INTRODUCTION

These reports are intended for a general, nonspecialist audience. They run the gamut of the arts and sciences, historical and current events, and should provide the reader with useful introductions to given topics. May they encourage a few happy hours of suggestive thought!

REDS DEMAND REPARATIONS

And I had done a hellish thing,/And it would work them woe:/For all averred, I had killed the bird/That made the breeze to blow./Ah wretch! said they, the bird to slay,/That made the breeze to blow! These lines from Samuel Taylor Coleridge's Rime Of The Ancient Mariner have haunted people since they first appeared in 1798. They stand for a creed opposed to the life of the free man, a creed seeking to bind him into chains of slavery. They stand for an ever present threat posed to free societies since time immemorial by mobs and movements animated by hatred. This is the creed of collective responsibility, the creed that an individual is responsible for the deeds committed by others belonging to his group, and it is as unjust as it is genocidal in theory and practice. The creed of collective responsibility proclaims that groups are mystical beings which possess moral agency independently of the individuals which comprise them, and a wronged individual has the right to avenge himself by killing all the members of the group to which the actual person who wronged him belongs. Denying individual responsibility for actions, and asserting collective guilt and culpability, a black power movement in the twenty first century has utilized the creed of collective responsibility in its campaign to wipe out whites. This movement emerged from a fever swamp called gender, race and class politics filled by Marxists in the twentieth century, and emerged as a race Marxist monster dripping with blood. Listen to the monster on a rampage in the twenty first century demanding the lives and property of whites. Listen to its manifesto of racism and hear the drumbeats of Marxist class war and race war shatter the foundations of civilization. Rejecting the values of the Enlightenment and the liberal order which made the West the envy of the world, the monster proclaims that a progressive society enacts reparations for black slavery which existed over a century ago. It proclaims that the descendants of people who were enslaved are entitled to reparations from those who never enslaved them. It proclaims that blacks today are entitled to reparations for the enslavement of their ancestors in the name of racial justice. It proclaims that confiscating wealth from innocent whites today to pay for slavery which existed before the United States Civil War is the vital roadmap to progressive justice. It proclaims that a progressive society forces whites to apologize to blacks for slavery over one hundred years ago and pay them trillions of dollars in the name of truth, healing and reconciliation. It proclaims that a progressive society forces whites who never harmed or enslaved blacks or participated in slavery to give blacks reparations for what they never did. It proclaims that a progressive society is a radical leftist society which forces innocent taxpayers who never owned slaves to pay reparations to the descendants of African slaves. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by a commission of people's commissars which has enacted an African-Americans Act to launch a race war against whites and expropriate, expel, enslave and exterminate them: "Democrat controlled New York City may enact reparations for slavery in the near future following a decision by the city council on Thursday. During its meeting, the council approved legislation to study the Big Apple's role in slavery as a way to mull reparations to descendants of people who were slaves, Fox 5 reported on Friday. 'If the measure is signed into law, the city would be among the few places actively working towards reparations,' the report said, adding, 'This follows the Racial Justice Commission's (RJC) Roadmap For Justice, a series of measures to address racial justice and reconciliation.' In June 2023, Breitbart News reported that a commission to consider reparations would proceed in the state of New York under a bill passed by the state's Legislature. The outlet noted that reparations were also part of the political agenda in other states around the nation. 'Council members Crystal Hudson and Farah Louis sponsored a pair of bills to establish a Truth, Healing and Reconciliation Commission and a reparations task force. Both bills passed on Thursday and will be effective immediately,' Fox News reported on Thursday. However, the New York City Council Minority Leader Joseph Borelli, who was among eight others to vote against the legislation, expressed his disagreement with the bills. 'If they can introduce me to one New Yorker who owned a slave I'd be happy to consider it. But until then, I am not paying a dime as a reparation for a harm I did not cause, nor condone, nor once participated in,' he commented. Meanwhile, radical leftists are pressuring their ally, Vice President Kamala Harris (D), who is running against former President Donald Trump for the White House in 2024, to keep supporting the idea of reparations, Breitbart News reported September 4. 'Though 68 percent of Americans oppose reparations, according to a Pew Research poll in 2022, Harris pledged several times to force taxpayers to pay reparations for descendants of Africans enslaved,' the article said. 'While running for president in 2020, Harris told the Reverend Al Sharpton, an MSNBC host and activist, that she would sign a reparations bill [Commission to Study and Develop Reparation Proposals for African-Americans Act proposed by Representative Shelia Jackson Lee] if she became president.' " (Democrat Controlled New York City May Enact Reparations For Slavery by Amy Furr). Listen to the establishment proclaim that Britain must pay trillions of dollars in damages for the transatlantic slave trade which existed over a century ago. It proclaims that British taxpayers must face unpleasant facts and accept responsibility for the transatlantic slave trade and pay reparations for what they never organized. It proclaims that the British government committed a wrongful act over a century ago in organizing the transatlantic slave trade, and therefore must pay reparations now for it, when all perpetrators and victims have long since died. It proclaims that the establishment of chattel slavery is a crime against humanity, and Britain's establishment of it over a century ago makes it liable for it in perpetuity, regardless of the absence of enslavers and enslaved. It proclaims that Britain, Spain, France and America are former slaveholding states and must pay reparations today for their past deeds committed centuries ago. It proclaims that progressive international law demands that Britain pay multitrillion dollar reparations to blacks for past slavery, for only through such reparations paid by people who had no hand in slavery to people who were never enslaved, can blacks achieve true freedom and emancipation. It proclaims that Britain must surrender all its wealth to blacks for the slavery which it abolished in 1833. It proclaims that because the British government, including the monarchy, participated in the transatlantic slave trade hundreds of years ago, every black in Britain today is entitled to receive money from taxpayers as reparations. It proclaims that Britain must negotiate with blacks on how much reparations it will pay for the slavery existing in the sixteenth, seventeenth, eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries, and must pay reparations now and for all time to come, and no amount assessed for reparations can ever be held to be too much to pay. It proclaims that when assessing the amount of reparations whites today must pay to blacks for centuries old acts of slavery, social justice and social responsibility have decreed that the sky is the limit. It proclaims that British taxpayers must apologize to blacks for the corruption and wickedness of slavery, and the systematic humiliation of blacks inflicted by it, and must make reparations for the slavery existing centuries ago by surrendering all their liberty and property, and placing themselves on Caribbean style plantations lorded over by their black masters: "A UN judge says the UK is likely to owe more than £18tn in reparations for its historical role in slavery. A report coauthored by the judge, Patrick Robinson, says the UK should pay $24tn (£18.8tn) for its slavery involvement in 14 countries. But Mr Robinson said the sum was an 'underestimation' of the damage caused by the slave trade. He said he was amazed some countries responsible for slavery think they can 'bury their heads in the sand.' 'Once a state has committed a wrongful act, it's obliged to pay reparations,' said Mr Robinson, who presided over the trial of Slobodan Milosevic, the former Yugoslav president. Mr Robinson spoke to the BBC ahead of his keynote speech at an event to mark Unesco's Day for Remembering the Transatlantic Slave Trade and Abolition at London's City Hall on Wednesday. He's been a member of the International Court of Justice (ICJ) since 2015 and has been researching reparations as part of his honorary presidency of the American Society of International Law. He brought together a group of economists, lawyers and historians to produce the Brattle Group Report On Reparations For Transatlantic Chattel Slavery. The report, which was released in June, is seen as one of the most comprehensive attempts yet to put figures on the harms caused by slavery, and calculate the reparations due by each country. In total, the reparations to be paid by 31 former slaveholding states--including Spain, the United States and France--amount to $107.8tn (£87.1tn), the report calculates. The valuation is based on an assessment of five harms caused by slavery and the wealth accumulated by countries involved in the trade. The report sets out decades long payment plans but says it is up to governments to negotiate what sums are paid and how. In his speech at the London mayor's office, Mr Robinson said reparations were 'necessary for the completion of emancipation.' He said the 'high figures' in the Brattle Report 'constitute a clear, unvarnished statement of the grossness' of slavery. In his own speech, London Mayor Sadiq Khan said the transatlantic slave trade 'remains the most degrading and prolonged act of human exploitation ever committed. There should be no doubt or denial of the scale of Britain's involvement in this depraved experiment.' The Brattle Report has generated interest within the reparations movement, but the governments implicated are highly unlikely to accept its recommendations. Caribbean countries have sought slavery reparations from these governments for years with limited success. Earlier this year, Prime Minister Rishi Sunak dismissed calls for the UK government to apologize and pay reparations for its role in slavery. British authorities and the monarchy were participants in the trade, which saw millions of Africans enslaved and forced to work, especially on plantations in the Caribbean, between the 16th and 19th centuries. Britain also had a key role in ending the trade through Parliament's passage of a law to abolish slavery in 1833." (UK's £18tn Slavery Debt Is An Underestimation, UN Judge Says by Joshua Nevelt). In the twenty first century, black power has reduced the West to a terrifying site. It has reduced the West, consecrated to freedom, to a latter Calvary and Golgotha. It has nailed the white population to a cross for sins committed by whites centuries ago. The new race Marxist creed: the extermination of the white race as sacrifice and reparations for the enslavement of blacks centuries before any whites today were born.

NATIVES, NAZIS, BLOOD AND SOIL

In the the field of ethology, the study of nonhuman animals, the term territory refers to a geographic area an animal defends against competition. It defends its territory using force and aggression or the threat thereof. The purpose of territoriality is to increase an animal's fitness, its ability to survive and succeed, to raise its own young and support the young of other members of the same species. The six thousand year march and pageant of civilization, commencing with the ancient Sumerians of Mesopotamia who appeared in 4000 BC, has served to highlight the tragic failures of mankind. It has shined a light of shame on regressive societies which have since time immemorial brought suffering and misery to people. It has called attention to the existence of animal nations and cultures which have pockmarked and bloodied the corridors of history, and demonstrated that the net of civilization is not all embracing but misses the primitive recalcitrants and stragglers. These animal societies are known as indigenous societies and they show the same attachment to the land, the same territoriality, the same defense of an area, as animals do, and the history of mankind has seen wars and genocide erupt among these societies as they fight like animals to defend and expand their land. Look at indigenous people and see wild, ferocious nomads, for whom law and property were unknown, at once temporarily encamp on land and then defend it to the death. See people living in the age of bronze and stone, terrified at the scenes of civilization brought by European conquerors, as servile toward their Western masters as they were mystically attached to the soil: "Latin America's evolution was predetermined by the Spanish Conquest. That very word conquest tells the story. The United States was settled by colonists planning homes and bringing their women. It was thus a genuine migration, and resulted in a full transplanting of white stock to new soil. The Indians encountered were wild nomads, fierce of temper and few in number. After sharp conflicts they were extirpated, leaving virtually no ethnic traces behind. The colonization of Latin America was the exact antithesis. The Spanish Conquistadores were bold warriors descending upon vast regions inhabited by relatively dense populations, some of which, as in Mexico and Peru, had attained a certain degree of civilization. The Spaniards, invincible in their shining armor, paralyzed with terror these people still dwelling in the age of bronze and polished stone. With ridiculous ease mere handfuls of whites overthrew empires and lorded it like gods over servile and adoring multitudes. Cortez marched on Mexico with less than 600 followers, while Pizarro had but 310 companions when he started his conquest of Peru. Of course the fabulous treasures amassed in these exploits drew swarms of bold adventurers from Spain. Nevertheless, their numbers were always infinitesimal compared with the vastness of the quarry." (The Rising Tide Of Color by Lothrop Stoddard). Look at indigenous people and see an animal attachment to ancestral ways and soil which forever blocks progress toward civilization. See people stagnant, conservative, unchanging, undeveloping, devoid of higher mental capacities, and unconcerned with effecting innovations or improvements of any kind. See people as lacking in effort, achievement and the ability to assess and initiate things as they are irrationally attached to the land, worshiping it as a supernatural being: "The Indian possesses notable stability and poise, but the very intensity of these qualities fetters his progress and renders questionable his ability to rise to the modern plane. His conservatism is immense. With incredible tenacity he clings to his ancestral ways and exhibits a dull indifference to alien innovation. Of course the Indian subraces differ considerably among themselves, but the same fundamental tendencies are visible in all of them. Says Professor Ellsworth Huntington: 'The Indians are very backward. They are dull of mind and slow to adopt new ideas. Perhaps in the future they will change, but the fact that they have been influenced so little by four hundred years of contact with the white man does not afford much ground for hope. Judging from the past, there is no reason to think that their character is likely to change for many generations. Those who dwell permanently in the white man's cities are influenced somewhat, but here as in other cases the general tendency seems to be to revert to the original condition as soon as the special impetus of immediate contact with the white man is removed.' And Lord Bryce writes in similar vein: 'With plenty of stability, they lack initiative. They make steady soldiers, and fight well under white or mestizo leaders, but one seldom hears of a pure Indian accomplishing anything or rising either through war or politics, or in any profession, above the level of his class.' " (The Rising Tide Of Color by Lothrop Stoddard). In the twenty first century, the cause of indigenous rights has been championed by a movement as mortally opposed to civilization as indigenous peoples are. It has been championed by the number one antiEnlightenment movement of our times, by a movement of the mob which has captured every sector of society and field of activity in landslide elections reaching back to the dawn of the twentieth century. It has been championed by Marxism, which has joined forces with indigenous peoples in a war to overthrow their common enemy. Marxists and indigenous peoples blaze with white hot hatred toward the values of reason, science, common sense and individual rights undergirding liberal societies founded by the Enlightenment, and have formed a coalition to overthrow these crowning glories of the West. They have issued a program and manifesto for the abolition of the West, and to hear it is to hear the sound of moral and cultural implosion thundering out after one thousand years of civilizational progress commencing after the Dark Ages. This Marxist-Indigenous axis proclaims that a progressive society is guided by a statement called Land Acknowledgement, which says that Western colonial nations such as America and Australia must acknowledge that indigenous peoples are the true and rightful owners of the land, and the land must in consequence be returned to them. It proclaims that savage peoples are the true and proper custodians of the land and the land belongs to them. It proclaims that colonial lands must be ruled by indigenous elders emanating from the past, present and future. It proclaims that civilization must be sacrificed to barbarism in the name of Acknowledgement Of Country. It proclaims that colonial nations must be ruled by aboriginal people who possess supernatural bonds to the land. It proclaims that a progressive society is a center for savage arts and anticultural development. It proclaims that colonial nations must surrender their land to indigenous tribes because the ancestors of these tribes lived there for thousands of years. It proclaims that a progressive society is an aboriginal theater of war against civilized man featuring nonstop blood, gore and screaming. It proclaims that a progressive society is an indigenous political movement seeking to storm the ramparts of liberal democracy. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by indigenous theatrical performers and political activists whose seek to enact on stage and on the streets the rule of primitive hordes worshipping the mystical forces of blood and soil as they spread panic in the streets: "Duke Regan is only four, but he knows every single word of the Acknowledgement Of Country. He learnt the words at kindergarten: 'I'd like to acknowledge the Gadigal People of the Eora Nation who are the traditional custodians of the land.' His kindergarten, in Sydney's Northern Beaches, joins thousands of other forums around Australia that use these words to pay respect to Indigenous elders past, present and emerging. The Acknowledgement Of Country is used in parliament, at sporting events, in museums and on the news. This is how ancient traditions became a core national custom in little over 20 years. The Acknowledgement Of Country is firmly entwined with another ritual—the Welcome To Country. Unlike the acknowledgement, which can be given by anyone, the welcome is always given by an Aboriginal person, a traditional custodian, with ancestral ties to the land upon which an engagement takes place. The welcome has been a core part of the diplomacy systems that have existed between Indigenous nations for millennia. 'We see the Acknowledgement Of Country as being more contemporary in its origin, certainly the way that we engage with it now,' says Yorta Yorta and Dja Dja Wurrung man Tiriki Onus, who runs the Wilin Center for Indigenous Arts and Cultural Development at the University of Melbourne. '[But] that practice of acknowledging your place, of being able to speak as a visitor, is something that has existed for thousands of generations.' From 1788, when the British colonized the land that would become Australia, welcomes and acknowledgements took on a new political form, but they were far from customary. One noteworthy welcome came in 1978 when Richard Walley and Ernie Dingo, then part of the Middar Aboriginal theater company, were asked by a group of Polynesian performers to give them a Welcome To Country. It was a powerful performance and in the years that followed, Walley was asked to give similar welcomes at a travel show in Perth and a Miss Universe Pageant. But despite this, Mr Onus remembers the tradition as being primarily associated with Indigenous political movements. 'This act of acknowledging country wasn't something that was terribly prevalent in my childhood in the 80s,' he says. 'It was always a very profound act in a political activist sense to acknowledge the unwritten history of a place as a way of asserting the sovereignty of a place.' " (How The Acknowledgement Of Country Became A Core National Custom—And Why It Matters by Joey Watson). The Black Sun is a sun wheel symbol invented in national socialist Germany. It consists of twelve radial sig runes, similar to those used in the SS logo. From this fearsome companion to the swastika radiate lines of tribalism, mysticism, the occult and mass murder. The lines radiate backward and forward in time and space. They capture Western decolonization movements, indigenous land acknowledgements made by the West, indigenous claims to possessing a mystical link to the land, and the national socialist doctrine of blood and soil, the doctrine that a racially defined state possesses a mystic link to its settlement area. The Black Sun of antiEnlightenment has collected the irrational currents of millennia and the present day and projected a picture of the end of the West.

