-Irish nobleman in the Peerage of Ireland, founded a museum. Located in the city of Cambridge, it housed one of the finest collections of antiquities and modern art in the world. It housed over a half a million objects which illustrated world history and art from ancient times to the present. It housed works by Monet, Picasso, Rubens, van Gogh, Rembrandt, Cezanne, Van Dyck, Canaletto, and featured relief sculptures from the ancient cities of Persepolis and Nimrud. For two centuries, this flagship member of the University of Cambridge Museums enthralled visitors with its spectacular collections comprising masterpiece paintings and renowned historical artefacts. In the twenty first century, a tidal wave swept into the FitzWilliam Museum, smashed its collections and shut it down. This was no natural disaster but a man made event. It was a tidal wave which had swept into traditions and institutions across the West and scattered them like broken glass. It was a tidal wave voted into power in a landslide in the twentieth century under the guise of progressivism, but signifying the forces of civilizational collapse, it was anything but progressive. It was a movement of regression, moral, social and political regression, and rejecting the traditions and institutions bequeathed by the Enlightenment, it sought to take mankind back the nameless eons of tribal history and caveman violence. This movement was founded in the nineteenth century by Karl Marx but burgeoned into a significant cultural force in the twentieth century. Capturing the hearts and minds of the masses, this movement of Marxism mutated into a triple headed monster in the middle of the twentieth century and commenced a rampage as a fire breathing nightmare known as Gender, Race and Class Politics. In the twenty first century, its generation of intense heat caused the flow of powerful convection currents through the air, which in turn led to strong winds and storms and generated tidal waves. These tidal waves swept into the FitzWilliam Museum and claimed one more victim, captured one more cultural asset, in their fearsome mission of civilizational destruction. In the twenty first century, the FitzWilliam Museum was shut down, not to effect repairs, but to do damage to the West, and make one more move to render the West decayed, ragged, skeletal and unrecognizable in its grave. Look inside the FitzWilliam Museum and see a building whose electricity has been cut off, whose lights have been disabled and whose collections have been broken into pieces. See the museum proclaim that works by the Western masters are products of white racism and their exhibition makes blacks feel unsafe and disrespected. A progressive museum selects works of art on the basis of the gender, race, class and politics of the artist, and practices its discrimination in the name of diversity, equity and inclusion. A progressive museum is a Marxist museum governed by policies, procedures, strategies and action plans for world revolution. A progressive museum educates, trains and indoctrinates its staff in the principles of gender, race and class politics. A progressive museum features an organizational culture modeled after the communist party in which the director serves as general secretary enforcing the people's party line of tribal justice. A progressive museum features exhibitions, displays, collections, acquisitions, collaborations, courses, projects, partnerships, stakeholders, staff, visitors, communications and research programs which aim at one thing and one thing alone. Rejecting the traditional canons of art, beauty and Enlightenment culture, they aim at the reduction of civilization to a malarial, mosquito infested marshland presided over by cohorts of radical women, nonwhites, indigenous groups and the poor: "At the Fitzwilliam Museum, we pledge to champion equity, diversity, inclusion, antiracism and accessibility: 1. We are committed to fostering an environment that welcomes visitors and staff from all backgrounds, values lived experience, and where everyone feels safe and respected. 2. We will actively promote dialogue, research and exchange that stimulates diverse perspectives and participation, and that is accessible for all. 3. We will proactively identify and address inequalities, challenge discriminatory practice and embed principles of antiracism, wherever they appear across our organization, underpinning this effort with robust policies, procedures, strategies and action plans. 4. We will ensure staff at all levels of the organization have access to meaningful and ongoing education, training and learning to positively influence our practice, to continuously shape our organizational culture, and to strengthen our EDI commitments, so that together we can identify and address systemic barriers. 5. We seek to be actively antiracist in action--not just in words. 6. We pledge that our exhibitions and displays, collections and new acquisitions, collaborations, policies, learning initiatives, projects and research programs, partnerships, stakeholder engagement, and communications will reflect and promote equity, diversity, inclusivity, antiracist practice and ensure access for all. 7. We pledge to evolve and improve as an organization, in our EDI policies, strategies and practice, by ensuring our visitors, staff, volunteers, communities, partners and Syndicate members can all help shape our principles of equity, diversity, and inclusion." (FitzWilliam Museum, website, Equity, Diversity and Inclusion). Look inside the FitzWilliam Museum and see the reduction of a hallowed institution for the exhibition of art and culture into a fiery pulpit blasting out political indoctrination and the regimentation of thought. See the promotion of black identity. See the promotion of gender identity. See the promotion of gay and lesbian identity. See the promotion of transgender identity. See the promotion of radicalism, wokism and the overthrow of liberal democracy. See museum visitors treated like wayward children in need of adult education in the principles of a virulent antiEnlightenment ideology. See the condemnation of capitalism as a system of slavery and empire subjugating women, nonwhites and the poor. See buckets of black ink, marked political correctness, thrown at a two century old, world renowned art collection and thrown into the faces of the public. See every wall, panel, gallery and display case shouting out a theme as repetitive as it is violent. Rejecting the values of reason and individual rights civilized people have fought to defend for thousands of years, this is the theme of hatred, fanaticism, dictatorship and destruction in the service of tribal identity, depicted in artworks with Marxist content: "In a room called identity, eighteenth century portraits by William Hogarth of a wealthy merchant family are going back on display. But now they will share space at the Fitzwilliam Museum in Cambridge with a subversive contemporary portrait by black British artist Joy Labinjo, that imagines eighteenth century African abolitionist Olaudah Equiano and his mixed race family. In another room, labeled interiors, Ethel Walker's 1916 painting Silence of the Ravine—thought to be the earliest female nude painted by an openly lesbian artist in the UK—is waiting to be exhibited for the first time. Nearby, a wall of paintings dating from the 1720s to the 1920s all depict the same activity, once thought to be scandalous and unnatural: women reading. When the university museum reopens its main painting galleries on March 15 after a major five year refurbishment, its director, Luke Syson, is hoping that his radical shake up of the way its world renowned permanent collection is displayed will attract masses of visitors—but not masses of controversy. 'I would love to think that there's a way of telling these larger, more inclusive histories that doesn't feel as if it requires a pushback from those who try to suggest that any interest at all in work by women artists or artists of color—or subject matter that takes us into the world of LGBT culture—is being radical chic or what would now be called woke,' said Syson. 'Being inclusive and representative shouldn't be controversial; it should be enriching. We should all welcome the opportunities to understand each other better through the eyes of great makers and artists.' Recent big rehangs of permanent collections, for example by the Tate and the National Portrait Gallery, were denounced by art critics as 'preachy' and 'fundamentally dull' attempts to tell people what to think, imposing 'current concerns with slavery, empire, sexual identity and gender' on to famous art in a 'glib', 'patronizing' and 'belittling' way. In the FitzWilliam's new display, which Syson said 'suggests some new ways of looking, without insisting on them' the museum's much loved, iconic works hang close to important 'new discoveries' from its 208 year old collection, by lesser known painters, and major new acquisitions by eminent contemporary artists such as Labinjo, Barbara Walker and Jake Grewal. Gone are the somewhat esoteric rooms filled with chronological displays of British and French masterpieces from the 18th, 19th and 20th centuries. Instead, each room has a simple theme, explained on an introductory panel. Paintings dating back to the 1600s from across Europe hang in the same room as contemporary works, to bring them into 'thought provoking dialogues' with each other, said the curator of the new rehang, Dr Rebecca Birrell." (Inclusivity Shouldn't Be Controversial': Will A Radical Art Rehang Give Cambridge An Unwanted Woke Row? by Donna Ferguson). Time: 1966 to 1976. Place: China. A propaganda poster looms across the sky, its caption reading: The Chinese People's Liberation Army Is The Great School Of Mao Zedong Thought. This was the time of the Cultural Revolution, a movement of mass cultural destruction in the service of Marxism, a movement of destruction without precedent in the history of mankind. Perpetrated by Mao Zedong's Red Guards, this ten year night of broken glass came to end when Mao died. In twenty first century Britain, in the nation which brought freedom as a system to the West, the Red Guards have reconstituted themselves and are back in business. Smashing the classics of Western art as manifestations of oppression, the oppressive structures of reason, science, capitalism, colonialism, patriarchy and white supremacy, they have taken over the FitzWilliam Museum.

AN ANTIUNIVERSE CALLED AMERICA

In Greek mythology, Tartarus is a deep abyss and dungeon of horror. It is the place where souls are judged after death and the evil receive eternal punishment. A bronze anvil dropped from the heavens would fall nine days before it reached the Earth, and would fall another nine days before it reached Tartarus. The famous myth collector Apollodorus describes Tartarus: "It is a gloomy place in Hades as far distant from the Earth as the Earth is distant from the sky." (Bibliotheca by Apollodorus). This negative universe in which everything good is held to be evil and everything evil is held to be good has come alive in a land in which the naive and untutored had least expected it to come alive. They had least expected it because they could not imagine that a land once venerated as the world's arsenal of virtue and freedom could ever descend into an arsenal of evil and tyranny. They have since been educated that the cancer of cultural degeneration spares no nation high or low and is a merciless pursuer of the weak and the mighty. They have since been educated that no nation is immune from this cancer unless it is prepared to fight it tooth and nail and to die in defense of civilization. They have since been educated that a nation grown weary and exhausted is a nation deceased in all but name, whether the name of this nation be Zimbabwe or the United States of America, and is a failed nation existing as a zombie in a land of the living dead. In the twenty first century, the fall of the mightiest of nations has occurred, and the United States of America has descended into a dungeon of horror which worships at the altar of evil and tyranny. This fall was a century in the making and commenced in the early years of the twentieth century when the people rejected the traditions and institutions bequeathed to them by the Enlightenment via their Founding Fathers, and embraced religions of various stripes and varieties. The rejection of reason and the embrace of religion is the hallmark of civilizations in a state of degeneration; it struck ancient Rome fifteen hundred years ago and placed the manifestations of irrationality present at that time, Christianity, barbarism, and the emperors and their mobs, upon the throne of power; and in the twenty first century, in the nation once viewed as the successor to Rome in its defense of freedom, it has struck, and rendered that nation morally and spiritually unrecognizable. Look at America in the present day and see a nation turned upside down and placed into a state in which good becomes evil and evil becomes good, a state brought about by the embrace of religion, a state which has brought Tartarus back to life. Look at America today and see two religions, Marxism and Christianity, turn morality on its head, vie for power and fight over the dead body of reason.

Elections Neither Free Nor Fair. The American people's embrace of Marxism resulted in the theft of 2020 presidential election and the installation of the Marxist candidate, Joe Biden, as president of the United States. The election was stolen by millions of votes manufactured for Joe Biden through ballot harvesting, drop boxes, extended early voting, extended late voting, the refusal to create paper ballots to audit electronic ballots, the refusal to establish voter identification requirements, and voting machines programmed to count votes for Joe Biden and count votes for nobody else. The election was stolen by the refusal of courts, including the United States Supreme Court, to examine evidence of electoral fraud or unconstitutional state actions, and their decision to dismiss cases on spurious grounds unrelated to merit. The United States Supreme Court dismissed a suit brought by Texas against Pennsylvania, Georgia, Michigan and Wisconsin exposing unconstitutional executive actions in these states, actions which usurped legislative authority mandated by the Constitution. The Court dismissed the suit on the grounds that Texas has no standing, no right to sue, no legal interest in how other states conduct their elections. Legal scholars and ordinary people alike were left aghast and reeled back in horror at this ruling because they knew that when any one state violates the Constitution, every state has standing to sue in the name of the public interest and the preservation of the rule of law. They knew that Texas has standing to sue to enforce the Constitution because no state should be allowed, for any reason and under any circumstances, to violate the Constitution with impunity, lest the entire nation descend into a lawless jungle. They knew that when one state violates the Constitution, it becomes an East Germany behind an Iron Curtain, and the rest of the nation becomes a West Germany, which beholds it under the famous words, as tragic as they are immortal, Ich bein ein Berliner: "Democrats and mainstream media like to claim that about sixty judges found no election fraud or irregularities in the 2020 election. The truth is that the vast majority of those judges, including the US Supreme Court, did not investigate the merits of those cases. Instead, they found legal technical reasons like 'lack of standing' to dismiss them without any investigations into actual election fraud." (Will Dems Take Over The House This Year To Stop Trump? By Michael Master).

The Persecution Of Freedom Fighters. The American people's embrace of Marxism has seen the weaponization of the law to a level never before seen in the nation, a level which has evicted the nation from the Western community of nations and sent it crashing into the front ranks of lawless regimes such as Russia, China, Iran and Venezuela. It has seen Marxist jurisdictions across the nation manufacture crimes against the national leader of the freedom opposition, Donald Trump, in an attempt to jail him for life. It has seen the refusal of these jurisdictions to prosecute Joe Biden for running a global influence peddling operation while he was vice president, an operation attested by Biden's former business associates: "During Chairman Comer's questioning, Biden family business associates Tony Bobulinski and Jason Galanis confirmed Joe Biden was involved in his family's influence peddling schemes. Representative Comer: During the 118th Congress, this Committee has investigated Joe Biden's involvement in his family's influence peddling schemes around the world. Mr. Bobulinski, was Joe Biden involved with any of your business dealings with Hunter Biden and James Biden? Mr Bobulinski: Yes he was. Representative Comer: Mr Galanis, are you aware of any times Hunter Biden used Joe Biden, with Joe Biden's knowledge, to benefit their business? Mr. Galanis: Yes." (Hearing Wrap Up: Witnesses Expose Joe Biden's Involvement in His Family's Corrupt Influence Peddling Schemes, March 20, 2024, House Oversight Committee, website).

The weaponization of the law has seen the the jailing of thousands of people who attempted to stage an insurrection at the United States Capital Building on January 6, 2021. The people made the attempt in order to stop the certification of a fraudulent and unconstitutional election after they were unable to obtain peaceful redress of grievances. They made the attempt justified by a principle known to civilized people for thousands of years. This is the principle that when peaceful means to correct injustice and remove tyranny have failed, it is the right and the duty of the victims to overthrow the regime by force of arms. This principle guided the attempted insurrections staged across Eastern Europe against the Marxist regimes in power during the Cold War; it guided the Warsaw Ghetto Uprising in Poland in 1943, staged to stop the transport of the population into the gas chambers of the Majdanek and Treblinka extermination camps; and it guided the American insurrectionists on January 6, whose cause of constitutional government and free and fair elections had been rebuffed by the courts: "Democrats accuse Republicans of being lawless, a claim epitomized by their massively lawless campaign against the GOP's current leader, President Donald J. Trump, who in a short period of time has been accused of over 100 different crimes in left wing jurisdictions nationwide—all in an effort to block his reelection and make sure he dies in prison. Yet despite the prevailing Opposite Land narrative, Democrats have proven to be the lawless party, abusing America's best in the world legal system in its wild persecution of Trump. The truth of this assessment was affirmed recently by the Supreme Court's humiliating unanimous decision annihilating one of the Democrats' lawfare cases against Trump. Ironically, while Democrats claim the 45th president is a big time criminal, in reality it is Joe Biden, America's 46th president, who heads up an actual crime family involving at least nine family members, as House Oversight Committee Chairman James Comer has revealed. Far worse than Democrats' persecution of Donald Trump and simultaneous defense of an epically corrupt man like Joe Biden is their mass criminal prosecutions and imprisonment of hundreds of innocent, patriotic Americans for simply protesting the theft of the 2020 election. In so doing, the Biden administration has embraced the kind of unthinkable political weaponization of the legal system that previously was associated with the most brutal and corrupt Third World dictators. Ultimately, the hundreds of unjust January 6 prosecutions, convictions and lengthy incarcerations are simply part of Democrats' appalling campaign to brand not just Trump, but his supporters, as terrorists and insurrectionists attempting to overthrow America's constitutional system of government." (America Has Morphed Into OPPOSITE LAND, World Net Daily, March 19, 2024).

The Outlawing Of Abortion. The degeneration of America has seen the rise of a revitalized Christian movement. This movement has installed six judges on the United States Supreme and convened a Conference of Catholic Bishops within their chambers. Obeying orders handed down from the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, these judges issued a landmark ruling on June 24, 2022. In the case Dobbs vs Jackson Women's Health Organizarion, the Court ruled that the First Amendment to the Constiution, which constructs a wall of separation between church and state and prohibits the state establishment of religion, does not exist. The Court ruled that the states have a right to declare that at the moment of human conception, at the moment of union between a sperm and an ovum, at the moment of creation of one cell zygote, a mystical, supernatural soul appears which is equal to an actual human person possessing forty trillion cells, and the destruction of this zygote is an act of murder. The Court ruled that the states have a right to declare that ordinary people cannot see this supernatural soul appearing at the moment of conception by virtue of the fact that they possess a properly functioning visual system, and are blind because they have eyes. Postmortem. In photography, a negative is an image of total inversion, in which light areas appear dark and dark areas appear light. A negative color image is in addition color reversed, in which red areas appear cyan, green areas appear magenta, and blue areas appear yellow. In the twenty first century, cultural pathologists have conducted a postmortem on America. As part of their examination, they have taken a photograph of the deceased nation. The print reveals a terrifying state of total moral inversion and the worship of darkness.

ISLAMIST RED GUARDS ATTACK AMSTERDAM

It is known as the Venice of the North for its culture and canals and is a UNESCO World Heritage sight. During the Dutch Golden Age of the seventeenth century, it was a leading port, an economic powerhouse, and a world center for finance, trade and the arts. But it was more than this. It was venerated throughout the world as a paragon of liberalism, tolerance and the protection of free speech. This city is Amsterdam and for centuries it had enjoyed special honor and occupied the front ranks of alpha cities of the West. In the twenty first century, this capital and most populous city in the Netherlands has been razed to the ground by a mighty storm. It has been flattened and shattered beyond recognition and its debris lie in the graveyard of failed cities and nations. The storm which flooded and destroyed Amsterdam, against which its famous, founding dams were of no avail, is the storm which has submerged the West. This storm was set into motion in the early years of the twentieth century by the people in Europe and America who abandoned reason and freedom, which for centuries had shined for the oppressed from a beacon marked the Enlightenment, and voted in a landslide to place religion into power under a ticket marked progressivism. The diametrical opposite of true progressivism, this religion was a movement of social, moral, spiritual and political regression into the Stone Age of tribal savagery. This movement is known as Marxism and the tribe its original version exalted, peddled by its nineteenth century founder Karl Marx, was class, and in particular the class it called the proletariat. The first Marxist storm of class war would be joined in the mid twentieth century by the neoMarxist storms of gender war and race war, and these three storms together combined to destroy liberal traditions and institutions in the twenty first century, and raise the battle cry for a holocaust against their targeted enemies: the demographic of successful white males. This triple headed, fire breathing, Marxist monster called Gender, Race and Class Politics is a bloodthirsty storm on a rampage fueled by popular hatred and discontent, a storm whose violent behavior has taken down Amsterdam and taken down the West, and dug a mass grave whose tombstone reads: Death by moral exhaustion and collapse. Blinded by white hot hatred of freedom, the Gender, Race and Class monster has reached out and made common cause with an enemy of freedom originating outside the West, whose rampage commenced in the desert wastelands of the East. This second monster is known as Islam. Working in concert, these nightmare creatures from the West and from the East have attacked Amsterdam. The Marxist establishment in control of the Netherlands has let Islam through the gates of this hallowed city, and weaponized the nation's legal system to persecute the vanishing minority within which opposes the reigning popular tyrannies whose flags are painted with the Hammer and Sickle and the Star and Crescent. Look at what these enemies of reason and freedom have done to the city in which the stock exchange was born in 1602, and see the city's transformation into a savage jungle watched over by the Red Guards of political correctness. See its transformation into a mosque of Marxism and a party congress of Islam in which the stock exchange, the science exchange, the reason exchange and the freedom exchange lie buried forever. Look at Amsterdam today and see a city criminalize criticism of Islam and fill up prisons with the critics. See a city march in favor of Islam and march against freedom of speech. See a city fuel a rampage of jihadist murders. See a city imprison freedom of thought behind a barbed wire fence marked Islamist devoutness, sensitivity and political correctness. See a city descend into a wild mob demanding the return of Hitler's death squads and the launching of a second holocaust, now under the battle cry, Viva, viva Intifada!: "Until the other day I'd never heard of the Dutch comedian Hans Teeuwen, but I became an instant fan after reading, in a 2016 Guardian profile that I dug up online, that after the 2004 jihadist murder of filmmaker and raconteur Theo van Gogh (who, it appeared, had been a friend of his) Teeuwen took a break from comedy to become, in the words of Guardian reporter Brian Logan, 'a vocal campaigner for freedom of speech—and against Islam, which he sees as opposed to it.' Logan quoted Teeuwen as calling Islam 'the most dangerous subject there is, the biggest taboo. And, I'm afraid, the biggest enemy of free speech.' Logan noted that after the prosecution, earlier that year, of the German comic Jan Bohmermann for mocking Recep Tayyip Erdogan (at the time, German law criminalized insults directed at foreign heads of state), Teeuwen, out of solidarity with Bohmermann, told a Dutch TV interviewer that he'd been a customer of Erdogan back when the Turkish president was a boy prostitute in an Istanbul bordello. Simply by telling this joke, Teeuwen was risking arrest in his own country. He didn't give a damn. It was striking to see a writer for the Guardian, that most PC of British newspapers, applauding the 'antiPC' Teeuwen for 'star[ing] down piety, sensitivity and your expectations of comedy with a ferocious glare. You end up just marvelling at his control, his shamelessness, and at the different ways he has of making us laugh.' Logan compared Teeuwen to one of my own favorite standups, Doug Stanhope, noting that Teeuwen, like Stanhope, 'often says objectionable things,' but better 'a comic who makes me puzzle, interrogate my own opinions, laugh with astonishment and feel the ground slip from under my feet, than one with whom I always agree.' Two years later, when Teeuwen performed in Oslo, the headline of a news story in Dagbladet zeroed in on Teeuwen's readiness to challenge 'the biggest taboo': 'Islam—Critical Comic Visits Norway.' Teeuwen, wrote Dagbladet's Knut-Eirik Lindblad, 'is demonstrably fearless.' Teeuwen proved this yet again the other day. On March 12, he posted a video on Instagram in which he wore a black wig, held a white flower, and imitated Amsterdam mayor Femke Halsemas, who, two days earlier, speaking at the opening of the national Holocaust Museum, had defended the free speech rights of an unruly mob who'd marred the event by waving Palestine flags and chanting 'Viva, viva Intifada!' " (Policing Speech In Amsterdam by Bruce Bawer). Look at Amsterdam today and see a city submerged in a tidal wave of proPalestinian protestors. See a city proclaim itself antiIsrael and declare war on the Jewish state. See a city smash synagogues, tear up Jewish neighborhoods and advocate the extermination of Jews. See a city proclaim that Israel is a genocidal state because it is a capitalist state and must be put on trial for war crimes. See a city arm Islamist activists to attack the police and burn their automobiles. See a city reject its noble heritage and march with the Prince of Darkness whose banners read terror, assassination, national socialism, communism, Hamas and the overthrow of liberal democracy: "Thousands of proPalestinian protesters converged on Amsterdam on Sunday as the Dutch city unveiled the National Holocaust Museum in a ceremony attended by Willem-Alexander of the Netherlands and Israeli President Isaac Herzog. Riot police were forced to be deployed to hold back over 2,000 antiIsrael protesters as they attempted to march on the Portuguese Synagogue in Amsterdam during the opening of the new National Holocaust Museum. Demonstrators were seen waving Palestinian flags, carrying signs accusing Israel of 'genocide' in Gaza, and calling for Israeli President Herzog to be tried at the International Criminal Court (ICC) for war crimes, Dutch public broadcaster NOS reported. Clashes with the police were also witnessed, while some activists were seen climbing on top of police vehicles. According to the De Telegraaf newspaper, the activists also took to shooting fireworks and throwing eggs at the police. They also were seen plastering stickers on police vans with the face of Herzog with the text 'wanted'. King Willem-Alexander, who gave a speech at the opening ceremony held at the synagogue, was booed as he officially opened the museum's building. For his part, President Herzog used the occasion to once again call upon Hamas in Gaza to release the hostages taken from Israel during the October 7th terror attacks by the jihadist Palestinian group. 'Let's pray in this house of prayer for the release of the hostages,' Herzog said. During his speech, the Israeli president invoked World War II, saying that too many people in the Netherlands stood by as Jews were being gathered up to be exterminated. However, Herzog also praised the courage of the people who resisted the nazis, recounting an instance of two Dutch citizens who risked their lives by hiding Jews. Herzog said that after the war, the Jews housed by the Dutch later moved to Israel and that their grandson died fighting to protect the Jewish state. The Israeli president's presence at the unveiling of the museum drew the ire of local activists, who accused him of war crimes over his country's military response to the October 7th terror attacks, in which Hamas terrorists slaughtered around 1,200 people in Israel and took hundreds more captive." (ProPalestinian Protesters Swarm Holocaust Museum Opening in Amsterdam by Kurt Zindulka). She was fifteen years old. At this age, boys and girls begin thinking about their future, their careers, their partners and their families. They begin planning for a life of purpose and achievement. Not this girl. Deprived of a childhood and deprived of a future, she is sitting in a concentration camp waiting to die. In March 1945, she died at Bergen Belsen. She and her family had been deported by the Gestapo from Amsterdam in August 1944. Her name was Anne Frank and the killers of this Jewish girl, whose diary broke the world's heart, have returned to Amsterdam and are back in business. Their rifles fire round the clock. This time around, the names of the rounds have changed. They are marked Marxism and Islam and they define Amsterdam today.