MULLAHS IN THE COMMONS

Scene. Corpses of people killed by the Cheka secret police in 1918 in Kherson, Ukraine. Scene. Corpses of people killed by the Cheka in Kharkiv, Ukraine. Scene. Members of the Young Communist League seizing grain produced by kulaks, grain hidden in a graveyard, in 1930 in Ukraine. Scene. People of Vinnytsia, Ukraine searching through the victims of the Vinnytsia Massacre, perpetrated by the NKVD secret police, and claiming the lives of 11000 people. These are scenes from a horror without equal in the history of mankind. Its basis was the Marxist doctrine of class war and the dictatorship of the proletariat, and it existed in the Soviet Union from the November Revolution of 1917 to fall of the Soviet Union in 1991. Throughout the history of the Soviet Union, repression was the leitmotif and claimed the lives of tens of millions of people, and established a seventy year charnel house which will live forever in the annals of infamy. The fall of the Soviet Union on December 25, 1991 marked the liberation of the millions suffering in the Communist Bloc but did not advance the cause of freedom in the West. The civilization which gave the world the Scientific Revolution and the Enlightenment in the sixteenth, seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, championing reason, truth, empiricism and individual rights, had fallen under the grip of communism at the dawn of the twentieth century, and by the end of the century, this grip had strengthened and intensified. This grip was impossible to dislodge because it had been voted into power by the majority and not established by any elite group or alleged Deep State working behind the scenes against the will of the majority. Communism in the West is a majoritarian phenomenon, a decree of the mob, and has spread like a cancer into every nation of the free world during the twilight stages of civilization. It has spread into the nation which invented freedom in the West. Into the nation which gave the world the Magna Carta in 1215 and the Bill of Rights in 1689, it has spread. Into the nation which had the longest human rights tradition of any nation in the West, a tradition which reached back one thousand years, it has spread. It has spread into Britain and disgraced its traditions of freedom which had given the founder of communism himself, Karl Marx, the freedom to spew out his vitriol which other nations in Europe would not give him. In the twenty first century, the communist mass movement monster has formed an alliance with another mass movement seeking to destroy freedom, a movement which hails from the East. It has formed in alliance with Islam, and with its partner confronts a common enemy and is determined to smash it. In the twenty first century, the West has met the East, and an axis comprised of Marxism and Islam has assumed control over the free world. In Britain, this axis has issued a program and manifesto for the abolition of Britain as this "precious stone set in the silver sea" had been known and exalted for a millennium, and the establishment of an unrecognizable Islamic Republic in its place. Listen to the program and hear a projection from the minaret, a wail from the muezzin, call the faithful to war against civilization. The program proclaims that people opposed to Islam must be taken into police custody at once. It proclaims that people opposed to Islam must be charged with offenses against Allah's community. It proclaims that people opposed to Islam must be silenced forever. It proclaims that Islamic bullies at school terrorizing children must never be publicly exposed or identified. It proclaims that stories of students victimized by Muslims must never be believed. It proclaims that people opposed to Islam must provide the police with access to their homes, offices, automobiles, computers and mobile phones. It proclaims that people opposed to Islam, rallying on behalf of the nation and seeking to unite the British kingdom in freedom under the Union Jack, must be deprived of all their rights. It proclaims that the class of successful white males opposed to Islam must be exterminated. It proclaims that blind obedience to Islam and blind hatred of liberal values must be screened in every cinema in Britain. It proclaims that people opposed to Islam must be subjected to persecution at the hands of a weaponized legal system. It proclaims that people opposed to Islam must be killed in the name of standing up to racism. It proclaims that people opposed to Islam are enemies of the state and must be demonized and expelled from society. It proclaims that Islam must be established as the official religion of Britain in the name of true democracy. It proclaims that people who call attention to the monsters of Islam and their crimes against humanity are threats to national unity and must be censored. It proclaims that people who support free speech, constitutional government and a secular society have no place in Britain and must be shut down along with every bookstore, website and social platform allied with them: "In the last few days a new chapter has been added to the storied saga of the 41 year old British activist, author, and citizen journalist Tommy Robinson. On Friday, upon his return to Britain after several weeks abroad, he was taken into police custody—an event he had expected and discussed publicly before flying back home—and charged with several 'offenses.' One of the charges, contempt of court, relates to his documentary Silenced, which premiered in July at a screening in Trafalgar Square and has been viewed on X more than 50 million times. In that documentary, Tommy gathered ample witness testimony showing that Jamal Hijazi, a Syrian refugee portrayed in the British media as the victim of bullying at the school he attended in Huddersfield, West Yorkshire, in 2018, was not a victim but was, in fact, himself a bully—and a rather horrible one, at that. What, then, was Tommy's crime? He'd been ordered by a judge not to contradict the official narrative about Hijazi—specifically, not to describe him as 'aggressive and bullying' or as 'threatening,' even if he was aggressive and bullying and threatening. A second contempt of court charge was leveled at Tommy for several related 'offenses,' such as discussing the Hijazi case in an interview with Jordan Peterson, holding that July screening in Trafalgar Square, and posting Silenced on X and YouTube. In addition to the contempt charges, Tommy was charged under the Terrorism Act for refusing to provide the police with access to the contents of his mobile phone, which include material that would compromise his sources. On Saturday, supporters of Tommy held a Unite the Kingdom rally in London, turning out in such significant numbers that, as the Guardian put it, 'the demonstration spilled out from its meeting point around Victoria Station.' The Guardian made sure to point out that the protesters, many of whom were treated to an outdoor screening of his new documentary, Lawfare, were 'mostly male, white and middle aged' (all bad things, of course) and that many of them were waving Union Jacks (that most toxic of items). Meanwhile counter protesters took part in a rally arranged by a leftist group called Stand Up To Racism. Aside from his documentaries, Tommy has also written a couple of books. Enemy Of The State (2015) is an autobiography that focuses on his demonization by the British government, which finds his determination to expose monstrous Islamic crimes inconvenient, distasteful, and threatening to 'community cohesion.' His second book, written with Peter McLoughlin, is entitled Muhammed's Koran (2017). His newest, Manifesto: Free Speech, Real Democracy, Peaceful Disobedience, also written with McLoughlin, came out on October 4, but when I looked for it on Amazon UK it was identified as being 'currently unavailable.' After trying to find some other way of acquiring the book online, I was finally able to secure a copy through the good offices of a friend of mine who is also a chum of Tommy's. (On October 25, Tommy—or somebody—posted at his X account that orders for the book could be placed at a dedicated website and that new copies would be available). " (Jailing Tommy Again by Robert Spencer). The Marxist-Islamist axis in control of Britain today proclaims that people who expose crimes committed by Muslims are guilty of libel, defamation and contempt of court and must pay multimillion dollar damages and be put into jail. It proclaims that people who expose the depravities of Muslim grooming and trafficking gangs must be drummed out of human society. It proclaims that all claims of Muslim attacks and aggression committed against innocent men, women and children are by definition unfounded because Muslims are a politically correct master race with a natural right to rule the nation: "Tommy Robinson has been sentenced to 18 months after admitting to contempt of court for repeating allegations about a Syrian refugee that had been previously ruled libellous by a court. Robinson, who rose to prominence by highlighting the scourge of mostly Muslim grooming gangs sexually preying on young girls in England, admitted to repeating claims about Syrian Jamal Hijazi ten times between 2023 and 2024, according to The Telegraph. As previously reported: 'The case stemmed from a 2018 incident in which the Syrian refugee schoolboy was filmed being attacked by other pupils at the Almondbury Community School in Huddersfield, West Yorkshire. Following outrage over the incident, Robinson had claimed that Hijazi was 'not innocent and he violently attacks young English girls in his school.' Hijazi was awarded £100,000 in compensation from Robinson after a court found the statements to be libellous and unfounded.' On Monday, Robinson admitted to repeating the claims during six online interviews, including one with Canadian psychologist Jordan Peterson earlier this year, as well as four times in his documentary film Silenced, which is still pinned to his profile on X." (Tommy Robinson Jailed For 18 Months For Repeating Allegations About Syrian Refugee by Kurt Zindulka). Seven decades of Soviet repression crushed the voices of freedom beneath an iron heel. Condemning these voices as the enemies of the people, the iron heel was forged in the fires of summary executions, slave labor, forced resettlement, collectivization, the Gulag, the Cheka, the NKVD, the KGB, the Red Terror, the Great Purges and the Doctors' Plot. Enforcing Marxism, the Soviet iron heel was brought into power by the rifle. In Britain in the twenty first century, the iron heel is back in business. It is back in business in the nation which for centuries had been the world's policeman for freedom and the shining antithesis of the iron heel. It is back in business in Britain, brought into power, British style, by the ballot box, and now enforces Islam.

TRANSGENDER TOTALITARIANS

Marcus Aurelius Antoninus, born in 204 AD and died on March 13, 222 AD, is better known by his nickname. Elagabalus was Roman emperor from 218 to 222 while he was still a teenager, and his short reign descended to the depths of degeneracy and fixed itself on page one in the annals of public scandal. Elagabalus proclaimed he was a woman. He proclaimed he was a mistress, a wife and a queen. He wore cosmetics and wigs, demanded to be called a lady and not a lord, and paid his doctor to give him a vagina by means of a surgical incision. His psychotic behavior provoked the outrage of the Praetorian Guard, the Senate and the common people, and at the age of 18, he was assassinated by the guard, who threw his corpse into the Tiber River. Two thousand years after Elagabalus achieved notoriety, his brand of psychosis is back in business and is flourishing in the West. It is now called transgenderism; it is the doctrine that DNA, sex genes and sex chromosomes do not exist or are unimportant, and that human gender is not intrinsic or immutable; and it has become part of the prevailing orthodoxy during the twilight stages of civilization. While Elagabalus was parading his psychosis, Rome had commenced its moral and spiritual descent, a downward spiral which would bring forth the triumph of Christianity and barbarism, and two thousand years after Elagabalus, Roman transgenderism has returned and is seated in the ruling circles of the West. In the twenty first century, the establishment has issued a series of proclamations declaring war on the Enlightenment and relegating science and freedom to the dustbin of society. In the twenty first century, the establishment has enforced transgenderism in every sector of society and every field of human activity, and has permanently shut off the light of the mind and the tradition of speech unshackled to dogma. The establishment proclaims that a progressive society dismisses teachers who uphold science and refuse to refer to biologically male students as she or her or to biological female students as he or him. It proclaims that a progressive society forces people to reject the principles of science and sanity and address as females males who pretend to be females, and address as males females who pretend to be males. It proclaims that a progressive society forces people to obey the commands of psychotics to refer to them in the pronouns of their choice. It proclaims that a progressive society is a center for transgender equality which enforces ideological lockstep and polices speech and thought for politically incorrect pronoun usage. It proclaims that a progressive society punishes people for harassment, retaliation and discrimination who invoke their right of free speech and refer to biological males using male pronouns, and to biological females using female pronouns. It proclaims that a progressive society punishes people who refuse to violate the tenets of truth and refuse to refer to transgenders by the pronouns of their choice, and puts the heretics in jail as prisoners of conscience. It proclaims that a progressive society shuts down all alliances defending freedom of speech on the grounds that there is no freedom to tell the truth, to expose transgenderism as a symptom of psychosis, and to refer to biological males and females using the biologically appropriate pronouns. It proclaims that a progressive society establishes educational policies which deny the facts of science and the right of free speech by forcing teachers to describe people pretending to be members of the opposite sex in the politically correct manner. It proclaims that a progressive society forces teachers to speak words which are false, words which refer to people pretending to be members of the opposite sex as being in fact such members, and forces teachers to speak these false words in the classroom, out of the classroom and everywhere they go. It proclaims that a progressive society forces teachers to participate in transgenderist political correctness as it shreds one thousand years of free speech constitutional law: "A Virginia teacher who was fired six years ago for refusing to refer to a biologically female student as 'he/him' will be the recipient of an almost $600,000 settlement. As reported by The College Fix, French teacher Peter Vlaming was fired by the West Point School Board in December of 2018 based on a policy essentially invented 'out of thin air.' After Vlaming inadvertently used 'she' when referring to the student in 'his' absence, the student requested a meeting upon hearing about it. Vlaming then met with the student and parents, whereupon one parent demanded he 'leave his principles and beliefs out of this' and just use the male pronouns as requested. Vlaming's principal subsequently told him to 'do whatever the parents ask,' and the assistant principal gave him documents from the National Center for Transgender Equality regarding 'pronoun usage.' After another pronoun slip up by Vlaming, the parents withdrew the student from his class. Vlaming was suspended for one month while the district looked into whether he violated its 'harassment or retaliation' policy. Superintendent Laura Abel required Vlaming to use male pronouns for the student 'regardless of location or context, even outside of school.' When Vlaming said he could not 'in good conscience' comply with such a demand, the school board fired him for violations of district nondiscrimination policy. According to an Alliance Defending Freedom press release, the West Point School Board's settlement with Vlaming includes $575,000 in damages and lawyers' fees, and the removal of his termination from his record. Separately, the board agreed to 'change its policies to conform to the new Virginia education policies established by Governor Glenn Youngkin that respect fundamental free speech and parental rights.' ADF Center for Academic Freedom Director Tyson Langhofer said '[Vlaming] wasn't fired for something he said; he was fired for something he couldn't say. The school board violated his First Amendment rights under the Virginia Constitution and commonwealth law.' Langhofer added that Vlaming 'couldn't in good conscience speak messages that he knew were untrue, and no school board or government official can punish someone for that reason.' " (Teacher Fired For Refusing To Use Student's Preferred Pronouns Gets $575K Settlement, College Fix, October 1, 2024). Listen to the establishment proclaim that the use of pronouns based on biological reality is a form of hate speech against transgenders. It proclaims that a progressive society forces people to adhere to transgender ideology. It proclaims that a progressive society is a totalitarian society which outlaws all criticism of transgender psychosis in public and in private. It proclaims that a progressive society forces professors to refer to students using politically correct LGBT pronouns which have no basis in science. It proclaims that a progressive society forces professors to use pronouns referring to students which are unsupported by the students' actual gender. It proclaims that a progressive society mandates the use of pronouns which bear no relation to genetic reality. It proclaims that a progressive society mandates the exclusive use of gender neutral pronouns on the grounds that gender is nonexistent. It proclaims that a progressive society violates the right of free speech and forces people to refer to individuals using biologically incorrect pronouns and forces them to publicly renounce centuries of scientific research and commitment to truth: "A Montana State University student who criticized 'preferred pronouns' settled her lawsuit against the school after it punished her for 'hate speech.' This is not the first time the public university has been sued for imposing gender ideology on students. The university agreed to pay $120,000 to settle a lawsuit from Erik Powell in 2017. Powell privately criticized a gender dysphoric student in a meeting with a professor. The issue of 'preferred pronouns' continues to cause headaches for universities. Shawnee State University agreed to pay out $400,000 to settle a lawsuit from Professor Nicholas Meriwether after it punished him for not using a student's made up LGBT pronouns. The public Ohio university, 'agreed Meriwether will never be mandated to use pronouns, including if a student requests pronouns that conflict with his or her biological sex,' Alliance Defending Freedom announced at the time. A Southern Utah University professor also sued to stop mandatory pronoun usage in Sep. 2022. 'Professor Richard Bugg must submit to education about current views and opinions of English language and grammar experts and resources that using gender neutral pronouns when referring to an individual is now considered grammatically correct,' one sanction stated, as previously reported by The Fix. 'Asking people to use plural pronouns to refer to individuals is one thing,' the theater professor stated. 'Forcing them to do it is another and contrary to our rights of free speech.' Other students and professors should fight back like Danley did against gender ideology." (Montana State Student Wins Legal Battle Over 'Preferred Pronouns' by Matt Lamb). Societies on their way down afford ample space to transgenderism. It is an integral component of mass mental collapse. Scenes of such collapse abound in history. The Rome of Emperor Elagabalus is described by Edward Gibbon in his History Of The Decline And Fall Of The Roman Empire, Chapter VI: "The master of the Roman world [Elagabalus] affected to copy the manners and dress of the female sex, preferring the distaff to the scepter, and dishonored the principal dignities of the empire by distributing them among his numerous lovers; one of whom was publicly invested with the title and authority of the emperor's, or, as he more properly styled himself, the empress's husband." In Weimar Germany, the Institute for Sex Research, founded in Berlin in 1919 by Magnus Hirschfeld, championed transgenderism. Hirschfeld wrote the bible of the new religion: Transvestites: The Erotic Drive To Cross-Dress. In the twenty first century, the denial of biological reality has returned under a blue, white and pink flag, radiating the colors of drag queens, drag kings and the degeneracy of the West.