THE MEANING OF DUE PROCESS

This case is decided upon an economic theory which a large part of the country does not entertain. If it were a question whether I agreed with that theory, I should desire to study it further and long before making up my mind. But I do not conceive that to be my duty, because I strongly believe that my agreement or disagreement has nothing to do with the right of a majority to embody their opinions in law. It is settled by various decisions of this court that state constitutions and state laws may regulate life in many ways which we, as legislators, might think as injudicious, or, if you like, as tyrannical, as this, and which, equally with this, interfere with the liberty to contract. Sunday laws and usury laws are ancient examples. A more modern one is the prohibition of lotteries. The liberty of the citizen to do as he likes so long as he does not interfere with the liberty of others to do the same, which has been a shibboleth for some well-known writers, is interfered with by school laws, by the Post Office, by every state or municipal institution which takes his money for purposes thought desirable, whether he likes it or not. The 14th Amendment does not enact Mr Herbert Spencer's Social Statics. Thus spoke Oliver Wendell Holmes in his dissenting opinion in the case Lochner vs New York (1905). In the history of Western jurisprudence, no greater falsehood has ever be uttered and no greater denial of the rule of law or the meaning of due process has ever been advanced. The Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution which Justice Holmes references states as follows: "All persons born or naturalized in the United States, and subject to the jurisdiction thereof, are citizens of the United States and of the State wherein they reside. No State shall make or enforce any law which shall abridge the privileges or immunities of citizens of the United States; nor shall any State deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws." Due process of law. A fundamental legal principle proclaimed on the pages of Magna

Carta and championed for centuries by liberal jurisprudence. Over the past one hundred years, it has been reinterpreted by totalitarians to refer to the principle of procedural correctness, and has in consequence been deployed to sanction all manner of state interference in the rights of the individual. The principle of procedural correctness and the principle of due process of law are as opposed to each other as night is opposed to day and slavery is opposed to freedom. The principle of procedural correctness states that a law is valid merely if it has been duly enacted by a legislature following the correct procedures. A court evaluating the law from the standpoint of procedural correctness merely evaluates whether the legislature had the authority to pass the law and whether it followed the correct procedures in doing so. By contrast, the principle of due process goes beyond mere procedure and states that a law is valid only if it is fair and just, and though a law may meet procedural requirements in its passage, it is invalid if it is unfair and unjust. The notion of due process of law, as opposed to mere process of law, refers to a process of law which is due, which is due to a person, which is due to a person who, as a person, is born free. The history of this notion is as old as English freedom and for centuries made England the freest nation on Earth, and for a century, before it was rejected in America, made America the freest nation on Earth. Listen to clause 39 of the Magna Carta, issued in 1215 by King John of England: "No free man shall be seized or imprisoned, or stripped of his rights or possessions, or outlawed or exiled, or deprived of his standing in any other way, nor will we proceed with force against him, or send others to do so, except by the lawful judgment of his equals or by the law of the land." The phrase by the law of the land means by the principles of fairness and justice or it means nothing whatever. Absent the requirement to respect fairness and justice, it would mean that the state could deprive the individual of all his rights. Listen to the statutory version of this clause, passed in 1354 during the reign of Edward III of England: "No man of what state or condition he be, shall be put out of his lands or tenements nor taken, nor disinherited, nor put to death, without he be brought to answer by due process of law." By the process of law due to him as a free born person. Listen to Edward Coke, Chief Justice of the Court of Common Pleas in England, who in 1608 wrote in Institutes Of Law In England: "No man shall be deprived [of his rights] but by the law of the land, that is, by the common law, statute law or custom of England, that is, to speak it once and for all, by the due course and process of law." By the course and process of law due to him as a free born moral agent and not an animal. Listen to Edward Coke rule in 1610 in the case Thomas Bonham v College of Physicians: "And it appears in our books, that in many cases, the common law will control Acts of Parliament, and sometimes adjudge them to be utterly void; for when an act of Parliament is against common right and reason, or repugnant, or impossible to be performed, the common law will control it, and adjudge such an Act to be void. Some statutes are made against law and right, which those who made them perceiving, would not put them in execution." Laws passed by correct legislative procedures are nonetheless invalid if they violate common reason, common law, common right, common fairness and common justice. Due process of law, the doctrine which ensures that laws are not only procedurally valid but are fair and just, and empowers courts to nullify laws if they are unfair and unjust, means that no person shall be deprived of his life, liberty or property unless he commits an act of force or fraud against another. A law which deprives a person of his life, liberty or property in the absence of any commission of force or fraud is inherently unfair and unjust, or else the notions of fairness and justice mean nothing whatever. A law which deprives a person who did not commit any act of force or fraud against another of his rights is a law which says that nothing is due to a person. It denies the fact that a person is born free and in possession of rights; he is not born into a state of slavery in possession of no rights; and being a free born person, he has processes of law due to him or owed to him as a free person. The process of law due to him and owed to him as a free person is the requirement that he not be deprived of his rights if he has done no harm to another person and not committed an act of force or fraud. Due process of law means that a person may not be deprived of his life unless he has committed an act of force or fraud. It means he may not be deprived of his liberty unless he has committed an act of force or fraud. It means that he may not be deprived of his property unless he has committed an act of force or fraud. It means he has the right to freely conduct a business, to discriminate on the basis of gender, race or any other category on his own property or in his own business, to freely buy or sell his labor, to work or not to work, to speak freely, and to move where he wants to move and live where he wants to live, unless he has committed an act of force or fraud. It means that the state cannot create a category of victimless crimes or crimes in which no person can be shown to have been the victim of force or fraud. It means that a woman has a right to get an abortion unless she has committed an act of force or fraud, on the grounds that a one cell zygote which appears at the moment of human conception is not a person and is not equal to a forty trillion cell, actual, born human being. It is not a person in the judgment of people with sane minds and functioning eyes. It is not a person because there is no such thing as a supernatural soul, a entity which exists by virtue of the fact that it cannot be seen, and a person is not blind when he sees because he does not see the highest reality. Because the zygote which is created at the moment of conception is not a person, its destruction is not an act of murder, and abortion is thus a right. Establishing the right to life, liberty and property, and all the rights these entail, from the right to freely contract one's services to the right to get an abortion, the principle of due process establishes the libertarian, laissez faire capitalist society envisioned by such English philosophers as John Locke in his Two Treatises of Government, and Herbert Spencer in his Social Statics. In the nineteenth century, the principle of due process conceived as a principle of fairness and justice establishing a libertarian society was rejected in Britain, and in the twentieth century during the New Deal, it was rejected in America. In both nations, the principle of due process was reinterpreted to refer only to procedural correctness in the enactment of laws, and the principle of processes due to a person by virtue of the fact that he is born free was replaced by the principle of parliamentary supremacy, the common good, the "organic character of the law" and brazen mob rule. In the totalitarian order which has spread throughout the West in the twenty first century, no processes of fairness or justice are held to be due to a person by virtue of the fact that he is born free, and all the rights guaranteed to him in a libertarian society are held to be repealable by the legislature. In the totalitarian order which has spread throughout the West in the twenty first century, it is held to be fair and just to deprive a person of his rights to life, liberty and property although he has committed no harm against any other, simply if the correct procedures are followed in the deprivation. In the totalitarian order which has spread throughout the West in the twenty first century, the category of victimless crimes, pseudocrimes which have ensnared everyone from Donald Trump, forced to pay a fine of a half a billion dollars to New York State for an act of overvaluation of loan collateral which defrauded no banks, to a shop owner who seeks to discriminate on the basis of race or gender in his own shop, to a woman seeking to get an abortion, has composed the sorry epitaph of civilization.

BLACK POWER VERSUS THE CLASSICS

Bildersturm. Beeldenstorm. Furie Iconoclaste. The Great Iconoclasm. These are names in four languages for a terrifying outbreak of destruction which occurred in Europe in the sixteenth century. Entering Catholic churches, mobs of Protestants smashed and defaced artworks, church fittings, church libraries and church decorations in a wave of vandalism which left the churches gutted, bare and empty. The mobs left no nation untouched and their brazen criminality, sweeping from Scotland through to Switzerland to the Low Countries to the Holy Roman Empire, was the shame of Europe. In the twenty first century, the vandals are back in business with only the colors and flags changed. Today's vandals are black power activists and their target is the study of the Greco-Roman classics in universities, symbols of the rationalist culture which they hate and despise with a fury which knows no bounds.

Today's vandals are a part of a monster which has been on the loose in the West since the mid twentieth century. This monster emerged from the depths of a religion founded in the nineteenth century by Karl Marx. The religion he founded was tribalism and it championed the class above the individual, constructed a master class called the proletariat, and advocated the extermination of an enemy class called the bourgeois. In the mid twentieth century, the founder's class tribalism was complemented by two additions, by gender tribalism and race tribalism, and together these three religions formed a nightmare creature called Gender, Race and Class Politics brought to life by the surging currents of Marxist electricity. It left the laboratory, located in the dark mountains of hate, and has been on a rampage for the past half century. In the present day, the black power face of this monster has declared war on the study of the classics. Look at its campaign of vandalism and see the Marxist gravediggers of civilization finish their task and plant a tombstone on the grave of the West, reading Death By Mental Collapse. Listen to the neoMarxist voices of black power proclaim that progressive political theory is called critical race theory. According to this theory, the legacies of the Enlightenment, reason, science and liberal democracy, must be criticized from the standpoint of race and be replaced by a regime of race Marxism and the promotion of black swastika politics. A progressive society is ruled by a black master race which has expropriated whites of all their wealth, deprived them of all their rights and put them into concentration camps. Listen to the neoMarxist voices of black power proclaim that the classics of Greco-Roman literature are pages of white supremacy and must be burned. Greco-Roman statues are carved representations of white supremacy and must be smashed. Greco-Roman culture was a lash of white colonialism and it must be vilified. The Greco-Roman values of universalism, objective truth and human essentialism, which regards man as a rational animal, are pretentious, dogmatic, dangerous and opposed to the true reality of race, and the differences between races, which flow inexorably through the currents of history and alone give meaning to life. A progressive society downgrades human reason and elevates race as the foundation of human existence. A progressive university has eliminated the study of universal human values and teaches students the primacy of race and ethnicity in the determination of truth and morality. The Greco-Roman doctrine of universal truth is a white supremacist ideology. The highest form of scholarship is politicized scholarship which studies, researches, transmits and agitates for the gospel of black racial supremacy. The study of the classics is the study of whiteness and must be abolished. A progressive university is managed by masters, mentors, associates, postdoctoral assistants and full professors forming an army dedicated, one and all, to indoctrinating students in the religion of race, blood and the black will to power. A progressive society is a racialized society which has abolished individual rights, disenfranchised the white population, and voted a black communist dictatorship into power. Capitalism is a system of white settler colonialism. The study of the classics must be transformed into an assault on the classics in the name of racial inclusion, racial scholarship and a communist color revolution. A progressive university is a training program in which students develop the skills necessary to disrupt classrooms, occupy campuses, foment riots in the streets and overthrow free institutions in the name of black power. The highest form of teaching and scholarship is racist teaching and racist scholarship which manufactures historical falsehoods about whites and stirs up hatred toward them. A progressive university is a conference on race whose aim is the disparagement of whites and the promotion of antiwhite discrimination. Liberal democracy is synonymous with systemic racism and must be replaced by a regime of black prejudice and black obsession with race. The study of the classics is antiminority and antiblack and must be replaced by drumbeats of black communist politics. The traditional requirement that students of the classics learn to speak Greek and Latin is a product of white racism and unfairly discriminates against racist black students who properly hate all things white. A progressive university has been demographically transformed to eliminate white capitalists and include only black communists. A progressive university has placed a black communist professoriate in charge of the classics and given it a mandate to discredit the classical search for universal truth, goodness and beauty. The study of the classics discriminates against marginalized minority groups such as poor blacks. A progressive university teaches that nothing has universal value, nothing is universal in man, nothing is universally true, good, decent or noble, and a progressive society is constructed on the foundations of race, ethnicity and particularity, and has nullified the traditions and institutions defended by civilized people for thousands of years: "Critical race theory will be applied to the classics thanks to a $1 million grant given to two Ivy League professors. The Mellon Foundation granted the funds to Brown University Professor Sasha-Mae Eccleston and Dan-el Peralta, a Princeton University professor, for their Racing the Classics fellowship. Neither responded to two emailed requests for comment sent in the past two weeks. The College Fix asked for more information on the program, including if the goal was to inspire activism against current representations of classics. Specifically, The Fix asked about a failed effort at Brown to remove Greek and Roman statues on campus because they represented white supremacy. Activists called their campaign 'one step in a broader project of decolonization by confronting Brown's institutional and ideological legacies of colonialism and white supremacy.' The fellowship program, which will begin in 2025, continues a project the two began with a conference in 2017. 'The inaugural event invited participants to unabashedly center race and ethnicity in their research in order to counter the dangerously universalizing pretensions of Western Civilization and other white supremacist ideologies suffusing the academy,' a description states. It is the latest part of their scholarship to study race and the classics. Eccleston 'directs the Critical Classical Studies Postdoctoral/Post MFA Fellowship Program,' according to her university bio. Padilla is critical of 'whiteness' in the classics. The new program will be a 'multiyear fellowship program designed to mentor graduate students and early career researchers of the ancient Mediterranean as they center critical race studies in their scholarship and teaching,' according to a Princeton announcement. The pair said their work is important, particularly during a time of 'multipronged and multidimensional assaults against racialized communities, and on the teaching of race and settler colonialism.' Princeton President Christopher Eisgruber personally endorsed the project. 'The proposed program will transform the study of classics in significant ways and build a sustainable community of scholars committed to inclusive and collaborative scholarship,' the president said. The university's classics department removed the Greek and Latin requirement from the major to combat 'systemic racism,' as previously reported by The Fix. 'By providing scholars from historically minoritized groups and those committed to the project's priorities with the support of a community, Racing the Classics aims to contribute to the demographic transformation of the professoriate in classics,' the Princeton news release states. But a political scientist at Boise State University questioned the value of the program. 'We turn to the classics in order to have our prejudices challenged, not simply to confirm them,' Professor Scott Yenor told The Fix via email. 'The classics among the Greeks spoke to the universal in man, not to the particularities that obsess us today. Clearly it is the job of teachers to ensure that minorities and really all students take the ideas of the great authors seriously, instead of only paying attention to our strange obsession with race and ethnicity.' " (Professors Get $1 million To Apply Critical Race Studies To The Classics by Brandy Perez). In 1582, Pope Gregory XIII commissioned Sicilian painter Tomasso Laureti to produce a fresco for the Vatican Palace. Completed in 1585, The Triumph Of The Christian Religion shows a smashed pagan statue lying in the shadow of an elevated image of Christ. Over the succeeding centuries, smashing in the name of religion would continue. In the twentieth century, the successors of the Christians, the Marxists, began smashing the traditions and institutions of freedom. In the twenty first century, the black power branch of Marxism continued the campaigns of the early Christians and took a hammer to the study of ancient Greece and Rome.

MENGELE ALIVE

Into whatever houses I enter, I will enter to help the sick, and I will abstain from all intentional wrongdoing and harm, especially from abusing the bodies of man or woman, slave or free. Thus speaks the most famous words in the Hippocratic Oath. Composed in the fourth century BC by the Greek physician Hippocrates, the father of medicine, it is the oath taken by physicians throughout the world when they start their careers. It is enshrined in legal statutes and violations of it carry criminal punishment. He was capable of being so kind to the children, to have them become fond of him, to bring them sugar, to think of small details in their daily lives, and to do things we would genuinely admire. And then, next to that, the crematoria smoke, and these children, tomorrow or in a half hour, he is going to send them there. Well, that is where the anomaly lay. Thus speaks a prisoner at the Auschwitz concentration camp, describing Josef Mengele, a physician at the camp. Called the Angel of Death, Mengele performed deadly medical experiments on prisoners, selected victims for gas chambers, and administered the poison gas. Wanted by West Germany, Israel and holocaust investigator Simon Weisenthal, Mengele eluded capture, and in 1979, he died of natural causes at the age of sixty seven in Bertioga, Brazil. In 1985, his mortal remains were disinterred and identified by forensic examination, but his spirit had long since moved on to inhabit new realms. His spirit was the principle of political medicine, the principle of medicine placed in the service of ideology, the principle of medicine reduced to a handmaiden of religion, the principle of medicine practiced as a criminal enterprise which mocks the Hippocratic Oath as it burns its vow of nonaggression to smoke and ashes. His spirit was born in a pool of darkness which had spread across the West in the twentieth century. This pool of darkness was a nightmare creature called Gender, Race and Class Politics, brought to life high atop the dark mountains of hate with the surging lightning bolts of Marxism. The spirit of Josef Mengele is alive and well in the world and travels anyplace there is hate and anyplace which rejects liberal values. It has entered medical schools and made every every doctor there a Doctor Josef Mengele. The new Josef Mengeles have changed their colors and flags but practice the same discrimination and commit the same crimes. They have removed their swastikas and donned flags and colors marked diversity, equity and inclusion, and preach Hitler's tribalism, neoMarxism, national socialism and antienlightenment with a new set of masters and new new set of victims. Look at medical schools today and see the spread of a cancer of discrimination against whites justified in the name of diversity and inclusion. See color counting justified as the search for diversity. See the inclusion of blacks as patients, blacks as students and blacks as professors and the inclusion of nobody else. See racist medicine called equitable medicine and nonracist medicine called inequitable medicine. See the rejection of merit based selection of doctors and the promotion of race based selection. See medical treatment reserved exclusively for blacks in a policy of letting sick whites suffer and die. See the refusal to treat sick people who are white, male and successful. See the rejection of excellence in medicine, skill in medicine and professionalism in medicine in favor of selection on the basis of skin pigmentation and the deployment of doctors to advance far left politics and a communist color revolution: "Diversity, equity, and inclusion (DEI) efforts are the 'most divisive, horrible cancer' in medical school, Representative Greg Murphy (R-NC), a doctor, said during an appearance on Breitbart News Daily. Murphy explained that medicine became very political during the coronavirus pandemic, and now, that way of thinking is overtaking higher education—namely, medical school. Murphy said: 'And this is where it is supposed to be something that is truly objective, truly merit based, truly demanding of excellence for our patients. And now it's being polluted, as you point out, with the cancer of DEI. We are now treating individuals in different categories. You have people that are saying, I won't take care of a person of one race or another, or that it saddens me when I meet somebody like this. It is the most divisive, horrible, cancer that could ever happen in medicine. That's a mindset. And you know, we won't see this really until almost a decade because they're just really getting started now in medical schools. But, you know, there's always, truly, the wonderful thing of being able to take care of patients where they are, you know, we know of a lot of poor individuals, a lot of folks who have problems with access to care—that's never been the issue. We always used to demand excellence from our doctors. We want the smartest damn person possible or the most skillful surgeon possible. And now our medical schools are now inserting in a—in a time when there is an explosion of information. All of a sudden, we have to have diversity of classes,' he said, emphasizing that things are now based on skin color and other factors. Murphy briefly discussed his bill that would essentially say that schools with DEI programs would not receive funding from the federal government. 'I spent my entire life studying hard in, you know, high school and college and everything like that to be a physician and then to be the most excellent physician I can be. Those standards should never be compromised because we have to placate the far left in their DEI cancerous initiatives, divisive initiatives.' " (Representative. Greg Murphy: DEI 'Most Divisive, Horrible Cancer' In Medical School by Hannah Knudsen). Look at medical schools today and see the establishment of black based standards and feminist based standards in place of merit based standards in the selection of students. See a policy of preferential treatment given to women and blacks justified in the name of diversity, inclusion and the highest form of fairness and equity. See America's medical schools and associations of medical schools transformed into political indoctrination and selection centers fomenting race and gender wars. See the traditional selection of quality medical students replaced by the selection of students based on skin color. See black and women students alone held to be good, worthy and deserving of admission. See admissions policies placed under the control of demographics, and the recruitment of blacks and women into a woke, affirmative action army whose mission is to subvert liberal order: "Just how woke is your nearest medical school? Likely very woke—yet the organization that helps oversee medical schools thinks it's not woke enough. So says the Association of American Medical Colleges, which last week released the first ever analysis of the extent to which 'diversity, equity and inclusion' have infected the institutions training future physicians. I've covered this trend for years, but even I didn't realize just how much patients should worry about the decline in standards and, in time, the quality of their own care. The AAMC surveyed 101 institutions, representing almost two thirds of American medical schools (two are in Canada), asking for audits of their DEI related policies and programs. While the AAMC doesn't appear to have released a list of participating schools, my organization discovered the audits' existence in October, when Ohio State University included the document prepared by its College of Medicine in response to our freedom of information request. The AAMC asked medical schools to answer 89 yes or no questions on whether they have specific DEI activities. The results are shown as a kind of report card. Schools that score 80% are colored green, and those that score between 61% and 80% are yellow. Institutions below the 60% threshold are red—a sign of failure. Medical schools should fear a failing grade from the AAMC, which helps determine whether they get accredited. As a former associate dean, I can attest that when the AAMC sets priorities, administrators rush to follow them. All told, more than six out of 10 medical schools scored 80%. The Ohio State University College of Medicine audit shows a score of 93%, making it one of the most woke medical schools in America. Crucially, no institution scored lower than 50%—meaning virtually every medical school is implementing at least half the policies woke activists want." (Med Schools Are Even More Woke Than You Think—And Your Care Is At Risk by Stanley Goldfarb). High atop the dark mountains of hate is a laboratory. It is illuminated by electrical arcs, cluttered with test tubes and watched over by faces formed from dials and controls. It is manned by doctors who have rejected the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment. They are comprised exclusively of black communists and women communists and they wear the coats of race politics, gender politics, social justice politics and hatred of successful white males. Look at the medical schools churning out these mad doctor activists: "The plan here is not to teach the students anything that will improve the health of their patients but rather to have students who ultimately become physicians, put on their white coats and march into various political meetings to claim health consequences as the rationale for political activism." (UCLA Medical Student Says Left Wing Ideology 'Laced Through All Four Years' Of School, Fox New, March 24, 2024, quoting Stanley Goldfarb). Contravening the sacred Hippocratic Oath, the antimorality of doctors today is first do harm and in their medical bags are the drugs and tools of world revolution.