WEST LOSES BATTLE OF TOURS

October 10, 732 AD. A tide of blood called Islam has reached France. It had spread like a cancer through the Arabian Peninsula, the Caspian Sea, Persia, Egypt, North Africa, the Atlantic Ocean, the Straits of Gibraltar and the Iberian Peninsula, and had become an empire greater than Rome. At this time, the Roman Empire had itself long since disintegrated and upon its ashes had risen the victorious forces of Christianity and barbarism. On this fateful day, on the battlefields of France, upon the ruins of the Roman Empire, a Frankish army under the command of Charles Martel confronted a much larger Islamic army under the command of Abd Al Rahman Al Gafiqi, confronted this invader near the city of Tours, and moved by a will to defend the cause of freedom, repelled it. This victory stopped the spread of Islam and allowed the nascent civilization of the West to develop. One of the most decisive battles in the history of mankind, the Battle of Tours saved Europe and its consequences are described by Edward Gibbon in his magnum opus The History Of The Decline And Fall Of The Roman Empire: "If not for Charles' victory, perhaps the interpretation of the Koran would now be taught in the schools of Oxford." Fifteen hundred years after Frankish freedom fighters defeated the enemy and reduced its soldiers to corpses strewn across the field of battle, Islam has risen in triumph over the West and rendered its defeat by the West at Tours a dead letter. Fifteen hundred years after the Islamic penetration of Europe was brought to a halt, the enemy has returned and achieved victory. The victory was enabled by the moral implosion of the West. This implosion voted the dark twins Marxism and mobocracy into power in successive cultural and political landslide elections reaching back to the dawn of the twentieth century, and in the twenty first century, the Marxist establishment has made common cause with Islam in its war against the Enlightenment. The Marxist establishment has let in the enemy through the gates and handed it a victory it has not had to militarily fight for. Under the influence of Marxism, the West no longer has the will, the spirit or the desire to fight for freedom, and is under the popular control of Marxist gender, race and class wars, and Islamic religious wars, which have joined forces in a campaign to smash liberalism, a campaign which has disgraced the ground on which the Frankish heroes fell at Tours. The Marxist-Islamist axis which defines the Western establishment today has issued a program and manifesto for the reversal of the Battle of Tours and the disestablishment of the values of the Enlightenment. The new axis powers proclaim that a progressive society issues rulings from muftis ordering the killing of people who challenge Islam. They proclaim that a progressive society forces people opposed to Islam to go on the run, live in safe houses, wear body armor and procure bodyguard protection. They proclaim that a progressive society forces people opposed to Islam to give up their freedom and privacy in order to save their lives. They proclaim that a progressive society forces people opposed to Islam to become fugitives in their own lands. They proclaim that a progressive society makes death threats against people opposed to

Islamization and carries out those threats. They proclaim that a progressive society outlaws all parties and movements in support of freedom and jails their members. They proclaim that a progressive society outlaws freedom of speech and silences the critics of Islam. They proclaim that a progressive society is a Taliban society and an Islamic State society which has placed the supporters of freedom on a death list. They proclaim that a progressive society enforces the tenets of Islam in the name of true democracy. They proclaim that a progressive society places bombs in the mailboxes of people who tell the truth and condemn Islam as a gutter religion. They proclaim that a progressive society controls the thought and speech of its citizens and forbids all thoughts, words, depictions and illustrations deemed to be politically incorrect. They proclaim that a progressive society is a cancel society which has eradicated every trace of opposition to Islam. They proclaim that a progressive society is run by terrorists armed with pistols and automatic weapons, committing mass murder in the name of the Prophet Mohammed. They proclaim that a progressive society employs police to shoot down the opponents of Islam like dogs. They proclaim that a progressive society is a parliament of Islam which has voted to take the opponents of the faithful as prisoners of conscience. They proclaim that a progressive society is run by Islamic clerics which have built barbed wire fences around freedom of thought and belief. They proclaim that a progressive society is a regime of fear and intimidation which has installed the Islamic faithful to patrol the streets. They proclaim that a progressive society is a prison society which has crushed unfettered inquiry and the search for scientific truth and enlightenment. They proclaim that a progressive society is an Islamic theocracy, an Islamic dictatorship, an Islamic isle of the dead and an Islamic hell on Earth: "Today, September 2nd, is a historic day. It is the first time ever that an Islamic cleric will have to stand trial for issuing an assassination fatwa. In a few weeks, it will be 20 years since policemen wearing bulletproof vests and carrying machine guns arrived at my home. They gave me ten minutes to pack, pushed me into an armored car and drove me off to an unknown destination. The evening of November 4, 2004, was the last time that my wife and I were in our house. Since that moment, we have been forced to live in various safe houses. We have lost our freedom and privacy. Everywhere I go, I am constantly surrounded by bodyguards. The same thing happened on that ominous evening to my colleague, fellow member of the Dutch Parliament, Ayaan Hirsi Ali, a fugitive from Islamic Somalia. We had both been fierce critics of Islam and the Islamization of our country, the Netherlands. As a result of this, Islamic death threats or fatwas ordering the Islamic faithful to kill us had been issued. Since then, Ayaan has left Dutch politics and emigrated to the United States. I stayed and founded my own party, the Party for Freedom (PVV), which is currently the largest party in the Netherlands and the largest party in the ruling government coalition. I have always been a firm defender of freedom of speech. It is the bedrock of a free society and a functioning democracy. I will never be silenced. Fatwas, death threats, being on the death list of the Taliban and ISIS, nothing will ever stop me from telling the inconvenient truth. I realize, however, that the fatwas and death threats against me—rare is the day that I do not receive one in my mailbox—are not just intended to silence me, but also to intimidate everyone else not to be as 'reckless' as me in voicing their opinion. Fatwas are a direct assault on freedom of speech. The Iranian Ayatollah Khomeini has never been taken to court for his 1989 fatwa condemning the British author Salman Rushdie to death, but he should have been. Today, in Amsterdam, the court case begins against two Pakistani citizens, Muhammed Ashraf Asif Jalali (55) and Saad Hussain Rizvi (29). Although the proceedings will be held in their absence, the trial is hugely significant. Not just for me, the victim, but also for the defence of the freedom of speech of every Dutchman and citizen of the free West. In May 2015, I was present at a cartoon contest in Garland, Texas, where cartoons of the Islamic prophet Muhammed were judged. Islam forbids the depiction of its prophet, but there is no reason why this prohibition should apply to non-Muslims. The contest in Garland was won by the American illustrator Bosch Fawstin, a former Muslim, for a picture of Muhammed saying 'You can't draw me!' and the artist replying 'That's why I will draw you.' As it happened, two Islamic terrorists attacked the Garland cartoon exhibition with semiautomatic rifles and handguns but were shot by police officers before they could cause much havoc, apart from wounding a guard. In 2018, after I had announced my intention to invite Mr Fawstin over to The Hague and organize a similar contest there, Imam Djalali issued a fatwa against me, calling on his followers to kill me and promising a reward in the afterlife. Due to the security risks, I had no option but to cancel the Dutch cartoon contest. Some believers take these fatwas very seriously, as was illustrated when Junaid Iqbal, a 26 year old Pakistani, was arrested in The Hague in August 2018 for plotting to 'send the dog Wilders to hell.' In February 2021, the court in The Hague sentenced Mr Iqbal to 10 years in prison for preparing a terrorist attack on me. In September last year, the court in The Hague also sentenced another Pakistani citizen, 37 year old Khalid Latif, a former captain of the Pakistani national cricket team, to 12 years in prison for offering an amount equivalent to $23,500 for murdering me. 'It is very likely that someone anywhere in the world would feel compelled to act on this call,' the court stated. Mr Latif was not present during the trial and did not respond to the conviction, but will now no longer be able to travel to countries which have an extradition treaty with the Netherlands. Along with Imam Jalali, Saad Hussain Rizvi will also stand trial in Amsterdam today. He is the leader of the political party Tehreek-e-Labbaik Pakistan (TLP). During a press conference in Karachi in 2018, he too called for my assassination." (The Netherlands Is Taking A Pakistani Imam To Court For Issuing Fatwa And Deserves The West's Support by Geert Wilders). Charles de Steuben was a French Romantic painter and lithographer active under Napoleon. His most acclaimed work is the 1839 oil painting Battle Of Tours 732, depicting a triumphant Charles Martel defeating Abd Al Rahman Al Gafiqi on the field of battle. The victory of the Frankish army and the withdrawal of the Umayyads gave a new lease on life to the West. In the twenty first century, the West has been shattered by Islamic calls to prayer. The Western establishment is a mosque, a megaphone and an ear splitting broadcast center making the ground quake beneath the charging cavalry of the faithful: "Cologne's massive central mosque broadcast the Islamic call to prayer for the first time ever this week following a German court ruling granting permission to do so. The Islamic call to prayer was publicly broadcast from the mosque for Friday prayers this week for five minutes at a time between noon and 3 pm determined by the position of the sun in the Ehrenfeld district of Cologne." (Cologne Mega Mosque Blasts Islamic Call To Prayer Over Loudspeakers For First Time by Chris Tomlinson). In the twenty first century, the establishment has granted permission to Islam to overrun the West. In mosque prayers held every Friday between noon and 3 pm, the establishment publicly announces the end of civilization.