BRIDGE COLLAPSES INTO DEI WATERS

On March 26, 2024, at 1:28 AM Eastern Daylight Time, in Baltimore, Maryland, the Francis Scott Key Bridge collapsed into the Patapsco River and Baltimore Harbor it spanned, after it had been struck by the container ship Dali. All members of the bridge's maintenance crew were killed. The collapse blocked the Port of Baltimore, one of the busiest ports in the world, and brought about a global economic crisis. The port handled a half a million passengers per year and fifty two million tons of foreign cargo worth eighty billion dollars. It was a leading port for coal, automobiles and light trucks, handling one million vehicles. It employed fifteen thousand people. The collapse led to the immediate loss of eight thousand jobs and caused losses of fifteen million dollars per day. The twisted wreckage of the bridge forms a monster in the waters of the Baltimore Harbor, a monster which has consumed jobs, careers and businesses and sent out mayday signals describing the collapse of world trade. But it has done more than this. Civilized people beholding this nightmare shape see gaping spaces and empty eye sockets spelling out a program, a policy and an ideology of moral regression, collapse and death. Brought to life high atop the dark mountains of tribal politics with the surging lightning bolts of Marxism, this monster is called Gender, Race and Class Politics; it is called Diversity, Equity and Inclusion; and its violence made the Francis Scott Key Bridge fall to its doom. Amidst the mournful recovery operations and the howling wail of ambulance sirens, the truth of the collapse stood out stark and brutal for all who had eyes to see. It stood out as stark and brutal as the blood swirling around the port's waters and the dead bodies floating down the port's river. The truth of the collapse is that it was caused by the actions and omissions of personnel hired on the basis of their race and gender and not on the basis of their talents or abilities. It was caused by personnel hired to fulfill diversity and inclusion requirements established at the workplace, requirements mandating acts of race and gender discrimination giving preferential treatment to women and blacks, and mandating them as the highest forms of fairness and equity. The collapse of the Francis Scott Key Bridge was caused by a Marxist establishment focused on the achievement of workplace diversity and not workplace quality. It was caused by an establishment which sacrificed the safety of the people and the success of their businesses upon the altars of race and gender affirmative action. It was caused by an establishment which hired Karenthia Barber as Commissioner for the Port of Baltimore, a person whose past responsibilities have no relation to her present remit, and whose sole qualification for her job is the fact that she checks all the establishment's employment boxes, and is black, female and Marxist. The collapse of the bridge was caused by an establishment which vilifies those who are opposed to hiring people on the basis of their race and gender and who demand a policy of race blind, gender blind, nondiscriminatory hiring. It was caused by an establishment which vilifies these opponents of diversity, equity and inclusion hiring as biased, ignorant, irresponsible, misguided, antiblack, antiwoman and pandering to white racism: "Diversity, equity and inclusion has become such a flashpoint across the country that a politician in Utah, state Representative Phil Lyman, inferred it was the reason a huge container ship plowed into and knocked down the Francis Scott Key Bridge in Baltimore, leaving six people presumed dead. 'This is what happens when you have governors who prioritize diversity over the wellbeing and security of citizens,' said Lyman, a Republican running for governor, said in a post on X. Lyman's post included a retweet of the Young Conservative Federation, which wrote: 'Let's meet the Commissioners for the Port of Baltimore, starting with Karenthia A. Barber. She knows nothing about Ports, but she is a diversity, equity, inclusion and belonging (DEIB) auditor and consultant.' Later, Lyman posted DEI=DIE. Barber is one of six commissioners serving at least three year terms overseeing the Port of Baltimore. In addition to work on DEIB training, coaching and consulting, Barber's bio includes experience teaching on the university level and being the first female chair of the board of Maryland Automobile Insurance. The other five commissioners' bios say they also have a range of career experience, including in maritime science, shipping, the airline industry, corporate law and Maryland's department of transportation. DEI consultant Nika White said Lyman's assertions were 'not only irresponsible, antiblack and antiwoman but also profoundly misguided.' White added, 'By linking Port of Baltimore Commissioner Karenthia Barber's background to the accident solely because of her involvement with DEI efforts, conservatives like Lyman reveal their bias, ignorance, and willingness to say anything for votes.' " (Utah Lawmaker Blames 'Diversity' For Baltimore Bridge Collapse by Curtis Bunn). The collapse of the Francis Scott Key Bridge was caused by an establishment which had established racist, sexist, antiwhite male hiring policies. It was caused by a racist, sexist, anti white male world view called diversity, equity and inclusion. It was caused by Baltimore port commissioners hired on the basis of their race and gender and not their professional competence. It was caused by an establishment which had set forth diversity requirements for hiring in the place of the traditional requirements that job applicants demonstrate skillsets. It was caused by an establishment concerned with the comfort, health and happiness of women, blacks and Marxists and nobody else. It was caused by an establishment which had sacrificed the safety and security of the infrastructure upon the altar of a race and gender politics presided over by a master group of black women Marxists: "Representative Phil Lyman, R-Blanding is defending a post made Tuesday, that said Diversity, Equity, and Inclusion (DEI) policies had something to do with the Baltimore bridge collapse. He said his post was making a correlation between the two. Soon after the bridge collapsed, Lyman took to X to reshare a post from an account called the Young Conservative Federation. The post claimed that commissioners for the port of Baltimore were merely hired based on diversity requirements. His repost added the following statement: 'This is what happens when you have Ggovernors who prioritize diversity over the well being and security of citizens.' He further went on to post DEI=DIE. Lyman told KSL NewsRadio that he still stands for this idea, despite the controversy it has caused. Lyman said the post was making a correlation between DEI policies and the incident. 'The correlation is simply that [Baltimore has] a robust DEI program that oversees the port, that oversees the bridge, and they had a catastrophe that was either intentional or unintentional.' He said his post should let people know that his gubernatorial campaign doesn't support DEI at all. 'We're not proponents of DEI, we're not proponents of hiring people based on DEI, or implementing DEI in Utah at our universities, at our schools,' Lyman said. 'When those types of things influence policy, often the outcomes are not what we would have hoped. This was a bad outcome. DEI was a high priority for this county and this port, and that's the correlation.' " (Representative Phil Lyman Defends Post Correlating DEI Policies With Baltimore Bridge Collapse by Emma Keddington). The collapse of the Francis Scott Key Bridge was caused by an establishment which had hired black men and black women as Baltimore Port Commissioners because they were black men and black women. It was caused by an establishment which led race and gender politics, coached race and gender politics, consulted in race and gender politics, trained in race and gender politics, and had ordered failures of infrastructure, and the ensuing disasters and deaths, to be committed by the blacks and women it placed in charge, hired under its diversity, equity and inclusion policies: "Utah Republican Phil Lyman, an outgoing state representative and current gubernatorial candidate, suggested diversity, equity and inclusion programs were to blame for the collapse of the Francis Scott Key Bridge in Baltimore on Tuesday. 'This is what happens when you have governors who prioritize diversity over the well being and security of citizens,' reads a post from Lyman's account over pictures of Karenthia Barber and Sandy Roberts, a black man and woman who serve as Maryland Port Commissioners. Lyman stood by the sentiment and said he wasn't going to apologize or retract the post. 'I'm not posting her because she's a black woman, I'm posting her because she's an auditor of DEI,' he said, referring to Barber's career history providing 'leadership and workforce training, coaching, and diversity, equity and inclusion audits and consulting.' 'I'm saying you've got this DEI initiative that's going in these places and then you clearly have human failures that create a disaster like this.' " (Lyman Blames DEI For Baltimore Bridge Collapse by Kyle Dunphey). Sabotage can outweigh production. If you question it—report it. United States Army. Sabotage means to push back, pull out or break off the fangs of capitalism. W. D. Haywood. We use economic sabotage and guerrilla warfare to stop the exploitation and destruction of the environment. Earth Liberation Front. Sabotage: a deliberate action aimed at destroying a society through subversion. For over a century, the West has been under attack by saboteurs swearing allegiance to Marxism. Their colors and flags have changed but their mission remains the same: the destruction of the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment. Promoting gender, race and class discrimination in the name of diversity, equity, inclusion and belonging, today's saboteurs have placed black women communists in charge of the infrastructure of civilization. On March 26, 2024, these saboteurs collapsed the Francis Scott Key Bridge in Baltimore, Maryland and added one more trophy to the victors' chariots.