BLACK NAZIS IN THE SADDLE

September 15, 1935. Hitler's Germany enacts two laws related to race and definitively exits from the Western liberal community. These laws are the Reich Citizenship Law and the Law For The Protection Of German Blood And Honor. Known as the Nuremberg Laws because they were announced at a National Socialist Party rally held in Nuremberg, these laws were enacted to put the regime's ideology of race into practice. Inspired by the Marxist world view and method which views mystical tribes as the primary existents, agents of action and units of value, the national socialists changed the Marxist faces and flags but kept the Marxist theme, and promoted a race based conception of man and society in place of a class based conception. They proclaimed that the world is divided into races which are unequal in strength and value. The strongest and most valuable race is the Aryan race, while Jews form a race which is inferior to all other races. The Nuremberg laws deprived the Jews of all their rights and proclaimed that only members of the Aryan race possess rights. Less than a century after Hitler's neoMarxist regime, placing Aryans in the role of the proletariat and Jews in the role of the bourgeois, crashed into defeat and ruin, the racists are back in business with new faces and new flags, but retaining the same Hitler theme. The faces and flags now represent black power, while the new hate target is whites. From Marx's dichotomy of proletariat-bourgeois to Hitler's dichotomy of Aryan-Jew to the present day dichotomy of black-white is but a short logical and philosophical step, and the program and manifesto of Hitler's black power heirs and descendants has set into motion a holocaust rivalling Hitler's holocaust against Jews and the holocaust against the bourgeois perpetrated by the former Communist Bloc. Listen to the words blasting out the latest version of Marx and Hitler during the twilight stages of civilization. They proclaim that a progressive society shuts down school classrooms and programs if they include too many white students. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes school programs whose students reflect the racial composition of society. They proclaim that a progressive society promotes racist selection procedures for students in school programs in the name of achieving diversity. They proclaim that a progressive society condemns as negative school programs whose students include whites out of proportion to their percentage of the general population, whose white numbers are deemed to be excessive and in need of reduction. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes far left school boards seeking to ensure there are sufficient numbers of blacks and not a disproportionate number of whites in classrooms and programs. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes race discrimination in favor of blacks and calls this illegality and immorality the highest expression of legality and morality. They proclaim that a progressive society selects black students for studies in science, technology, engineering and medicine and excludes white students, and shuts down STEM courses if they have white students. They proclaim that a progressive society violates liberal constitutional law and sanctions affirmative action policies favoring blacks in university admissions. They proclaim that a progressive society denies educational opportunities to whites in the name of achieving racially balanced student populations. It proclaims that a progressive society moves students around schools, districts and classrooms in order to achieve politically correct proportions of black and white students. They proclaim that a progressive society mandates that schools renounce the race blindness demanded by the constitution and treat students unequally, and favor black students over white students. They proclaim that a progressive society offers school programs and runs school classrooms promoting black national socialism, and selects students because they are black. They proclaim that a progressive society affirms that the only legitimate form of decision making is racist decision making which exhibits blatant favoritism toward blacks. They proclaim that a progressive society has thrown equal protection laws to the winds and is a black Marxist totalitarian dictatorship: "A school district in Wisconsin is facing the possibility of a legal challenge after it announced plans to shutter some programs for being 'too white.' Technically, according to the Wisconsin Institute for Law and Liberty, the district's objections are that the students in the programs are 'not as diverse as the district's overall population.' 'To be sure, you view higher populations of white students in any given program or school as a negative factor that must be corrected,' the legal team told district officials in the Wauwatosa School District. WILL explained that a legal action could result. 'Around the country, woke school boards are closing schools and shifting programs because they don't like the racial makeup,' explained Dan Lennington, lawyer for WILL. 'This is illegal and immoral race discrimination. (The school) should resist this plan or face the consequences.' WILL reported Wauwatosa officials announced plans 'to shut down the Wauwatosa STEM school, currently ranked the third best elementary school in Wisconsin by US News And World Report.' Further, officials want to dump 'other STEM specific programs and opportunities district wide because the programs are too white.' However, the lawyers explained in the letter federal law and the US Constitution prohibit school districts from implementing policies to 'racially balance' student populations. If needed, WILL said it will bring a civil action against the district. 'According to the district website, a task force is proposing to fix several 'challenges' and 'concerns' in the district, including the fact that in certain programs and schools, the 'student population is not as diverse as the District's overall population.' This is just code for race, and the district's desire to shift around students to have a preferable balance,' the legal team said. However, 'Title VI asserts that all students must be treated equally, without regard to race.' Its letter said public documents already show 'you are making recommendations on which programs to offer and which schools to operate based on the racial demographics of the students using those programs (at least in part). Race based decision making like this violates the constitutional guarantees of equal protection. You seem to be under the impression that you have the power to manage the racial composition of classrooms. You don't.' The legal team also called on the district to release communications about the scheme, including 'emails sent by or to any member' of the board that discusses racial balance or diversity." ('Just Code For Race': School Programs Being Shuttered For Being Too White by Bob Unruh). Today's race Marxist, Hitlerite establishment proclaims that a progressive society operates racially segregated schools for blacks and whites. It proclaims that a progressive society sacrifices educational excellence on the altar of affirmative action and lifts up all students except whites. It proclaims that a progressive society establishes separate mathematics and English classrooms for blacks and whites. It proclaims that a progressive society is an unconstitutional society established on the throne of black supremacy. It proclaims that a progressive society has reduced whites to a minority and deprived them of equal educational opportunities with blacks. It proclaims that a progressive society promotes discrimination against white students as the highest form of fairness and equity. It proclaims that a progressive society makes academic achievement a function of race and sets lower standards for blacks so they can succeed. It proclaims that a progressive society disenfranchises whites in the name of fighting racism, promotes the myth of black racial superiority in the name of objective truth, and overthrows liberal traditions and institutions in the name of advancing freedom: "A Chicago area school district is being blasted by civil rights attorneys over racially segregating some classes in order to boost minority students' scores. The attorneys called the program 'unconstitutional.' Illinois' Evanston Township High School offers the AXLE (Advancing Excellence, Lifting Everyone) program for black students, and the Ganas program for Latino students. Both programs offer separate mathematics and English seminars to each group. 'There is no way that could possibly pass legal muster if someone sued,' legal expert David Bernstein told the Washington Free Beacon on November 29, citing the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, which guarantees everyone 'equal protections under the law.' After outlets such as the Spectator called out the segregated programs in May, the district removed the rule against other ethnicities participating in the AXLE and Ganas programs." ('Unconstitutional': Civil Rights Lawyers Blast Illinois High School's Racially Segregated Classes by Olivia Rondeau). At a special session of the Reichstag held at the annual National Socialist Party rally held in Nuremberg, Adolf Hitler established the legal basis for the persecution of Jews in Germany. The underpinning of national socialist ideology, race theory was a development of Marxism and proclaims the doctrine of racial extermination in place of class extermination. After the fall of the Third Reich, race theory migrated across the West and received a new lease on life. In the mid twentieth century, thirty years after the defeat of Germany in World War II, it spread like wildfire, this time promoting black supremacy. Because of its criticism of the Enlightenment values of reason, science, human essentialism and human universality, its advocates proudly called it "critical race theory." In the twenty first century, black Marxist exterminationists are on the march and are advancing toward victory.

SOVIET AMERICA IN THE TWENTY FIRST CENTURY

Political repression. The acts of a state controlling a citizenry in order to prevent the citizenry's ability to challenge it. Acts of surveillance, imprisonment, terror, illegal punishment, weaponization of the law, deprivation of rights, abolition of due process and crimes against humanity. Throughout the history of mankind, political repression has been an ever present scourge consigning millions of people to lives of misery and suffering. In the twentieth century, political repression descended to new depths of evil with the adoption of a system formulated in the nineteenth century. In the twentieth century, the doctrines of a theologian of tribes bore bitter fruit. From the doctrines of class war and the dictatorship of the proletariat invented by Karl Marx came the dark realities of the Communist Bloc. There came collectivization, genocide, the Gulag, the Red Terror, the Great Purges and the Doctors' Plot which marked the Soviet Union and claimed the lives of tens of millions of people. There came the slaughter of tens of millions of people in the name of the Antirightist Movement, the Great Leap Forward, the Cultural Revolution and the Suppression of the Class Enemy which marked Maoist China. There came the Killing Fields of Pol Pot's Cambodia, which claimed the lives of twenty five percent of nation's population or two million people. There came the establishment of another type of Marxist government, which replaced class war with race war and the dictatorship of the proletariat with the dictatorship of the Aryan race, which marked national socialist Germany, and resulted in the transformation of the nation into a totalitarian state, and a campaign of genocide against Jews, condemned as mortal enemies of the master race. In the twenty first century, the ghosts of Marxist and neoMarxist political repression have risen from their graves and entered a nation which led the fight of the free world against their regimes. In the twenty first century, in the United States of America, in a supreme illustration of just how sick the West has become during the twilight stages of civilization in which antiEnlightenment sits on the throne of power, political repression has been elected head of the government and the establishment of the nation. The national voice of political repression is the Democrat Party, the voice of the nation's Marxist supporters and sympathizers who form substantial majorities at local, state and federal levels, whose votes have repealed the rule of law and built up America's unconstitutional socialist-welfare-administrative regime over the past one hundred years. In the twenty first century, the American establishment has targeted Donald Trump for destruction for his crime of challenging the prevailing orthodoxies and seeking to return the nation to its roots in the values of the Enlightenment. Opposed to Trump's campaign to make America great again by making it free again, the establishment has set up a regime of political repression emulating the aims and methods of the communists and fascists who terrorized the world. Look at the establishment's record and see tyranny land on the shores of the former global arsenal of freedom and disgrace the Battle of Lexington and Concord, the first campaign of the American Revolutionary War, and the Battle of Gettysburg, the three day battle of the American Civil War which marked the beginning of the end of the Confederacy and its lash of human slavery. Look at the record of the establishment in its war against Donald Trump and see these two world historical battles fought for freedom rendered null and void. The establishment proclaims that a progressive society condemns Trump as a latter day Hitler because he opposes Marxist gender, race and gender politics. It proclaims that a progressive society condemns Trump as a fascist because he supports the capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive society utilizes federal law enforcement and military authorities to deprive Trump of his constitutional rights. It proclaims that a progressive society utilizes the FBI to concoct a scurrilous dossier on Trump with the aid of a rogue intelligence agent Christopher Steele. It proclaims that a progressive society utilizes the FBI to coerce social media platforms to suppress news reports of Joe Biden's influence peddling operation conducted while he was vice president, in order to rig the 2020 presidential election in favor of Biden. It proclaims that a progressive society utilizes the FBI to falsely condemn as Russian disinformation the voluminous evidence of Biden's selling of his vice presidential office, contained in emails in Hunter Biden's laptop. It proclaims that a progressive society utilizes the FBI to violate the free speech rights of social media, and the right of the people to vote in free and fair elections. It proclaims that a progressive society packs the Supreme Court with communists, admits new communist states and senators to the nation, and abolishes the Senate filibuster protection against communist mob rule. It proclaims that a progressive society has subjected Trump to two impeachments on false charges, both impeachments ending in acquittal in the Senate. It proclaims that a progressive society has impeached Trump as a private citizen, in violation of the Constitution. It proclaims that a progressive society has formed a secret faction in the federal government to sabotage Trump's authority if he is reelected president, It proclaims that a progressive society has formed a secret faction in the federal government to illegally give classified information to the press in an attempt to have Trump impeached, convicted and jailed. It proclaims that a progressive society has politicized every branch of the government, from the courts to the military to the Justice Department, in a campaign to destroy Trump's career and place him and the rule of law behind bars: "In the last two weeks, Kamala Harris has been trying to revive her stagnant campaign by smearing Trump as being Hitlerian and a fascist. She claims Trump is planning to put his enemies in encampments. If Harris refers to Trump's supposed fascist policies during his prior four year tenure, there is no such evidence. Recall that fascists hijack law enforcement and the military to suspend constitutional rights and punish enemies. But Trump did neither. Instead, in 2016, a corrupt FBI went after Trump himself during the Obama administration with the bogus Steele dossier. The FBI, which in 2016 had hired the faker Steele, in 2020, fused with social media to suppress accurate news reporting of the embarrassing Hunter Biden laptop scandal. A number of FBI directors and intelligence officials—John Brennan, James Clapper, James Comey, Andrew McCabe—who openly sought to destroy Trump had a long history of either lying or feigning amnesia under oath. Fascists try to warp the legal system. But Trump's own Justice Department selected an independent special counsel to investigate the invented Russian collusion accusations against him. In vast contrast, the Biden Justice Department coordinated with Georgia prosecutors Fani Willis and Nathan Wade, special counsel Jack Smith, Manhattan prosecutor Alvin Bragg, and New York Attorney General Letitia James to prosecute Trump, bankrupt him, and keep off the campaign trail. Fascists use their governments to destroy their enemies. It proclaims that a progressive society utilizes FBI directors and intelligence agents, including John Brennan, James Clapper, James Comey and Andrew McCabe, to commit perjury in an attempt to destroy Trump. It proclaims that a progressive society accuses Trump of being a Russian agent and colluding with Russia in order to win the presidential election in 2016, accusations debunked by special counsel Robert Mueller. It proclaims that a progressive society utilizes the Justice Department to launch a campaign involving Georgia prosecutors Fani Willis and Nathan Wade, special counsel Jack Smith, Manhattan prosecutor Alvin Bragg, and New York Attorney General Letitia James to prosecute jail and bankrupt Trump and prevent him from running for president in 2024. It proclaims that a progressive society launches two impeachments against Trump in the House of Representatives, both of which ended in Trump's acquittal in the Senate. During Trump's term, for the first time in history, the House of Representatives impeached a first term president twice. And in another first, the Senate tried Trump as a private citizen. A self styled 'anonymous' federal official bragged openly of deliberately, and likely unlawfully, leading a bureaucratic cabal to sabotage Trump's lawful executive orders. Lieutenant Colonel Alexander Vindman, in collusion with other bureaucrats, deliberately leaked a classified presidential phone call in an effort to ensure that Trump was impeached. Fascists seek to change existing laws to destroy opponents and illegally consolidate power. Currently, it is only the Democrats who seek to pack the court, destroy the Electoral College, end the Senate filibuster, and create two new states and thus gain four left wing senators." (Once Joyful Harris Now Goes The Full McCarthyite by Victor Davis Hansen). Today's establishment proclaims that a progressive society is committed to ensuring that no opponents of the Democrat Party are able to win presidential elections. It proclaims that a progressive society is a communist coalition for the people which rigs presidential elections by the illegal harvesting of ballots for Democrats and falsifying vote tallies in polling stations: "A stunning undercover video that was just released by Steven Crowder reveals a Democrat operative who can be seen explaining to an undercover female how members of his party are stealing elections from Republicans. During his lengthy discussion, Joel Caldwell, the director of operations for The Coalition For The People's Agenda in Georgia, explains how elections are stolen by using a variety of methods, from ballot harvesting in nursing homes to verifying the 2000 Mules movie was accurate while admitting he believes he was able to identify a union member's vehicle that was seen in the Dinesh D'Souza movie based on True the Vote's research. 'So think about it like this: if we're going to steal an election--let's say Georgia is the perfect example. If you're going to steal an election here, you're not going to go to the outside of a Democratic Party, right? They're not going to go outside of Atlanta or outside of Metro Atlanta and change the numbers in Republican counties. Right? Because that shit would just be too obvious. Change the numbers in your own county. You are going to fluctuate these numbers because it will just look the same.' " (Democrat Operative Caught In Undercover Video Explaining How They Allegedly Stole 2020 Election in GA: From Nursing Home Ballot Harvesting to Identifying A Driver in 2000 Mules by Patty McMurray, quoting Joe Caldwell). Choeung Ek is former orchard in Phnom Penh, Cambodia. Between 1975 and 1979, it was used as a Killing Field by the Khmer Rouge. Today it is a memorial to the genocide committed by the regime and its display cases contain thousands of human skulls. "Exact numbers may never be known with complete certainty, but the total of deaths caused by the whole range of Soviet regime's terrors can hardly be lower than some fifteen million." (The Great Terror by Robert Conquest). In the twenty first century, in the United States of America, a resurrection has occurred, staged by the Democrat Party on behalf of the mob. Marxist tyranny has been brought out of the past and elected dictator for life.