DEI MISSILES DOWN BOEING FLEET

I love you, and you should feel free to move on. Thus wrote Eliot Trexler to his wife while he was on board a United Airlines Boeing 737 flight en route from Houston, Texas to Fort Myers, Florida on March 4, 2024. The engine of the airplane had caught fire and the passengers saw Death stalk the aisles. Boeing, crash, grounding: the words have become synonymous in the twenty first century and formed a pool of shame into which this storied American multinational corporation has plunged. Boeing: one of the world's largest aerospace manufacturers, the fourth largest defense contractor in the world, and the largest exporter in America. Boeing: founded over a century ago on July 15, 1916, in Seattle, Washington by William Boeing, and at present, earning over eighty billion dollars in sales, and ranking 54th on the Fortune 500 list and 121st on the Fortune Global 500 list. Boeing: the everexpanding list of accidents and incidents involving its aircraft in the twenty first century has not only crashed and grounded its fleet but exposed with brutal clarity the deadly terror attacks the West is under. These attacks have shattered the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment and installed a nightmare creature in their place. The chaos on board Boeing's flights, the turbulence roiling the aircraft, the plumes of smoke engulfing the cabin, the flashes of light dazzling the passengers, the explosions shattering their ears, the shattered glass lacerating their flesh, the downward plunge into terror creating a state without mass or weight, and the screams and cries of the panic stricken, the wounded and the dying, have spelled out the two fearsome names of this creature and inscribed the sorry epitaph of the West. Its names are Gender, Race and Class Politics and Diversity, Equity and Inclusion, and it has placed saboteurs in the infrastructure of civilization and given them orders to blow it up. Assembled and brought to life atop dark mountains of hate with the surging lightning bolts of Marxism, it is a program, a policy and a religion of racism and sexism which mandates discrimination against white males and targets them for extermination. Look at this nightmare creature at eleven thousand meters and see what it has done to a company once respected as an innovator, pioneer and trendsetter in the field of aviation. It has placed the traditional goals of Boeing of producing quality airplanes in an ejector seat and jettisoned them from a company plunging into the abyss of gender, race and class politics. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company gives preferential treatment to women and blacks in the name of achieving diversity and inclusion and calls this policy of race and gender discrimination the highest form of fairness and equity. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company hires women and blacks because they are women and blacks and shunts aside the safety of its airplanes in the pursuit of its policy of race and gender discrimination. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company is an indoctrination camp whose hangars, laboratories, boardrooms and corporate suites serve as ideological echo chambers for the high speed propagation of pronouns, party lines and political correctness mandated by Marxism. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company has sacrificed corporate performance upon the altar social justice and swept vital indexes of performance, schedule performance and cost performance, into a dustbin with brooms marked race and gender quotas. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company is a church and congregation whose mission is to persuade its staff by constant drumbeats of repetition to believe that the roots of all evil and the poisoners of the world are the population of white males, and Hitler's gas chambers must be restarted to receive them. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company manufactures airplanes whose purpose is to kill passengers, airplanes designed and assembled by blacks and women. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company hires blacks and women as mechanics and engineers not because they possess the requisite skillsets but because they are blacks and women. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company condemns as racist and sexist all those opposed to racist and sexist affirmative action programs. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company condemns all those opposed to discrimination against white males as antiimmigrant, antiblack, antifemale, antipoor, antienvironment and antiEarth. It has proclaimed that a progressive airplane company has nothing to do with manufacturing airplanes which are safe or with protecting the safety of its employees, but pays its executives to promote Marxist politics and ensure that only blacks and women are hired, and that civilization is dismantled in order to stop greenhouse gas emissions: "Observers of recent near disasters in the airline industry are beginning to link the industry's troubles to efforts to implement diversity, equity, and inclusion initiatives in aviation companies' hiring practices rather than prioritizing safety. The narrowly averted disaster involving a Boeing passenger plane in Houston was the latest in a string of incidents that have brought scrutiny to Boeing. On Monday, one of the engines of a United Airlines Boeing 737 en route from Houston to Fort Myers, Florida, caught on fire within minutes of takeoff. This resulted in a terrifying ordeal for the 167 passengers on board before the plane was able to safely return to George Bush Intercontinental Airport in Houston. Footage obtained by the New York Post taken through one of the plane's windows appears to show flames flashing out of the engine in the otherwise dark sky. Passengers described the harrowing experience on Flight 1118 to ABC 13: 'I remember there was just this bright, flashing light that came through the window, and it sounded like a bomb went off, and then it was just a strobe of fire out the window,' passenger David Gruninger said, describing how the nightmare began. 'The plane was nosediving, and the pilot was bringing the plane back up,' passenger Elliot Trexler said. 'The plane was also rocking back and forth a lot. I think it's fair to say we all thought we were going to die.' Trexler said he emailed his wife, 'I love you, and you should feel free to move on.' 'It just turned into chaos. People were screaming and crying and trying to figure out what was going on,' Gruninger said. 'It was our left engine, our number one engine, that was surging when we were climbing through about 10,000 [feet], and flight attendants saw momentary flames back there,' a pilot explained on the radio transmission from the plane. Gruninger described the descent as 'a very turbulent ride back, and it was a pretty harsh landing.' Passengers reportedly received an email from United Airlines that provided $200 worth of credit and a $15 meal voucher and were placed on another flight to Fort Myers later that evening. This incident comes on the heels of another incident involving a Boeing plane on February 28, when an American Airlines intercontinental flight from New York to Madrid had to be rerouted to Boston due to a crack in the plane's windshield. It marked the latest in a trend of high profile air travel safety incidents that have raised concerns about Boeing's 737 Max manufacturing and other airline maintenance issues. A profile on X with the handle Kieth M claimed to have formerly worked at Boeing and said the following in response to the aborted New York to Madrid flight: 'I resigned from Boeing because of their DEI indoctrination. How about you stop pushing DEI and pronouns?!? You guys act like you build vacuum cleaners. Live and die on SPI/CPI [schedule performance index/cost performance index]. Building/Maintaining aircraft is a human activity. Treat your mechanics and engineers with the respect they have earned with their skillsets. Stop focusing on indoctrination. The suits need to be fired! #Boeingkills #Boeing #DEIkills If it's Boeing, I'm not going!' Another X poster, Todd Snyder, claimed, '#Boeing uses less qualified workers due to #DEI a practice that is going to KILL somebody!' Others, however, took to social media to accuse those pointing to DEI of scapegoating and outright racism. 'It's genuinely insidious how the 'blame DEI for every societal ill rhetoric' mirrors the 'illegal immigrants are taking our jobs' line from the early 2000s. I've seen everything from the Boeing plane debacles to games blamed on this imaginary villain,' said journalist Matt Kim in a post on X. Still, Boeing's own 2022 public filings show that executive bonuses are now tied to hitting DEI and climate targets. In 2021, annual incentive plans were solely based on 'product safety, employee safety, and quality. Upon this revelation, Elon Musk took to X and asked, 'Do you want to fly in an airplane where they prioritized DEI hiring over your safety? That is actually happening.' " (Is Boeing Prioritizing DEI Over Safety? by Andrew Afifian). On September 11, 2001, four coordinated Islamist terror attacks carried out by Al Qaeda struck America. On that day, nineteen terrorists hijacked four commercial airliners and crashed airplanes into the Twin Towers of the World Trade Center in New York City and into the headquarters of the United States Department of Defense in Arlington, Virginia. The attacks killed 3000 people and were the deadliest terror attacks in history. Two decades after these attacks, the terror has not subsided but has intensified. The attacks have come from a Marxist-Islamist axis arrayed against a common enemy, liberal democracy. Missiles launched by Marxists carry labels and markings which identify them. They include the following. Increase representation among underrepresented groups. Promote racism, sexism and policies discriminating against white males in the name of achieving diversity, equity and inclusion. Ignore qualifications, skills and intelligence in the selection of job candidates and focus on their race and gender. These missiles have downed Boeing's fleet.

3000 AD

The wind constantly howls. Farmland is churned up. Streets lie buried in rubble. Cities are reduced to wastelands. Nations and continents form vast, empty expanses of desolation. An unseen presence stalks the world. It is the ghost of collapse, the moral, spiritual, political, economic, cultural and civilizational collapse of mankind, and it has reduced people to the level of starving animals roaming the landscape, fighting each other over pieces of garbage. The year is 3000 AD and the West has long since ended, incinerated in a blazing fire which reduced everything of value and vital necessity to civilized people to smoke and ashes. The West, which once spanned the four corners of the Earth and gave mankind the greatest blessings of all, the traditions and institutions of reason, science, freedom, law and enlightenment, was torn apart by internal enemies which had rejected reason and championed religion in its place. These enemies did not crash through the gates of civilization but tore them down from within, tore them down with guns, bombs, knives and axes supplied to them by the masses. The West rotted away and exploded into oblivion at the hands of warring camps within which had rejected reason. Ancient Rome had its enemies of reason which subjected it to decay and disintegration. Its avatars of unreason were divided into two camps, and these camps formed a pincer movement which surrounded and strangled the Roman Republic and established a degenerate Roman Empire in its place.

These camps were comprised of those who rejected mind in favor of matter, and those who rejected matter in favor of a supernatural dimension. The camps of reductive materialists and otherworldly mystics brought forth waves of destruction against the traditional Rome of the Senate, the Constitution and pagan reason. Commencing in the third century AD, the camp of reductive materialists brought forth class wars, street brawls, bread and circuses, welfare grain doles, bureaucratic administration, confiscatory taxation, millions of people on the public payroll, government control of wages, profits, prices, jobs, farmland and farming activity, the relentless tyranny of caesars, emperors and their screaming mobs, and tolerance granted to Germanic barbarians originating from Northern Europe. Commencing in the fourth century AD, the camp of otherworldly mystics brought forth a Christian movement originating from the East, whose members followed their Jewish Christ, their Jewish God, their Jewish Son of God and their Jewish Messiah into the madness of a new Jewish religion. This neoJewish Christian movement was accepted and tolerated by a degenerate society and allowed to establish its creed as the state religion and to persecute paganism. Today's Enemies Of Reason. The year is now 3000 AD and the West has long since passed over into a Dark Age, whose masters are the same camps of reductive materialists and otherworldly mystics which sent Rome decaying and exploding into oblivion. The same camps with only the colors and flags changed. Their mission remains the same: the overthrow of reason and the civilization which reason founds. Pages from the philosophies, programs and policies of these camps lie strewn throughout the streets, swirling and floating through the air by the hands of the unceasing winds. Listen to Marxism and its race and gender evolutions and mutations and hear them assume the role of ancient Rome's mobs, caesars, state worshipers and settled barbarians. Listen to a resurgent Christianity, a resurgent Orthodox Judaism together with a radical environmentalist worship of Mother Earth assume the role of ancient Rome's original Christians. Listen to Marxism's alliance with an external enemy from the East, the religion of Islam, as they confront a common enemy. This enemy is the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment. Listen to them all, listen to this witches' brew of moral and spiritual destruction, and hear Satan enter the inner sanctum and temple of reason and blow it up. Marxism and Islam. The Marxist-Islamist axis which overthrew civilization proclaimed that capitalism is a system of structural racism. It proclaimed that a progressive society is a Hamas society and a terror society which has exterminated Jews in a holocaust called Free, Free Palestine. It proclaimed that a progressive society is a mystical, nonsecular society which bows down in prayers and reverence to Mama Earth. It proclaimed that the extermination of Israel and Jews is an act of justice because Israel and Jews represent capitalism. It proclaimed that a progressive society is a black society, a brown society, a feminist society, an antisemitic society, an anticapitalist society, a society for the homeless, a society which has abolished freedom and private property, a society which discriminates against whites in the name of fairness and equity, a collectivist swampland ruled by women, nonwhites, the poor and the Palestinians. It proclaimed that the laws of logic and the method of empiricism represent white science and must be replaced by a mysticism of race, soil and native tribes and ancestors. It proclaimed that a progressive society is an anticapitalist roadmap to totalitarian dictatorship. It proclaimed that America is illegally occupied by capitalist society and must be returned to the stagnant eons and savage plains of the Indians: "In a mandatory course on 'structural racism' for first year medical students at the University of California Los Angeles, a guest speaker who has praised Hamas's October 7 attack on Israel led students in chants of 'Free, Free Palestine' and demanded that they bow down to 'Mama Earth,' according to students in the class and audio obtained by the Washington Free Beacon. Lisa Gray-Garcia, who has referred to the October 7 terrorist attacks as 'justice,' began the March 27 class by leading students in what she described as a 'nonsecular prayer' to 'the ancestors,' instructing everyone to get on their knees and touch the floor—'Mama Earth,' as she described it—with their fists. At least half of the assembled students complied, two students said. Gray-Garcia, a local activist who had been invited to speak about 'Housing (In)Justice,' proceeded to thank native tribes for preserving 'what the settlers call LA,' according to audio obtained by the Free Beacon, and to remind students of the city's 'herstory.' The prayer also included a benediction for 'black,' 'brown,' and 'houseless people' who die because of the 'crapatalist lie' of 'private property.' 'Mama Earth,' Gray-Garcia told the kneeling students, 'was never meant to be bought, sold, pimped, or played.' So began a long and looney lecture that shocked some students at the elite medical school and has led to calls for an investigation. Wearing a keffiyeh that covered her entire face, Gray-Garcia, a self-described 'poverty scholar,' led the class in chants of 'Free, Free Palestine' as faculty and staff looked on in silence, according to people in the course and contemporaneous text messages reviewed by the Free Beacon. One of the onlookers was Lindsay Wells, a pediatrician at UCLA and the director of the mandatory first year course, Structural Racism and Health Equity, who did not respond to a request for comment. Gray-Garcia later referred to modern medicine as 'white science' and inveighed against the 'occupation' of 'Turtle Island'—that is, the United States—before asking students to stand for a second prayer. This time, nearly everyone rose. When one student remained seated, according to students in the class, a UCLA administrator, whom the Free Beacon could not identify, inquired about the student's identity, implying that discipline could be on the table." (UCLA Med School Requires Students To Attend Lecture Where Speaker Demands Prayer for 'Mama Earth,' Leads Chants of 'Free Palestine' by April Sibarium).

Christianity. The resurgent Christian movement which overthrew civilization achieved a stunning victory in a nation once exalted as the world's arsenal of freedom. It placed the Conference of Catholic Bishops and the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith upon the bench of the United States Supreme Court, and under its auspices, the Court issued a landmark ruling on June 24, 2022. In the case Dobbs vs Jackson Women's Health Organization, the Court ruled that the First Amendment to the Constitution, which prohibits the government from establishing religion and constructs a wall of separation between church and state, does not exist. It ruled that the states have a right to declare that at the moment of a human conception, at the moment of union of a sperm cell and an ovum cell to form a single cell zygote, an unborn baby, an actual human person, is created by virtue of the infusion of a supernatural soul, and the destruction of this single cell is an act of murder. It ruled that states have a right to declare that ordinary people cannot see this supernatural soul because they are blind, and they are blind because they have eyes and can see, and those possessed of mystical feeling alone can truly see. On June 24, 2022, the United States Supreme Court banged the gavel and dismissed one thousand years of liberal jurisprudence, and dismissed the Constitution of the United States, from the nation: "The Constitution does not confer a right to abortion. Roe and Casey are overruled. The authority to regulate abortion is returned to the people and their elected representatives."

Orthodox Judaism. The resurgent Orthodox Jewish movement which overthrew civilization took control over a nation once exalted as an outpost of the Enlightenment in the Islamist deserts of the Middle East. It took control of Israel and commenced a culture war. In this war, it achieved victory and abolished Israel's secular government. Proclaiming that the preservation of religion is more important than the preservation of innocent human life, it promoted the settlement of Orthodox Jews in Gaza at the expense of the hostages taken by Hamas in the October 7 terror attacks, and thereby sentenced these hostages to death: "When Hamas attacked, Israel was deeply divided over his government's right wing policies and culture wars between secular and religious Israelis. They [Orthodox Jewish parties] do not only oppose the mass release of Palestinian security prisoners to buy the freedom of Israeli hostages, without which a ceasefire will not happen. Mr Netanyahu's two main ultranationalist allies, Finance Minister Bezalel Smotrich and National Security Minister Itamar Ben-Gvir, go further. They both want Palestinians to leave Gaza so Jews can settle there instead. Before October, Israel's divisions must have made it look vulnerable to Hamas. Six months on, the same schisms within Israel about the present and the future are making it harder to win the war." (Israel-Gaza Briefing: Obstacles To Peace Seem Larger Than Ever After Six Months Of War)

by Jeremy Bowen). Western civilization was born in 1000 AD, a half a century after the collapse of Classical civilization into the monster maws of religion and barbarism. The first age of the West was a Dark Age marked by the rule of religion. It emerged from this age and passed through a Renaissance, an Enlightenment and a Scientific Revolution. In the twenty first century, it traveled full circle and returned to a Dark Age ruled by religion. In the year 3000 AD, its ruins have taught the naive a terrifying lesson. They have laid waste to the myth that progress is inevitable.

BRITAIN'S ESTABLISHMENT ABOLISHES THE NATION

Julius Schnoor von Carolsfeld was German painter in the nineteenth century who revived the Renaissance style in the genre of religious art. His most famous work was created in 1847 and is a scene from the ancient epic poem Song of the Nibelungs, which forms the basis of Richard Wagner's opera Twilight of the Gods. The painting depicts the Burgundian warrior Hagen taking aim at Siegfried's back with a spear. The painting depicts the black art of backstabbing, the art of destroying somebody while pretending friendship with him. It is the black art of duplicity, betrayal and treachery. In the twenty first century, the ruling circles of the world's former empire of freedom, the greatest empire of freedom in modern times, the successor in the West to the Roman Empire of freedom, stabbed it in the back. This backstabbing of the nation by the establishment had precedents. A precedent occurred at the end of World War II, when the establishment surrendered the nation's colonies to the savage lands of Asia and Africa which the empire had liberated in the eighteenth and nineteenth centuries. In the present backstabbing, the establishment has moved to abolish the preeminent symbol of the nation in the world, and to redefine the nation's character, and thereby to abolish the nation itself. The nation is Britain and in October 2023, the leading lights of the British establishment gathered in a leading city of the establishment, gathered in a leading conference organized by the establishment, and voted to finish the work of dissolving Britain, commenced in the decolonization movement eight decades before, and voted to abolish the Foreign Office and to redefine the nation. The city was Oxford. The conference was the UK Policy Lab. The participants were ministers, national security advisors, permanent secretaries, ambassadors and senior officials. The leaders were Tom Fletcher, Principal of Hertford College, Oxford, Moazzam Malik, UK Policy Lab Honorary Professor, and Mark Sedwill, member of the House of Lords. Look at their conference and see a sword of treason unsheathed against the nation by those pretending to be its friends and guardians. The conference proclaimed that the liberal values which founded Britain and defined its existence and its empire for centuries do not possess universal validity. It proclaimed that Britain must form alliances with nations not aligned to liberal values. It proclaimed unfree, authoritarian nations are just as legitimate as free, law abiding nations and the valuation of the latter over the former is a product of Western bigotry and chauvinism. It proclaimed that the moral and political system of freedom is no better than the moral and political system of slavery. It proclaimed that since most of the world lives under unfree political systems, Britain must renounce its principles, respect these systems, and forge bonds of undying friendship and support with them. It proclaimed that the international order based on liberal values is a product of Western colonialism and imperialism and must be abolished. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system of man made climate change leading to the incineration of the planet in a greenhouse gas enveloped inferno. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system which sanctions the irresponsible, life threatening use of technology. It proclaimed that the capitalist economic system is unjust, oppressive, exploitative, wasteful and inefficient. It proclaimed that the liberal political model which Britain exported to the world and by which it liberated savage peoples is no longer relevant or sustainable in a world which has embraced the superior values of socialism, sacrifice and mystical interconnection: "It is hard to envisage the world being dominated by a singular political and values system. History did not end after the Cold War, as Fukuyama had predicted. The global majority is determinedly nonaligned and not about to be forced into alliances. Western values and dominance of the international order are being challenged by countries with differing political and value systems—not just authoritarian states but also well established democracies. Whilst a rules based international order retains wide appeal, the international landscape will be characterized by shifting issue based alliances driven by national and local interests. Today, the UK is undoubtedly less politically and economically influential than in the immediate aftermath of the Second World War. This trend is likely to continue given the simple arithmetic of demography and compound economic growth. Even as the international order is changing, humanity faces a series of potentially existential transnational challenges. These include climate change, conflict and insecurity, pandemics, irresponsible use of technology and artificial intelligence, and a global economic system that is seen by many as unjust but also inefficient and wasteful. Progress toward the (universal) Sustainable Development Goals set for 2030 has stagnated or fallen into reverse in the face of multiple crises. As national challenges become more transnational reflecting greater interconnectedness, the old established political models are struggling to provide solutions." (The World In 2024: Renewing The UK's Approach To International Affairs by Tom Fletcher, Moazzam Malik and Mark Sedwill). The UK Policy Lab conference proclaimed that Britain's historical legacy of freedom is without value or significance. It proclaimed that Britain owes its former colonies reparations for the freedom it gave them and for its abolition of the tyrannies which for centuries had loomed over the people. It proclaimed that Britain owes the world reparations for the Industrial Revolution it created which made the world flourish as it had never flourished before. It proclaimed that capitalism is a system of brazen violation of human rights. It proclaimed that capitalism has brought forth catastrophic global climate change through greenhouse gas emissions. It proclaimed that a progressive society is a closed society based on socialist values, rules and institutions and Britain must be a leader in the establishment of this society throughout the world: "We cannot simply brush aside concerns around the UK's historical legacy and questions of nationhood. The exit from the EU has opened many questions, including in Northern Ireland and Scotland. Former colonies are making increasingly vocal demands around the need for reparations from colonialism and compensation for the loss and damage arising from historical industrial emissions. Our credibility on the international stage depends on greater consistency between domestic and international policies. As an open and highly interconnected economy and society, the UK's future security and prosperity depends on rules and values being upheld internationally. Discrepancies between our domestic and international conduct on issues such as climate change and human rights not only exposes us to accusations of hypocrisy on the world stage but also weaken the institutions and values essential to the UK's interests." (The World In 2024: Renewing The UK's Approach To International Affairs by Tom Fletcher, Moazzam Malik and Mark Sedwill). The UK Policy Lab conference proclaimed that Britain must abolish the Foreign Office and establish in its place a Department for International Affairs because the present office symbolizes the nation's evil past of promoting capitalism and establishing colonial liberation of animal hordes ruled by tribes, castes, kings and clans. It proclaimed that pictures of colonial liberation are pictures of oppression and exploitation of noble savages and must be removed from the halls of the government. It proclaimed that the notion of freedom is elitist and rooted in the past and must be replaced progressive, populist, modernist notion of socialism and service to the state. It proclaimed that the notion of socialism and service to the state alone can establish an open culture and ensure that Britain prospers in the future: "A new brand would help signal a forward looking ambition for the twenty first century. The very name of the Foreign, Commonwealth (formerly 'Colonial') and Development Office is anchored in the past. A new Department for International Affairs (or Global Affairs UK) would signal a potentially quite different role. The physical surroundings on King Charles Street also hint at the Foreign Office's identity: somewhat elitist and rooted in the past.