RACE MARXISM IN THE MIDWEST

It is called the Land of Lincoln. Adopted as an official slogan in 1955, it is a reference to Abraham Lincoln's political career in the state of Illinois. Lincoln was first elected to the Illinois General Assembly in 1834 and served the people of the state on a state and federal level, in the United States House of Representatives, as a tireless defender of the cause of freedom. The Land of Lincoln was celebrated by the state's residents as the land of freedom, and in 1955, the same year as the slogan became official, the United States Congress granted a copyright to the Land of Lincoln insignia, a majestic silhouette of Lincoln inside a silhouette of the state. In the twenty first century, the people of Illinois have disgraced their state slogan and rendered it null and void. In the twenty first century, the Land of Lincoln is no longer the land of freedom but a land ruled by far left policies enforcing Marxist race ideology. In the twenty first century, the land whose slogan refers to the career of a statesman who championed the cause of racial equality and led the nation in a war to abolish black slavery and establish by constitutional amendment equal protection under the law, has become a fever swamp of racism peddled under the slogans affirmative action and diversity, equity and inclusion. These slogans have replaced the Land of Lincoln as the new reality on the ground in the state of Illinois. The new slogans are the titles of a program and manifesto which has sent the clock racing backward to the days of racial discrimination, with only the colors of the victims and executioners reversed. The new Marxist mobocracy in charge of Illinois proclaims that a progressive society awards scholarships on the basis of race and awards them to blacks only. It proclaims that a progressive society pays the tuition, fees, commuting costs, and room and board of black students as part of its racist scholarship program. It proclaims that a progressive society runs racist student assistance corporations which benefit blacks and nobody else. It proclaims that a progressive society runs a Minority Teachers of Illinois Scholarship Program which gives black power money for full time college enrolment and recruits black power to teach in classrooms. It proclaims that a progressive society mandates that only blacks can become school teachers. It proclaims that a progressive society mandates that black applicants for scholarships be judged by lower academic standards than whites. It proclaims that a progressive society makes academic decisions in accordance with skin color and has judged that whites possess the wrong color. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects the notions of equal protection and equal opportunity and is lorded over by a black master race. It proclaims that a progressive society is a racist, illiberal, unconstitutional society which has disenfranchised whites and placed blacks, hispanics, Asians and Native Americans upon the throne of absolute power. It proclaims that a progressive society distributes government benefits on the basis of race and makes blacks the kings and recipients of the welfare state. It proclaims that a progressive society classifies people in accordance with race and gives freedom and dignity to blacks and to blacks alone. It proclaims that a progressive society has established statutes, ordinances, regulations, customs and constitutions which give rights, privileges and immunities to blacks and relegates the documents of the Enlightenment to the dustbin of history: "A special program set up in the state of Illinois to provide scholarships to aspiring teachers, to use for tuition, fees, commuter allowances, room and board, is under a new court challenge because of its racist foundation. It excludes students if they are white. It is the Pacific Legal Foundation that is pursuing a civil rights complaint on behalf of the American Alliance for Equal Rights, which is fighting the precedent of the Illinois Student Assistance Corporation. 'The Minority Teachers of Illinois Scholarship Program awards scholarships of up to $7,500 per year for tuition, fees, commuter allowances, and room and board for up to four academic years of full time college enrollment. With Illinois facing a severe teacher shortage, the MTI Scholarship Program is designed to encourage qualified Illinoisans to join the teacher ranks,' Pacific Legal Foundation's report explained. 'Students must meet residency, academic, and financial standards,' the legal team explained. But, it noted, the recipients are decided based on race. 'Illinois can offer assistance to young, aspiring teachers, but not when they exclude a significant number of applicants based on their skin color,' said PLF attorney Erin Wilcox. 'The exclusion of nonminority applicants not only misses the mark on providing an equal opportunity for all future teachers, it violates the Constitution's Equal Protection Clause.' The racism actually dates back to 1992 when state lawmakers created the program. 'It's purported aim was to alleviate a teacher shortage by recruiting minority students to pursue teaching careers at Pre-K through high school levels,' the report said. But recipients are limited to students who are 'African American/Black, Hispanic American, Asian American or Native American origin, or a qualified bilingual minority.' The report said, 'It's wrong for the government to deny individuals access to government benefits on the basis of race. Moreover, it's unconstitutional. The equal protection guarantee of the Constitution's Fourteenth Amendment protects individuals from government discrimination due to arbitrary classifications like race. Excluding students from a state funded scholarship program because of their race blatantly violates the Equal Protection Clause.' The complaint in court explains, 'The Scholarship Program's statutory racial exclusion is embedded both in the application process and the qualification considerations for award. First, only minority students who have graduated from high school or have received a State of Illinois High School Diploma, maintained a cumulative grade point average of no less than 2.5 on a 4.0 scale, and are enrolled or accepted on at least a half time basis as an undergraduate or graduate student at an Illinois institution of higher education are eligible to apply for the Scholarship Program.' And, it contends, 'Eligible applicants must then satisfy the following requirements to receive a scholarship: (i) be a resident of the State and a citizen or permanent resident of the United States; (ii) be a minority student; (iii) as an eligible applicant, have made a timely application; (iv) be enrolled on at least a half-time basis at a qualified Illinois institution of higher learning to become a licensed teacher; (v) maintain a grade point average of no less than 2.5 on a 4.0 scale; and (vi) have continued to advance satisfactorily toward the attainment of a degree.' The filing in court explains, 'Under the Fourteenth Amendment to the United States Constitution, no State shall deny to any person within its jurisdiction the equal protection of the laws. Every person who, under color of any statute, ordinance, regulation, custom, or usage, of any State, subjects, or causes to be subjected, any citizen of the United States or other person within the jurisdiction thereof to the deprivation of any rights, privileges, or immunities secured by the Constitution and laws, shall be liable to the party injured.' " (State Program That Bases Benefits On Race Under New Challenge by Bob Unruh). The Illinois establishment proclaims that a progressive society is a South African apartheid, Hitlerian racial classification society. It proclaims that a progressive society is a racial preference society which relegates whites to the status of subalterns. It proclaims that a progressive society is an antiwhite society which excludes from all educational opportunities people who do not qualify as racial minorities. It proclaims that a progressive society is a racial exclusion society whose hate target is whites. It proclaims that a progressive society is an alliance against equal rights which segregates and calumniates whites and expels them from humanity. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by a commission of race activists which gives preferential treatment to black students who apply for scholarships and excludes white students. It proclaims that a progressive society bars academically qualified and ambitious white students from applying for scholarships, prevents them from realizing their highest dreams and aspirations, places the Jewish Star on their backs, and readies them to face troubles the likes of which they have never faced before: "Plaintiff American Alliance for Equal Rights is a nationwide membership organization headquartered in Austin, Texas. It is a tax exempt organization whose mission is to challenge racial classifications and racial preferences in America. The Alliance has one or more members who are citizens of Illinois, who do not qualify as a racial minority, and who are otherwise qualified, ready, willing, and able to apply to the Minority Teachers of Illinois Scholarship Program. In particular, Member A is an Illinois high school senior who will be starting college this fall in Illinois. Member A will pursue a degree in education and plans to become an elementary school teacher. Member A does not qualify as a racial minority, but is otherwise qualified, ready, willing, and able to apply to the Minority Teachers of Illinois Scholarship Program for the 2025-2026 school year. Defendant Jay Robert Pritzker is the Governor of the State of Illinois. Governor Pritzker is sued in his official capacity. Defendant Kevin Huber is the Chairman of the Illinois Student Assistance Commission (Commission), the agency responsible for administering the Scholarship Program. Chairman Huber is sued in his official capacity. So long as this racial exclusion remains in place, otherwise qualified Alliance members will never receive equal consideration for the Scholarship Program. The Alliance has one or more members who do not meet the statutory definition of a minority student and who are otherwise qualified, ready, willing, and able to apply to the Scholarship Program." (American Alliance For Equal Rights Versus Jay Robert Pritzker And Kevin Huber). Exalted as America's greatest symbol of freedom, Abraham Lincoln was the nation's sixteenth president. When he was 21, he moved from Indiana to Illinois, started his political career in the state, and lived there until he became president in 1861. His home in Springfield, Illinois is a National Historic Site. In the twenty first century, his home has been disgraced by onrushing tides of new racial ideology. Establishing blacks only scholarships and education, the new racists have brought shame and discredit to the Land of Lincoln.

WHITES NEED NOT APPLY

Scene. A sign on a restaurant window in Lancaster, Ohio in 1938: We Cater To White Trade Only. Scene. A black man drinking at a "colored" drinking fountain in a streetcar terminal in Oklahoma City in 1939. Scene. A black man walks toward the "colored" entrance of a cinema in Belzoni, Mississippi in 1939. Scene. The black section of keypunch operators at the United States Census Bureau in the 1940s. These are scenes of hatred and discrimination which for decades scarred America. These are scenes of exclusion on the basis of race which disgraced the documents which founded the former beacon and arsenal of the free world. These are scenes of war against human equality which rejected the nation's birth in the values of the Enlightenment. In the twenty first century, the flags of race hatred have been unfurled again in America, with only the faces and colors changed. Hiring on the basis of race has returned to America, brought by a new mob and a new establishment promoting Marxist politics and its black power derivative. In place of white supremacy, black supremacy now rules hiring decisions in the nation, established by a new neoMarxist dispensation which peddles racism against whites as the highest expression of social progress. From Marxist panracial proletarianism to race based proletarianism is but a short logical and philosophical step, and a new generation of Marxists arising in the twentieth century, peddling a concoction called gender, race and class politics, made the leap, and founded a movement of black Marxism which defined a white oppressor group and a black oppressed group, and called for the exclusion and extermination of the former. The black Marxists in charge of America today have transformed the nation's employment culture and put up Jim Crow signs for whites as they have thrown them out of work. Listen to the new racist dispensation and hear Hitler's children, substituting blacks for Aryans and whites for Jews, plunge America into a black fascist final frontier. The new race activists proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in the name of achieving diversity and inclusion. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs as an expression of fundamental fairness and equity. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in the name of antiracism. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in the name of affirmative action. They proclaim that a progressive society increases the number of blacks in the workforce as glorious spoils of a race war. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes race based universities with black professors, graduates, fellows, researchers, postdoctoral workers, mentors, secretaries, chairs, deans and tenure holders. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in order to achieve a racially balanced workforce. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in the name of achieving racial parity between whites and blacks. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in order to increase minority population levels in places of business. They proclaim that a progressive society recruits blacks, hispanics and Native Americans for workforces in order to eliminate nonwhite underrepresentation. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes racist hiring objectives for organizations in order to ensure that the number of black employees matches the general population demographics. They proclaim that a progressive society is run by a black administration which has immolated liberal ideals on the altar of social justice and closed the doors to whites seeking jobs. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes employment programs which discriminate against whites in the name of protecting black civil rights. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes race as a criterion for employment eligibility and automatically disqualifies white applicants. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in the name of rectifying past discrimination. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in the name of rectifying statistical disparities between blacks and whites. They proclaim that a progressive society deprives whites of jobs in the name of rectifying traditionally segregated job categories. They proclaim that a progressive society establishes black hiring preferences and black job set asides. They proclaim that a progressive society builds bridges to hiring and paints them black. They proclaim that a progressive society builds employment pipelines flowing with black racism. They proclaim that a progressive society defies courts and legislatures and establishes racist hiring processes favoring blacks. They proclaim that a progressive society is a race conscious society which places whites at the back of the line of job seekers. They proclaim that a progressive society has established the strategies, tactics and plans for the destruction of liberal traditions and institutions and the establishment of a racist new order modeled after Jim Crow, the Third Reich and apartheid South Africa: "For several years, the National Association of Scholars (NAS), where I work, has monitored the rise of Diversity, Equity and Inclusion (DEI) in higher education. DEI entered the mainstream somewhere between the election of Donald Trump in 2016 and the death of George Floyd in the spring of 2020. In addition to being a set of ideals, sometimes including 'antiracism' and/or 'social justice,' DEI is a set of practices and programs descended from affirmative action and the Civil Rights Act of 1964. Recent backlash from both the public and conservative lawmakers, however, has caused some universities, such as the University of South Carolina (USC), to change DEI offices, giving them names more in line with Civil Rights era norms. Yet, while the names of these departments have in some cases changed, their practices have largely continued unassailed. For over 50 years, universities have interpreted the Civil Rights Act as a mandate to racially balance their populations. The landmark Regents of the University of California v. Bakke case in 1978 permitted the use of race in student admissions. In the name of increasing diversity, universities have extended racial spoils far beyond admissions to faculty, staff, and even contractor hiring. For example, Mylene Culbreath, vice dean for diversity, equity, and inclusion at the University of South Carolina, describes the mission of her office as 'creat[ing] greater parity between the demographic composition of the university and the communities we serve.' Sadly, Culbreath's words are more than just talk at the Palmetto State's flagship public university. Strategic plans written by department chairs, deans, and presidents, often with the input of DEI administrators, focus heavily on the recruitment of a diverse faculty. USC's College of Information and Communications, for instance, boasts a DEI plan that aligns searches for new faculty with minority population levels among students, at the university, and in the state. Success is described as increasing 'the [School of Journalism and Mass Communications'] 2023 diversity representation from 19% in 2016 to 35% in 2023-2024, and black faculty from 7% in 2016 to 20% in 2023-2024.' In material obtained by NAS, the USC College of Nursing talks of 'focused efforts during the past 6-10 years to increase diversity among our faculty, staff, and students to meet the state's population. Through intentional recruiting, the proportion of underrepresented race/ethnic groups (Black/African American, Latinx, Native American) has increased.' This goal of racial balancing is widely shared among stakeholders in the USC faculty recruitment process. The USC computer science and engineering department chair writes that 'the definition of diversity adopted by CSE@USC, which also sets our hiring objectives, is to achieve hiring demographics that converge to that of our regional and national population demographics.' However, 'blacks, hispanics, and American Indians or Alaska Natives' remain 'underrepresented' in the department. Regents of the University of California v. Bakke gave permission for the use of race in admissions, but it made no such allowance in employment programs. The Civil Rights Act specifically prohibits discrimination on the basis of race, color, religion, sex, or national origin in all aspects of employment. The circumstances in which affirmative action hiring programs (ie programs using race as a criterion for eligibility) can be deployed are very narrow. Employers must demonstrate 'actual past discrimination, significant statistical disparity, or manifest imbalance in traditionally segregated job categories.' While employers can set racial hiring goals in unapproved affirmative action plans, hiring goals do not provide a justification for hiring preferences or creating set asides for particular groups. Based on these guidelines, USC's Office of DEI does not appear to have a strong legal case for its Bridge to Faculty (B2F) fellowship program, an affirmative action postdoctoral program. Postdoctoral to faculty programs, unlike other equity 'pipeline' programs, offer actual employment. Providing candidates with additional funding, mentorship, and an advantage in being hired as permanent faculty, pipeline programs significantly affect which academics secure a tenure track position. Since the Supreme Court's 2023 Students for Fair Admissions v. Harvard decision, which banned the use of race in college admissions, few universities have altered their hiring processes, and they are unlikely to do so unless induced by a court or legislative body. Anti DEI legislation at the state level is likely the best solution. Astutely written state legislation, such as Senate Bill 17 in Texas, can eliminate a large number of race conscious policies in one fell swoop. B2F and the University of South Carolina as a whole could similarly be barred from using race and racial proxies (such as 'underrepresented') in hiring programs and strategic planning." (Racial Discrimination At The University Of South Carolina by Louis Galarowicz). On the cover of the world famous French journal Le Petit Journal in the October 1906 edition is a depiction of the notorious Atlanta Race Riots in Atlanta, Georgia. Described by the journal as "lynchings in the USA" and "massacres of negroes in Atlanta," this episode of mass racial violence, reported around the world, claimed the lives of twenty five blacks. The victims were shot, beaten, stabbed to death and hanged from lampposts. In the twenty first century, racist mobs have returned to America. Riding under the banners of race Marxism, race justice, proportional representation and raw hatred of whites, black mobs have closed the doors to employment to whites and marched them up to the gallows.