Modernizing premises—perhaps with fewer colonial era pictures on the walls—might help create a more open working culture and send a clear signal about Britain’s future." (The World In 2024: Renewing The UK's Approach To International Affairs by Tom Fletcher, Moazzam Malik and Mark Sedwill). The UK Policy Lab conference proclaimed that Britain must renounce its traditions and institutions of freedom and transform itself into an international national lamb fattened for slaughter. It must renounce all its wealth to finance the dismantling of civilization in the name of combating global climate change, to finance the scum of the Earth in the name of humanitarian assistance, and to finance the arts and culture of savage nations in the name of spreading soft power: "The UK should set a broader spending commitment for international engagement. Currently, the UK has spending commitments related to defense (2% Gross Domestic Product) and aid (0.5% with an aspiration to meet 0.7% of Gross National Income). The UK would be better served by having a more flexible spending commitment for international engagement alongside defense--potentially 1% of GNI to cover planned international spending on climate, humanitarian, development and soft power priorities (with exceptional unforeseeable crisis spending in year handled beyond that)." (The World In 2024: Renewing The UK's Approach To International Affairs by Tom Fletcher, Moazzam Malik and Mark Sedwill). Master of a global empire of freedom for five centuries, an empire in power and extent the world had never seen before, Britain surrendered its freedom under the pressure of its mobs beginning in the twentieth century. In the middle of the century, it surrendered its freedom to the welfare state. After World War II, it surrendered its freedom to the decolonization movement. In the twenty first century, it has surrendered its freedom to two monsters: to a regime of hate speech codes, political correctness and nondiscrimination laws enforced by gender, race and class police; and to the conference of the UK Policy Lab. The latter has delivered the coup de grace to the nation. It has abolished it, renamed it the Department for International Affairs, and made it officially unrecognizable.

OBJECT ONTOLOGY: A TECHNICAL TERM FOR SANITY

Jargon is the technical language associated with a particular field. It facilitates communication among members of a field but its terms are often strange and unknown to outsiders. A leading philosopher of the Enlightenment, Etienne Bonnot de Condillac, describes its proper function: "Every science requires a special language because every science has its own ideas. It seems that one ought to begin by composing this language, but people begin by speaking and writing, and the language remains to be composed." (Commerce and Government In Relation To Each Other). In the field of philosophy, there is a technical term which illustrates human sanity as nothing else in the field does. It illustrates the common sense of those in possession of normal mental faculties as nothing else does. It illustrates the proper functioning of the human mind as nothing else does. The term is object ontology, and though it appears difficult and intimidating to laypersons, its meaning is simple and understandable to all those who enjoy sound mental health and well being. It is the doctrine that what exists outside the mind is material particles, objects such as tables, rivers, stones and electrons, that these objects are as they are and possess fixed natures and essences, and that properties such as color, motion, size and shape are the properties of these primary objects and do not exist apart from them. The term stands for a truth which is self evident to clear headed, civilized people, yet this truth has been denied by every major school of philosophic thought in the West. Its truth was never held in doubt in Classical Culture, which was guided by the spirit of Apollo, the spirit of reason, science and sanity, but in the Faustian culture of the West, in the culture born among the ancient Germanic tribes in 1000 AD, centuries after the collapse of ancient Rome, its truth has been brazenly denied. In the culture of the West, the culture of the sorcerer Faust, the culture of will power, the culture of romanticism, the culture of feeling, sensation, excitement and infinite, subjective experience, its truth has been held up to ridicule and consigned to a dustbin marked failed ideas. Listen to the preeminent philosopher of Classical culture, the avatar of Apollo as nobody else has been the avatar of Apollo, affirm that to perceive is to perceive something. Listen to Aristotle affirm that perception is of physical objects or it is of nothing and does not exist. Listen to him affirm that in the act of perception, the eye receives the form of the object without the matter: "The perceiver is potentially what the object actually is. When it is being affected, it is unlike the object, but when it has been affected it has been made like the object and has acquired its quality. A general point to be grasped is that each sense receives the perceptible forms without the matter. Wax, for instance, receives the design on a signet ring without the iron or gold; it acquires the design in the gold or bronze, but not insofar as the design is gold or bronze." (On The Soul). Now fast forward the clock of history by a millennium from the time of Aristotle and enter a jungle of raging insanity called the West. It was born on the same continent as Classical culture but differs from it as midnight differs from noonday and amorphous darkness differs from light defined clarity. Listen to the avatars of this insanity and see a culture whose mental implosion has terrorized the world. Listen to the preeminent philosopher of the West proclaim that since the power to perceive something necessarily exists prior to any actual act of perception, all knowledge is acquired apriori. This prior power to perceive functions as a screen and veil over the eyes which forever prevents them from perceiving reality: "Since the receptivity of the subject, its capacity to be affected by objects, must necessarily precede all actual perceptions of these objects, it can readily be understood how the form of all appearances can be given prior to all actual perceptions, and so exist in the mind apriori." (Critique Of Pure Reason by Immanuel Kant). Listen to Immanuel Kant proclaim that all knowledge is acquired apriori and because of this is necessarily purely subjective. The traditional, common sense view that perception is the perception of something must be replaced by the view that perception creates its own objects and perception is the perception of nothing: "Hitherto it has been assumed that all our knowledge must conform to objects. But all attempts to extend our knowledge of objects by establishing something in regard to them apriori have, on this assumption, ended in failure. We must therefore consider whether we may not have more success in the tasks of metaphysics, if we suppose that objects must conform to our knowledge." (Critique Of Pure Reason). Listen to Kant proclaim that true philosophy affirms that what are called physical objects are universal delusions. It affirms that space and time do not exist outside the mind but are subjective forms of perception. It affirms that the world which exists independently of our perception is supernatural and unperceivable: "I understand by the doctrine of the transcendental [apriori] subjectivism of all appearances, the doctrine that they are all together to be regarded as mere representations and not things in themselves, and accordingly that time and space are only subjective forms of perception, not determinations given for themselves or conditions of objects as things in themselves. To this subjectivism is opposed realism, which regards space and time as something given in themselves, independent of our perception." (Critique Of Pure Reason). Now fast forward the clock of history from the time of Kant to the present day and see the end of the line of a fearsome train which has sped and crashed into civilizational collapse. On board the train was G. W. F. Hegel, who proclaimed that reality is Absolute Mind. On board was Karl Marx, who proclaimed that reality is pure material change and becoming without the existence of anything which changes or becomes. On board was pragmatism, which proclaimed that reality is plastic, indeterminate experience. On board was phenomenology, which proclaimed that reality is constituted of forms and essences bracketed from all physical existence. On board was relativity theory in physics, which proclaimed that reality is a pure field of force without the existence of anything which carries force. On board was quantum theory in physics, which proclaimed that reality is constituted of physical objects which move about by pure chance, and movement itself is an illusion; all so-called movement is "quantized"; and is created by a rapid, motion picture type succession of static states. On board was string theory in physics, which proclaimed that reality is constituted of threadlike concentrations of energy without the existence of anything which possesses energy and moves. On board was Martin Heidegger, who proclaimed that reality is the "being there" of the human will, a "being there" which is nowhere. On board was Ludwig Wittgenstein, who proclaimed that reality is constituted of arbitrary and subjective "language games". On board was Jurgen Habermas, who proclaimed that reality is manufactured by discourse, communication, deliberation and consensus. On board were philosophers in the twenty first century alive at the time of the collapse, who proclaimed that the world of physical objects is nothing more than an impression produced by the brain and has no reality. They proclaimed that the world of physical objects is a neural simulation. They proclaimed that the world of physical objects is the product of a stream of consciousness. They proclaimed that the world of physical objects is a figment of the imagination. They proclaimed that the world of physical objects is the product of dreams floating through space and what is called existence is pure nothingness: "Now, let this X be the entire physical universe and all physical things in it: all matter, energy, space, time, force, motion, and so on. The whole shooting match. I put it to you that you cannot be sure that X is really there. Science fiction fans will find this bit easy, and I must beg indulgence of those whose reading habits are more Chekhov than Asimov. The starting point for the sci-fi fans is to imagine that your brain is floating in a glass vat. A life support system pumps a supply of oxygen and glucose into the brain, and extracts waste matter from the blood supply. A dense bank of electrodes connects the brain to a massive electronic computer. Signals are transmitted into the brain to create the impression that the brain inhabits a body walking around a three dimensional world. And other signals, which emanate from the brain's motor cortex, are picked up by the computer and used to simulate the movement of the virtual body in the virtual space. So far this is fairly mundane, but now we must move from science fiction to science fantasy. The next step is to imagine that you do not even have a brain: that you are just a disembodied stream of consciousness floating in nothingness. (Forgive me if this seems puerile. Philosophy is like this sometimes.) Now you have the idea of the whole physical world (X) being a figment of your imagination. Here's the crunch: How do you know this is not how things really are? How do you know that you are not really a consciousness floating in a vacuum? 'Well, it's not very likely, is it?', the reader may reply in a harsh tone of voice. 'The chances of this science fantasy scenario being true must be vanishingly small.' All I want you to do is to accept the possibility, not the probability: to agree that it really is conceivable that you are just a stream of consciousness with no physical substrate. It doesn't matter that you regard this possibility as so unlikely that you would never seriously consider that it might be true." (The Physical World Is A Fiction by Peter Lloyd). On board the train of civilizational collapse was a world famous publication, consulted by mental health professionals and university faculties throughout the world. Published by the American Psychiatric Association, it was called the Diagnostic And Statistical Manual Of Mental Disorders. A section of the manual was opened by the action of the crash. It contained the chapter on schizophrenia. It defined this terrifying disorder as follows: "A psychotic disorder characterized by disturbances in thinking, emotional responsiveness and behavior. [It includes] delusions and hallucinations." Denying that physical objects exist or are perceived or can be known with certainty to exist, Western philosophy has been a thousand year old byword and synonym for this disorder.