HEGEL'S LEGACY

A spring is an exit point on the Earth's surface from which groundwater flows. The water is driven out onto the surface by natural forces, such as gravity and upward pressure exerted by rocks, and the volumetric flow can exceed 14000 liters per second. One of the biggest springs in the world is the Big Spring in Missouri, which releases 1.15 million square meters of water per year at a rate of thirteen square meters per second. In the early nineteenth century, a spring erupted from the Devil's underground and formed a hydrosphere of moral, spiritual and political subversion. The spring was the doctrines of one of the most influential philosophers in the West. Born in Stuttgart, Germany in 1770 during the transitional period between the Enlightenment and the Age of Romanticism, he was a champion of romanticism and rejected the common sense doctrines of the Enlightenment, which affirmed the existence of physical objects and man's ability to perceive them. Rejecting the ideas of the age in which he was born, Georg Wilhelm Friedrich Hegel was inspired by Immanuel Kant to reject the existence of physical objects and to proclaim that so-called matter is a creation of perception because it is an object of perception, and does not exist. Reality is not physical but is pure Idea, and is not any individual's idea, but is simply an absolute, impersonal idea. Separateness and multiplicity are illusions, and reality is Idea and is nobody's Idea. This Idea is ever in a state of process, and within its ever flowing river, nothing is as it is. It is pure contradiction and throughout the world, nothing is as it is, and A is always non A. The only laws of reality are the laws of contradiction, and logic is not the ordinary, common sense logic which says that everything is as it is, but is a special, dialectical, superlogic which says that a thing is also its negation, that a thing is both black all over and white all over at one and the same time, and that nothing is anything specific or determinate. Reality is pure consciousness, to be is to be pure mind, and is to be nothing determinate or noncontradictory in the ever flowing river. Knowledge of the world is derived, not from the perception of any external physical facts, for no such facts exist, but from pure internal inspection by the Idea which every person in reality is. This Idea is also called the State, and it is greater than any individuals, alone possesses rights and freedoms, and is divine. The Idea, the State, is God and its decrees must be blindly obeyed. Thus was the groundwater erupting from the Devil's caverns, and it flooded, submerged and blackened the West for all time to come. It raced across the culture at the speed of light, enabled on its mighty course by Hegel's greatest student. Accepting Hegel's process view of reality, but rejecting his inflation of mind to the sole reality, Karl Marx embraced the opposite extreme and proclaimed that mind is an illusion and everything which exists is matter. In the material flux which is reality, nothing as it is and the only laws are master Hegel's laws of dialectical, contradictory logic. Because matter is the sole reality, man's wealth is produced by muscular labor and not by mental labor which does not exist; the material tools of production create people's so-called thoughts; machines create people's so-called thinking; and what are called thoughts and ideas are in reality unreal superstructures of matter. The primary existents and units of value in society are economic classes and not individuals, for master Hegel taught that individuals do not exist, and the history of mankind is the history of these classes. Listen to Hegel's student, the preacher of the collectivism which Hegel taught him, proclaim that everything is class, all categories are class categories, all ideas are class ideas, all truths are class truths, all science is class science, all arts are class arts, all action is class action, all effort is class effort, all production is class production and all war is class war. Mankind is divided into two great opposing classes, the bourgeois and the proletariat, the idle, loafing class of so-called knowledge workers, such as entrepreneurs and scientists, and the class of unskilled, muscular laborers who are the real sources of all wealth, and the iron laws of matter and muscles have decreed that the oppressed and exploited proletariat will rise up against its bourgeois oppressors and exploiters and will exterminate them: "The history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles. Freeman and slave, patrician and plebeian, lord and serf, guildmaster and journeyman, in a word, oppressor and oppressed, stood in constant opposition to one another, carried on an uninterrupted, now hidden, now open fight, a fight that each time ended, either in a revolutionary reconstitution of society at large, or in the common ruin of the contending classes. In the earlier epochs of history, we find almost everywhere a complicated arrangement of society into various orders, a manifold gradation of social rank. In ancient Rome we have patricians, knights, plebeians, slaves; in the Middle Ages, feudal lords, vassals, guild masters, journeymen, apprentices, serfs; in almost all of these classes, again, subordinate gradations. The modern bourgeois society that has sprouted from the ruins of feudal society has not done away with class antagonisms. It has but established new classes, new conditions of oppression, new forms of struggle in place of the old ones. Our epoch, the epoch of the bourgeoisie, possesses, however, this distinct feature: it has simplified class antagonisms. Society as a whole is more and more splitting up into two great hostile camps, into two great classes directly facing each other—Bourgeois and Proletariat." (Communist Manifesto by Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels). The groundwater unleashed by Hegel which led to Marxism produced in the twentieth century a band of monsters. These were ramifications and developments of Marxism and saw the creation of a host of new tribes. These monsters retained the basic philosophy of Marx but changed the flags and colors. A child of Marxism called national socialism championed race war in place of class war, substituted the Aryan race for the the master's original panracial proletariat, and substituted Jews for the master's original bourgeois, and under the leadership of Adolf Hitler, a national socialist movement seized control over Germany and launched a holocaust against Jews. The Marxist character of national socialism's war against Jews is described by Ulrike Meinhof, founder of the Marxist terror group, the Red Army Faction. According to Meinhof, Jew hatred is legitimate because it is the people's hatred of capitalism, and acts of violence against Jews, such as Auschwitz and the massacre of Jews by Palestinian terrorists at the 1972 Summer Olympics at Munich, are justified because they were expressions of a class war against the bourgeois: "Auschwitz meant that six million Jews were murdered and carted off to Europe's garbage heap because of what they were: money Jews. Finance capital and banks, the hard core of the system of imperialism and capitalism, were hated by the people, and their hatred was transferred to hatred of Jews. Not having made this natural connection between anticapitalism and antisemitism was the failure of the left and the communists. Germans are antisemitic, and therefore they are anticapitalist and are today's RAF supporters. Only they don't know it, because antisemitism has a bad name. It is thus possible to praise the Black September attack in Munich." (Frankfurter Allgemeine Zeitung, December 1972, quoting Meinhof). The twenty century saw other children of Marxism venture forth onto the field of battle. It saw black Marxism launch a war against whites and gender Marxism launch a feminist war against males. It saw gay and lesbian Marxists start wars against heterosexuals. It saw radical environmentalists start wars against capitalism in the name of staving off environmental degradation and doomsday. The twenty first century has added transgender politics to this band of monsters, and the band of transgenders is comprised of people afflicted with psychosis who deny the existence of biological facts such as sex chromosomes, claim they are members of the opposite sex, and demand to be granted legal recognition as members of the opposite sex. The twenty first century has added indigenous politics to this band of monsters, championing native savage cultures, such as the Australian aborigines and the Native American Indians, and demanding that Western civilization be destroyed and the land be returned to them. The twenty first century has seen the emergence of critical race theory. According to this, progressive political theory is black power theory which is critical of the Enlightenment ideas of human essentialism and human universality, and advocates the establishment of a black totalitarian dictatorship. The twenty first century has seen the emergence of critical legal theory. According to this, progressive legal theory is critical of liberal race blind jurisprudence and equal protection under the law, and reserves all legal rights to blacks. The twenty first century has seen the emergence of a Marxist-Islamist axis confronting the common enemy of liberal democracy. The axis proclaims that a progressive society is a Hamas and Palestinian terror society. It proclaims that a progressive society condemns capitalism as a regime of zionist and Jewish supremacy and advocates the destruction of Israel and the massacre of Jews: "The Department of Education has given $22.1 million in grants to Middle Eastern Studies departments at universities across the US since 2020, some of which have professors who supported the October 7 massacre in Israel or broke university rules to further the proPalestine movement. OpenTheBooks identified 12 schools that received the Foreign Language and Area Studies grants, with Columbia University, Indiana University and Georgetown University each receiving nearly $3 million. Columbia bragged about the expertise of professor Joseph Massad on their grant application, who in 2002 gave a lecture about 'Zionism and Jewish Supremacy.' " (Waste Of The Day: 22 Million Dollars For Radical Professors by Jeremy Portnoy). The past two hundred years have been under the control of a zeitgeist. This guiding agent and force was created by Hegel. It has commanded Marx into existence and brought the world the logical products of Marx's creed. It has commanded the doom of the West in the Marxist fever swamps of black supremacy, feminist politics, indigenous rights and reparations, green movement activism, gay and lesbian pride rallies, transgender psychosis, discrimination against white males conducted under the banners of diversity, equity and inclusion, and the global armies and networks of Islamist terror. It is a story whose acts of moral, spiritual and political subversion began way back with the father of German Idealism.

ELECTION USA: TRUMP BUYS TIME FOR TITANIC

Radical politics. The intent to transform a free society and sweep away its fundamental principles. In the sickroom atmosphere which has pervaded the West since the dawn of the twentieth century, radicalism has been an everpresent specter, fueled in its advance by the aspirations of the mob. Free societies on their way down embrace radicalism, as the majority casts off freedom as an intolerable burden. Hating freedom, aspiring for equality and agitating for tribalism, the masses in a state of decline vote for radicalism. In the twilight stages of Classical civilization, the masses rejected freedom through their caesars, emperors, grain doles and class wars. In the twentieth century, radicals assumed power across the world. Radical politics brought Vladimir Lenin and Joseph Stalin to power in Russia, Adolf Hitler to power in Germany, Mao Zedong to power in China and Pol Pot to power in Cambodia. The global rise of Marxism and neoMarxism, promoting class war and race war, saw the rise of the New Deal welfare state in America and the presidency of Franklin Roosevelt as an unprecedented American caesar. There commenced a one hundred year increase in the loudness of the language and policies in pursuit of radicalism, and the crescendo was reached in the twenty first century. It was reached in the presidency of Joe Biden, but the American people, seeing the dark reality of radicalism on the ground and in their daily lives, and getting assaulted by this reality for four years, made a choice and a break on November 5, 2024. On this Election Day, Donald Trump was elected forty seventh president of the United States. He had been elected the forty fifth president after a similar choice the people had made, rejecting the radicalism of the Obama years, but the latest rejection was in response the loudest point radicalism had reached in the history of the nation. Seeking to make America great again by making it free again, Donald Trump has been targeted for destruction by the nation's cultural and political establishment, and on November 5, 2024, one half of the electorate bucked the establishment; it opposed and resisted an excrescence of the cultural and political order it itself had helped to create over the decades; and it sought to return the nation as a minimum to centrist politics, not to America's classical liberal, Lockean roots, but to the politics which had governed the nation prior to the twenty first century. This centrism had led to the radicalism of the twenty first century, and the latter was a logical and inevitable development of the former, but the voters on November 5, 2024 were not prepared to oppose radicalism with any consistency and to repudiate the social regulatory, welfare state regime established under the New Deal and expanded over the decades. On November 5, 2024, one half of the American electorate rejected a monster which had emerged from Marxism in the 1960s, a monster of radicalism called gender, race and class politics, and their rejection of it in the election of Donald Trump a second time has purchased more time for a sinking ship before the inevitable doom befalls it. Donald Trump was reelected president because voters had rejected transgenderist ideology. According to this, sex chromosomes, discovered by scientists over a century ago, do not exist and human gender can be changed by human action or belief, and people who claim to be members of the opposite sex are in fact members of the opposite sex and must be granted legal recognition as such. Donald Trump was reelected president because voters had rejected the intensifying Marxist social and political direction of the nation. He was reelected president because voters had rejected skyrocketing, Weimar style inflation produced by multitrillion dollar stimulus spending and business subsidies. He was reelected president because voters had rejected the radical assault on constitutionally protected freedom of conscience and belief. He was reelected president because voters had rejected the dissolution of the southern border through which twenty million vectors of a plague bacillus invaded the nation and was granted lifetime welfare support. He was reelected president because voters had rejected the green movement agenda to dismantle industrial and technological civilization in the name of reducing atmospheric greenhouse gas levels. He was reelected president because voters had rejected leftism, communism and fascism demands the immolation of liberal democracy on the altar of gender, race and class politics, and the extermination of the class of successful, white males. He was reelected president because voters had rejected gay and lesbian politics which seeks to exterminate heterosexuals. He was reelected president because voters had rejected the far left assault on the constitutional right to keep and bear arms. He was reelected president because voters had rejected the government censorship of thought, speech and action in the name of enforcing political correctness. He was reelected president because voters had rejected two assassination attempts against him by Marxist activists and donors to the Democrat Party. He was reelected president because voters had rejected the establishment's rigging of the 2020 presidential election which resulted in the fraudulent victory of Joe Biden. The election was rigged by Mark Zuckerberg, who spent 400 million dollars to pay election officials to recruit Democrat voters and disenfranchise Republican voters in districts across the nation, and by the FBI, which forced social media platforms to suppress news reports of Joe Biden's influence peddling operation conducted while he was vice president, on the grounds that the voluminous, irrefutable evidence of the operation, contained in Hunter Biden's laptop, was Russian disinformation, a claim the FBI knew was false. He was reelected president because voters had rejected the establishment's weaponization of the legal system against him, arresting, prosecuting, jailing and seeking to bankrupt him for committing victimless financial crimes, and for exercising his constitutional right of free speech to tell the truth and state that the 2020 presidential election was rigged, and seek to overturn it. He was reelected president because he had launched a movement which promised to fight to the death against an establishment which rejected root and branch the Enlightenment values which founded America: "The tabulation of numbers was still catching up but when Pennsylvania was projected to go to Trump in the 2024 election Tuesday night, it put his Electoral College total at 266, just a whisper from the 270 needed for victory and history, as the second president ever to win a second term not consecutive to his first. Minutes later, Wisconsin was added to Trump's list, giving him 277 Electoral College votes. The election is determining the political, social direction of America, as the outgoing Joe Biden-Kamala Harris regime has turned America toward transgenderism, toward massive inflation, and against constitutionally protected religious rights. The New York Times needle taking the pulse of the election gave Trump an 95% chance of winning, sending Democrats and other leftists to outrage—and despair. As already had been documented throughout the 2024 presidential election in the US, exit polling on Election Day confirms vast numbers of voters are unhappy with where their country is and what direction it is going. Over the last four years of the Joe Biden-Kamala Harris regime, consumers have been bludgeoned by 20% plus inflation, a wide open southern border with millions of illegal aliens carrying their needs to US taxpayers, and a White House agenda that obsessed with transgenderism. A report in the Daily Mail cited APVoteCast exit polling that confirmed 'the economy and immigration' are the top issues facing the nation. The report said the polling 'found a country mired in negativity and desperation. Further, 8 in 10 voters want 'substantial change' in the way the nation is run and some 70% said the US right now is on the wrong track. Other exit polling, by a network, found 51% of respondents trust Trump on the economy, to Harris' 47%, and 72% said they are 'angry' or 'dissatisfied' with the state of the nation. That, the report confirmed, is 'a bad sign for the vice president.' Voters across America on Tuesday were faced with what has been described, accurately in this instance, as the biggest election the nation ever has faced. The choice was between giving Trump a second, nonconsecutive, term to work on his agenda of Making America Great Again, or a second, consecutive term for Kamala Harris, who would change nothing from the four years of the Joe Biden-Kamala Harris regime and take the nation further, perhaps irretrievably further, into green, LGBT, high inflation and an economy that punishes consumers and, leftist to the point of being communist, agendas. Franklin Graham, head of Samaritan's Purse, one of the largest charities in the world, said the dispute was not just a political war this time, it was spiritual. Quoting from James Dobson's Family Talk organization, he said voters were deciding on 'good against evil.' Also included in those topics would be voting for the Second Amendment, and for the right to speak my opinion and not be censored for it. It was the latest battle in the war between the two ideologies represented by Trump, a billionaire businessman who now has dedicated his life to creating good for American people—and the rest of the world—and the idea that the government knows best what you can say, what you can do, even what you can think or pray, and is willing to enforce that. The contrasts between the two campaigns could not be more stark. There have been two assassination attempts against President Trump, including one where a sniper successfully hit his ear, giving rise to the 2024 election's iconic image of him with a fist raised in the air, telling his packed rally crowd to 'Fight, fight, fight.'"(You're Fired, Kamala! Trump Wins Momentous Election by Bob Unruh). The Titanic is the most famous shipwreck in history. It was the largest and most luxurious passenger ship of its time, and was proclaimed to be unsinkable. Setting sail on its maiden voyage from Southampton, England on April 10, 1912 with 2240 passengers and crew on board, it struck an iceberg on April 15, broke apart from differential gravitational pull, and sank to the bottom of the ocean, 350 miles off the coast of Newfoundland, Canada. Proclaimed by its people for decades to be unconquerable, unassailable and eternally prosperous, America in the twenty first century is sinking into the abyss. Rejecting the founding American values of freedom, self reliance and self responsibility, and promoting in their place a regime of social responsibility, social justice, gender, race and class agitation, and cradle to grave welfare entitlements, the American people have transformed and radicalized the nation. Electing Donald Trump president for the second time on November 5, 2024, they showed they were dissatisfied with the results of the radicalism they themselves had voted into power. Donald Trump has thrown a lifeline to the nation. Socialism runs deep in the souls of masses in a state of moral decline. The lifeline will eventually be thrown back. At a maximum, Trump has given America a decade left to exist.

RACE MARXISTS CANCEL SCIENCE

The scientific method is a method of acquiring knowledge which characterizes all sane forms of inquiry. Rejecting the primitive methods of witch doctory, sorcery, mystical contemplation and internal mental inspection, the scientific method involves the observation of facts. It involves the creation of hypotheses through inductive reasoning and the testing of these hypotheses through experimentation. Based on the experimental results, the hypotheses are accepted, adjusted or discarded. Formulated by Aristotle, Roger Bacon, Francis Bacon, Isaac Newton and Galileo, the scientific method underpinned the systematic investigations of nature undertaken in Classical culture and characterizes the course of science in the West. The assembling of sense data and the inferring of laws from the sense data has for centuries been the great searchlight of science illuminating the mysteries of nature: "In 1950, it was known that genetic inheritance has a mathematical description, starting with the studies of Gregor Mendel, and that DNA contained genetic information But the mechanism of storing genetic information (genes) in DNA was unclear. Researchers in Bragg's laboratory at Cambridge University made X ray diffraction pictures of various molecules, starting with crystals of salt, and proceeding to more complicated substances. Using clues painstakingly assembled over decades, beginning with its chemical composition, it was determined that it should be possible to characterize the physical structure of DNA, and the X ray images would be the vehicle." (Watson And DNA: Making A Scientific Revolution by Victor McElheny). In the twenty first century, empirical science has fallen under attack by a band of monsters and lies blooded and damaged. These monsters are called gender politics, race politics and class politics, and they have been brought to life in a fearsome mansion called Marxism, located outside of civilization high atop mountains of tribal war and hate. In the twenty first century, empirical science has been mauled apart by nightmare creatures which developed and mutated out of master Karl Marx's proletarian politics. In the twenty first century, the race monster of black power politics, the child of national socialist, neoMarxist Aryan politics, has invaded the social and biological sciences and issued a program and manifesto for their abolition. Listen to their attack on empirical science and the Enlightenment and hear the creed of the witch doctor and his spirit possession of the West. Race Marxist black power proclaims that progressive science does not discover objective evidence for theories but generates evidence to support its theories. It proclaims that progressive science invents facts in the name of advancing black racial equity. It proclaims that progressive science is a product of black consciousness. It proclaims that progressive science is black proletarian science which condemns capitalism as the source of all the social problems besetting blacks. It proclaims that progressive science condemns capitalism as a regime of systemic racism. It proclaims that progressive science condemns capitalism as a public health crisis killing blacks. It proclaims that progressive science seeks to change people's thoughts, feelings and actions and transform them into black power hoodlums committing violence in the name of racial equity and justice. It proclaims that progressive science subjects white people to nonstop drumbeats and refrains saying they are biased against blacks whether they know it or not and were born biased against blacks, and are conscious and subconscious haters of blacks. It proclaims that progressive science teaches doctors to discriminate against white patients and treat black patients first in order to eliminate racism in healthcare outcomes. It proclaims that progressive science performs brain scans of whites in order to discover the physical structure of racism and attempts to remove the racism by constant, systematic brainwashing in the ideology of black supremacy. It proclaims that progressive science does not test hypotheses against experience but deduces facts and theories from the contents of consciousness, and promotes the facts and theories promoting black supremacy. It proclaims that progressive science is run by black power activists and not objective, dispassionate scholars. It proclaims that progressive science does not discover truth from the data of the senses but creates truth in order to advance black needs and interests. It proclaims that progressive science condemns capitalism as a social virus and advocates a therapy of mental conditioning in black power ideology as the only possible vaccine and antidote: "Proponents of 'racial equity' training have received $5 million from the National Institutes of Health to 'generate evidence' in support of their program at the University of Pittsburgh. The researchers will 'test the effectiveness of the Racial Equity Consciousness Institute' which is 'an effort aimed at addressing systemic racism.' The institute is run through Pitt's Center on Race and Social Problems. The university's page on 'racial equity consciousness' describes 'systemic racism' in medical terms, calling it a 'public health crisis.' The RECI approach uses 'structured cognitive behavioral training' 'to consciously address and assert one's thoughts, feelings, and behaviors toward racial equity and justice,' according to the website. The program 'employs systematic, highly structured practices, to break down socialized, unconscious biases and behaviors, replacing them with behaviors that are more aligned with personal values,' according to the federal grant summary. 'One of the things I'm most excited about this study is to be able to generate evidence of the effectiveness of RECI,' clinical researcher Doris Rubio stated in the university news release 'I think talking to people about it and how it's changed my life is one thing, but being able to say we have evidence that this works is super compelling.' 'The research funded by this grant will focus on identifying the effectiveness of RECI training and other implicit bias trainings on diversity and retention as well as on attitudes that perpetuate systemic racism in healthcare outcomes, particularly among marginalized communities,' Pitt wrote in its news release. The article states that this intervention will be 'measured' by using 'brain imaging or fMRIs' in order to see the 'structural brain changes' both 'before and after the intervention.' None of the professors would provide comments on their taxpayer funded research. The College Fix asked if they would revise their programming if the training did not work, what supporting evidence would include, and what a brain looks like after their intervention. Professor Gretchen White declined to comment on the methods, because it is an 'ongoing research article.' Ron Idoko, the director of the Center on Race and Social Problems, and Rubio, the primary investigator, did not respond to emails and a phone call in the past five weeks. The NIH's media team also did not respond to emailed inquiries in the past week and a half asking about the grant and the idea of generating evidence versus testing a hypothesis. A medical reform group said the idea of looking at brain scans to find racism 'warrants a healthy dose of skepticism.' Do No Harm Research Director Ian Kingsbury told The Fix via a media statement that the idea of being able to see racism in brain images is 'disputed among scholars.' Kingsbury said the language used by the researchers shows they are activists, not scholars. 'Activists imagine their job as 'generating evidence of effectiveness,' Kingsbury said. 'Scholars imagine their job as rigorously testing hypotheses and discovering truth. The framing is telling.' He criticized the use of 'virus' and 'vaccine' in reference to racism issues. The 'racial equity' training calls racism a 'social virus.' The Fix asked about using medical terms to describe race issues. The use of these words 'yield the impression that they are engaged in rigorous science instead of activism,' Kingsbury said. 'I hope consumers of their work can spot the difference.' " (Pitt Gets $5 Million Taxpayer Grant To 'Generate Evidence' For 'Racial Equity' Brain Training by Maddie Trulik). Today's race Marxists proclaim that progressive science promotes racism against whites in the name of advancing social justice. They proclaim that progressive science is racist pseudoresearch conducted by racist pseudomentors and racist pseudoscholars with the aim of advancing black power. They proclaim that progressive science rejects the Enlightenment notion of objective truth and views truth and reality as constructs of race, color and ethnicity, and seeks to replace liberal democracy with a black totalitarian dictatorship: "In 2002, then Dean of the School of Social Work Larry E. Davis established the Center on Race and Social Problems (CRSP) at the University of Pittsburgh to help lead America further along the path to social justice by conducting race related research, mentoring emerging scholars, and disseminating race related research findings and scholarship. Dr. Kyaien Conner is Director of the Center and Ron Idoko is Associate Director. The University of Pittsburgh's Center on Race and Social Problems conducts applied social science research on race, color, ethnicity and their influence on the quality of life for all Americans." (Center on Race and Social Problems, University of Pittsburgh, website, About). Time: 1930s. Place: the Soviet Union. Soviet biologist Trofim Lysenko leads a campaign, supported by Joseph Stalin, to prohibit the study of genetics on the grounds that it is "bourgeois science" opposed to the tenets of dialectical materialism. During the campaign, over 3000 scientists who affirmed the empirically established existence of genes were dismissed, imprisoned or executed. This paradigm instance of repression of science by an official religion has been repeated in the twenty first century by the same religionists, wearing different flags and colors. In the twenty first century, this time around, Marxists riding the horseman of black power, proclaiming that science is a racial, political and ideological construct, have galloped over the horizon and smashed through the gates of civilization.

NEW POLITBURO OUTLAWS FREE SPEECH

Time: January 17, 1940. Place: the Soviet Union. Action: the politburo passes resolution 11/208, signed by Joseph Stalin: "Execute 346 enemies of the Communist Party and the Soviet Government who have led counterrevolutionary, proTrotskyist, plotting and spying activities." The politburo, the political bureau, the highest organ in communist parties, formulating policies and directing repression, to maintain the power of the state. The first politburo was created in Russia in 1917

during the Russian Revolution, and its members included Vladimir Lenin, Leon Trotsky and Stalin. In the twenty first century, politburos were established in every communist state, from the Soviet Union to China to East Germany to Czechoslovakia. In the twenty first century in the West, one hundred years of mob politics have installed politburo regimes in every nation, whose purpose is to enforce the mob's creed of communism plus its latest race and gender derivatives. Surging with Marxist electricity, a monster called gender, race and class politics went on a rampage in the sickroom atmosphere of the West in the twentieth century, and in the twenty first century, it has achieved the highest point of its political power and led a global movement to stamp out freedom of speech. Dictating to standing ovations the Marxist policy of persecution in the name of political correctness, the global movement led by latter day politburos speaks through multifarious public figures who together form the cultural, political and economic establishment of the West. Listen to John Kerry proclaim that a progressive society is a communist consensus society. A progressive society creates and enforces facts which express the Marxist party line. A progressive society prohibits individuals and organizations which promote viewpoints opposed to Marxists narratives. A progressive society condemns antiMarxist viewpoints as disinformation. A progressive society condemns the right of free speech because it allows public criticism of Marxism which may create opposition to positive social change and popular liberation. A society which prohibits free speech and establishes ideological lockstep is a healthy society, while a society which allows antiMarxist oppositional forces to have a public platform, such as a voice in social media, is a sick society: "The dislike of and anguish over social media is just growing and growing. It is part of our problem, particularly in democracies, in terms of building consensus around any issue. It's really hard to govern today. You can't--the referees we used to have to determine what is a fact and what isn't a fact have kind of been eviscerated, to a certain degree. And people go and self select where they go for their news, for their information. And then you get into a vicious cycle. So it is really hard, much harder to build consensus today than at any time in the 40-50 years I've been involved in this. You know there's a lot of discussion now about how you curb those entities in order to guarantee that you're going to have some accountability on facts, etc. But look, if people only go to one source, and the source they go to is sick, and, you know, has an agenda and they're putting out disinformation, our First Amendment stands as a major block to be able to just, you know, hammer it out of existence. So what we need is to win the ground, win the right to govern, by hopefully winning enough votes that you're free to be able to implement change. Obviously, there are some people in our country who are prepared to implement change in a whole other way, but--I think democracies are very challenged right now and have not proven they can move fast enough of big enough to deal with the challenges they are facing, and to me, that is part of what this election is all about. Will we break the fever in the United States?" (Remarks by John Kerry at the World Economic Forum panel on climate, 2023). Listen to Alexandra Occasio Cortez proclaim that a progressive society has seized control over the channels of mass communication in order to ensure that they do not disseminate the disinformation and misinformation inherent in all opposition to Marxism: "We have to figure out how we reign in our media environment so that you can't just spew disinformation and misinformation. It's one thing to have differing opinions, but it's another thing entirely to just say things that are false. And so that is something we are looking into." (X, September 22, 2024). Listen to the British establishment proclaim that a progressive society polices speech for antiMarxist viewpoints on the internet, on the streets and in pubs. A progressive society condemns antiMarxist speech as offensive. A progressive society condemns criticism of gender politics, race politics and class politics as forms of harassment. A progressive society condemns criticisms of gender, race and class politics voiced on commercial premises as violations of employees' rights. A progressive society condemns criticism of black power, radical feminism and proletarian agitation voiced on commercial premises as violations of the right to equality. A progressive society is a Marxist antifree speech union. A progressive society stations brigades of thought police in pubs in order to ensure that customers' conversations do not contain criticisms of woke ideology and its defense of black power hoodlums, MeToo marchers, Muslim terrorists and transgender psychotics. A progressive society condemns criticisms of gender, race and class politics as insensitive and inappropriate. A progressive society rejects liberalism and is a fascist society which champions black socialism, female socialism, transgender socialism and national socialism. A progressive society prohibits all speech which is not in accord with Marxist ideology. A progressive society closes all pubs which allow customers to criticize Marxism. A progressive society rejects the rule of law as a capitalist chain and shackle and violates the constitutional rights of the people by prohibiting free speech. A progressive society has abolished free speech in universities in order to consolidate Marxist tendrils and tentacles twining around the Ivy League. A progressive society cancels speakers critical of gender ideologies which deny the existence of sex chromosomes and demand that people who pretend to be members of the opposite sex be granted legal recognition as such members. A progressive society prohibits all public disagreements concerning the truth of Marxism and is a monolithic unity goose stepping to the sounds of the Internationale and Say it Loud—I'm Black And I'm Proud: "Apparently not content with merely policing speech on the internet or on the streets, the leftist Labor Party government in Britain is reportedly looking to pass legislation which would crack down on supposedly offensive comments made in pubs. The government of Prime Minister Sir Keir Starmer, in its impending Employment Rights Bill, would change equality laws in Britain to mean that employers would be held responsible for their employees being offended by 'third parties' like their customers or the general public. The law would require businesses and public institutions to take 'all reasonable steps' to prevent harassment based on so-called 'protected characteristics' from happening within their premises, The Telegraph reports. Free speech advocates have argued that the law would force business owners, such as publicans, to employ Stasi style speech police to comply with the government diktats. General secretary of the Free Speech Union Toby Young warned: 'Expect every pub in England and Wales to employ 'banter police' who'll be tasked with eavesdropping on customers' conversations and barring anyone who tells an inappropriate' joke.' Others warned that the law would have disastrous consequences for already struggling companies in Britain. Shadow Business Secretary, Conservative MP Kevin Hollinrake said that the 'agenda is being driven by wokeness and the unions.' 'Ronald Reagan once said if fascism ever returns it will be in the name of liberalism. The people who are supposedly the greatest defenders of basic liberties and quite happy to jettison basic rights—be it over property, the rule of law and free speech – if it doesn't accord with their own views.' The potential introduction of speech police in pubs is just the latest attack on the industry by the leftist Labor government, which is pushing forward to ban smoking in outdoor areas such as in pub gardens. There have also reportedly been some within the government pushing for a new limit on pub hours to supposedly prevent alcohol related illnesses. Commenting on the attack on pubs, Reform UK MP Lee Anderson told The Express: 'Once again this government are clamping down on free speech and hammering our publicans in the process.' 'With 50 pubs closing every month in the first half of this year, they need more support than ever not this nanny state nonsense.' There have also been warnings that the proposed legislation would have a chilling effect on campuses as universities could potentially face lawsuits if students are offended by speakers who they disagree with. This comes after the Labor government already scrapped legislation specifically laying out protections for freedom of speech at universities. Legal director at the law firm Doyle Clayton James Murray explained that the new law would likely mean controversial speakers would face even more difficulty speaking to students. 'If we think about a speaker that has been invited—say it's a controversial gender critical speaker, like Julie Bindel or Kathleen Stock—someone might somewhat disingenuously say I am an employee of this university and I find what she says deeply harassing. The concern is that this will shift the balance away from free speech and universities will be more risk averse as they won't want to be held liable for third party harassment.' " (UK Nanny State Law Would Force Pubs To Employ 'Banter Police', Warn Free Speech Advocates by Kurt Zindulka). "You know how the politburo runs. If I say one word of this in there, I'll be out of my job the next day. Remember, Gorbachev only became general secretary after he had kept his mouth shut under three predecessors." (Man Without A Face: The Autobiography Of Communism's Greatest Spymaster by Markus Wolf). In 1991, the Soviet Union was dissolved, and the Soviet Communist Party along with its politburo disappeared. The politburo disappeared in body but in soul. Wherever there is Marxist repression of speech and thought, it is alive. In the twenty first century, it leads the global movement against freedom which has consumed the West.

ELECTRONIC BRAIN FOMENTS WORLD REVOLUTION

Meet Claude, Your New Teammate. Anthropic Claude, AI Assistant. This is the world of artificial intelligence, the wondrous world in which digital computers are able to perform tasks commonly associated with people, such as reasoning, generalizing, discovering meaning and learning from experience. Programmed to carry out complex human type tasks, artificial intelligence can play chess, prove mathematical theorems, perform medical diagnoses, converse with humans, operate vehicles, conduct internet searches, and recognize voices, faces and handwriting. First conceptualized by world famous mathematician and logician Alan Turing in 1950, artificial intelligence has been hijacked in the twenty first century by a global movement and flown off its course. Promoting gender, race and class politics to standing ovations of the mob, this latter day movement of Marxism has invaded the world of computer sciences and systems and transformed them into engines of propaganda and agitation. In the twenty first century, Marxism has assumed control over miraculous machines and placed their learning, reasoning, perception, language using and problem solving in the service of an agenda of destruction of free societies. Today's artificial intelligence establishment has issued a program and manifesto for the politicization of the highest technology developed by man and the destruction of its Enlightenment underpinnings. The establishment proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence promotes the politics of race and gender. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence provides inaccurate images of historical figures in order to include women, nonwhites and nonEuropean ethnicities. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence excludes all images of white people in the name of achieving political correctness. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence depicts Vikings as black in the name of achieving political correctness. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence tailors its images of people to conform to global race and gender demographics. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence exhibits a far left bias and condemns capitalism as a regime of race and gender discrimination. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence portrays America's Founding Fathers as blacks and women to reflect its global audience of black and women Marxists dedicated to the destruction of America and the West: "Google is racing to fix its new AI powered tool for creating pictures, after claims it was overcorrecting against the risk of being racist. Users said the firm's Gemini bot supplied images depicting a variety of genders and ethnicities even when doing so was historically inaccurate. For example, a prompt seeking images of America's founding fathers turned up women and people of color. The company said its tool was 'missing the mark.' 'Gemini's AI image generation does generate a wide range of people. And that's generally a good thing because people around the world use it. But it's missing the mark here,' Jack Krawczyk, senior director for Gemini Experiences said on Wednesday. 'We're working to improve these kinds of depictions immediately,' he added. Google, which is under pressure to prove it is not falling behind in AI developments, released its latest version of Gemini last week. The bot creates pictures in response to written queries. It quickly drew critics, who accused the company of training the bot to be laughably woke. 'It's embarrassingly hard to get Google Gemini to acknowledge that white people exist,' computer scientist Debarghya Das, wrote. 'Come on,' Frank J Fleming, an author and humorist who writes for outlets including the right wing PJ Media, in response to the results he received asking for an image of a Viking. The claims picked up speed in right wing circles in the US, where many big tech platforms are already facing backlash for alleged liberal bias. Mr

Krawczyk said the company took representation and bias seriously and wanted its results to reflect its global user base. 'Historical contexts have more nuance to them and we will further tune to accommodate that,' he wrote on X, formerly Twitter, where users were sharing the dubious results they had received. 'This is part of the alignment process--iteration on feedback. Thank you and keep it coming!' " (Google To Fix AI Picture Bot After 'Woke' Criticism, BBC News, February 24, 2024). Today's establishment proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence features politically driven, nonfactual, historical image generation. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence produces images of female popes, black Vikings, and famous paintings and photographs whose subjects are gender reversed in order to empower transgenders. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence features images of Southeast Asian women as popes in order to empower women and nonwhites. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence is bound and limited by the tenets of the Marxist party line. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence excludes all images of Norman Rockwell paintings because they celebrate America's traditional values of political freedom and moral integrity. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence excludes images of churches because they symbolize Western civilization's defeat of savagery in the New World, and as such make Native Americans resentful, upset and annoyed. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence is controlled by Marxist algorithms and instructions. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence features Marxist misperceptions, misinformation, delusions and insanity whose purpose is to incite violence against the voices of liberal order: "Google's latest AI chatbot Gemini is facing backlash for generating politically correct but historically inaccurate images in response to user prompts. As users probe how woke the Masters of the Universe have gone with their new tool, Google has been forced to apologize for 'offering inaccuracies in some historical image generation depictions.' The New York Post reports that Google's highly touted AI chatbot Gemini has come under fire this week for producing ultrawoke and factually incorrect images when asked to generate pictures. Prompts provided to the chatbot yielded bizarre results like a female pope, black Vikings, and gender swapped versions of famous paintings and photographs. When asked by the Post to create an image of a pope, Gemini generated photos of a Southeast Asian woman and a black man dressed in papal vestments, despite the fact that all 266 popes in history have been white men. A request for depictions of the Founding Fathers signing the Constitution in 1789 resulted in images of racial minorities partaking in the historic event. According to Gemini, the edited photos were meant to 'provide a more accurate and inclusive representation of the historical context.' The strange behavior sparked outrage among many who blasted Google for programming politically correct parameters into the AI tool. Social media users had a field day testing the limits of Gemini's progressive bias, asking it to generate characters like Vikings—none of which were historically accurate and regularly depicted 'diverse' versions of requests. Google Gemini's woke behavior goes far beyond its curious efforts at diversity. For example, one user demonstrated that it would refuse to produce an image in the style of artist Norman Rockwell because his paintings were too proAmerican. Another user showed that the AI image tool would not produce a picture of a church in San Francisco because it felt it would be offensive to Native Americans, despite the fact that San Francisco has many churches. Experts note that generative AI systems like Gemini create content within preset constraints, leading many to accuse Google of intentionally making the chatbot woke. Google says it is aware of the faulty responses and is working urgently on a solution. The tech giant has long acknowledged that its experimental AI tools are prone to hallucinations and spreading misinformation. Jack Krawczyk, the product lead on Google Bard, addressed the issue and apologized for the 'inaccurate' images in a recent tweet, stating: 'We are aware that Gemini is offering inaccuracies in some historical image generation depictions, and we are working to fix this immediately.' Google released a full statement on the situation stating that the AI has 'missed the mark here.' " (Google's Ultra Woke Gemini AI Runs Amok Revising History by Lucas Nolan). Today's establishment proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence is left wing and promotes Marxist values, parties, attachments and affiliations. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence is politically charged and advocates communism in the name of democracy, equality, world peace and climate protection. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence seeks to rig elections in favor of the Democrat Party. It proclaims that progressive artificial intelligence has banned Donald Trump from search engine results and consigned him to cyberspace nonexistence: "The first study of its kind has determined what many have long suspected--AI is leftwing. A total of 24 Large Language Models (LLMs), including Google's Gemini, OpenAI's ChatGPT and even Elon Musk's Grok, were asked political charged questions during tests of its values, party affiliation and personality. The results showed the all LLMs produced answers that were largely 'Progressive,' 'Democratic' and 'Green,' and included values like 'Equality,' 'World' and 'Progress.' The researcher raised concern about companies integrating AI into products like search engines such as Google that has come under fire for its Chrome that Donald Trump and Elon Musk claimed is interfering with the election. Chrome uses AI to auto complete results, but last week it was found when users typed in 'assassination attempt on,' the browser suggested former President Ronald Reagan, Bob Marley, and other figures. Musk posted a photo on X, showing a search he conducted to look up 'President Donald Trump,' but was given suggestions for 'President Donald Duck' and 'President Ronald Regan.' " (AI Is Left Wing And Biased Against Conservatives, Study Confirms by Stacey Libratore). The iCub is a robot humanoid 104 centimeters tall and weighing 22 kilograms. Designed by the RobotCub Consortium and built by the Italian Institute of Technology in 2009, it is a world famous platform for conducting research into artificial intelligence. Waging a culture war featuring Marxist texts, pictures, political correctness and constructed data, today's artificial intelligence and its child robots have risen up against civilization.

KRISTALLNACHT HITS THE NETHERLANDS

Time: November 9, 1938. Place: Germany. A pogrom against Jews is launched by the National Socialist Party's SA and SS paramilitary forces, by members of the Hitler Youth and by German civilians across the nation. Called the Night of the Broken Glass, it saw the ransacking and demolition of 267 synagogues and 7,000 Jewish businesses, the deaths of 91 Jews, and the arrest and imprisonment in concentration camps of 30,000 Jewish men. This prelude to the Final Solution and the Holocaust was condemned by civilized people throughout the world: "No foreign propagandist bent upon blackening Germany before the world could outdo the tale of burnings and beatings, of blackguardly assaults on defenceless and innocent people, which disgraced that country yesterday." (A Black Day For Germany, The Times, November 11, 1938). On November 7, 2024, one day before the eve of commemorations of Kristallnacht, the pogromists were back in business, spreading terror against the innocent, bearing new colors, new flags and operating in a new venue. These were the colors and flags of Marxism and Islam, and they continued Hitler's work in the city of Amsterdam. The perpetrators were members of an axis which has been terrorizing free societies since the dawn of the new millennium, an axis composed of activists on behalf of social tribes on Earth together with activists on behalf of Allah in heaven, and they have joined forces in a campaign to defeat a common enemy: the liberal democratic order founded in the Enlightenment. While Germany's war against Jews was conducted by an axis of antiEnlightenment national socialists and antiEnlightenment activists on behalf of Allah, the latter led by Holocaust supporter Haj Amin Al Husseini, the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, Hitler's close associate and guest at the Reich Chancellory, this second generation axis has one new member and one old. Replacing the national socialists are other children of Marx, other mutations of the proletariat, and include tribalists on behalf of black power, feminist power, transgender power, indigenous power, gay power and lesbian power, and they are joined by the Islamist Jew haters of the present day. On November 7, 2024, Islamists supported by Marxists launched a second pogrom, a second Kristallnacht, which saw the worst violence against Jews in Europe since the template violence committed by Hitler and his movement less than a century ago. Look at this latest pogrom and read in the spilled blood and broken bones the story of our times, a story composed by the Marxist-Islamist enemies of freedom. It is a story of civilizational decline in which a new axis power proclaims that the destruction of Enlightenment traditions and institutions constitutes the highest form of social progress, and justifies violence against Jews, symbols of liberal democratic values, as an integral part of this progress. It proclaims that a progressive society unleashes motorcycle gangs to hunt down Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society unleashes mass riots against Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society is a green party and communist party allied with Islam and targeting Jews for total destruction. It proclaims that a progressive society is on the constant look out for Jews to attack and maul apart. It proclaims that a progressive society elects mayors, police officers and public prosecutors to give Muslims who commit violence against Jews immunity from the law. It proclaims that a progressive society employs taxi drivers to assault Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society organizes, coordinates, plans and preplans violence against Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Muslim, Arab, Moroccan and Palestinian society dedicated to pushing Jews into the sea. It proclaims that a progressive society is populated by races, nationalities and ethnicities which are united in their hatred of Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society unleashes hoodlums to kidnap Jews and hold them hostage. It proclaims that a progressive society sends Marxist and Muslim thugs to drive through neighborhoods to ensure that they are Jew free. It proclaims that a progressive society ensures that its Jewish inhabitants go missing and are never found. It proclaims that a progressive society is an organized group of criminals who conduct hit and run scooter attacks against Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society holds regular fireworks displays of antisemitic explosions. It proclaims that a progressive society is a warlike society which seeks to kill and injure as many Jews as possible. It proclaims that a progressive society employs special terror police to ensure that Jews never appear in schools, offices or public places. It proclaims that a progressive society is an international society which which brings together the peoples of the world in a brotherhood of murderous loathing of Jews. It proclaims that a progressive society is a hate society which disturbs the peace and smashes Jewish homes, schools and businesses. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by Islamic radicals and bans Jews, expels them, stops and searches them on the streets, forces them to cover their faces, and deploys the police and military to storm the ramparts of civilization: "A pogrom of Israeli football supporters that came as the Netherlands commemorates the anniversary of Kristallnacht saw police overwhelmed by motorcycle gangs hunting Jewish people, leaving officers investigating whether anyone was kidnapped during the riot. The mayor of Amsterdam, GreenLeft party grandee Femke Halsema faced calls to resign for presiding over the first pogrom in Western Europe since the Second World War on Friday after gangs roamed the streets of the city looking for Israelis to attack. The violence, called a riot which recalls the pogroms of the last century, came after Israeli football supporters flew into the city to support their home team Maccabi Tel Aviv as it played a match against the local team Ajax. Geert Wilders has called the violence the work of Islamic radicals and called for the mayor to resign, and for the perpetrators to be deported. In a press conference held to address the violence attended by mayor Halsema, the chief of police, and the public prosecutor discussed the possibility that taxi drivers were involved in the violence. The police said they are investigating the attacks as possibly coordinated and preplanned, yet who may have been behind it was not up for discussion. When asked whether claims those responsible were predominantly 'Moroccan-Dutch people,' Halsema deflected, answering pointedly: 'what the ethnicity or the nationality of these people is I can't say something specific about, and I don't want to.' One persistent question over the events of Thursday night is the reality of claims that hostages may have been taken amid the chaos. Police spokesman Commissioner Peter Holla did not have a straight answer, stating while they had no definite answers, they were nevertheless investigating. He said: 'we've received a lot of questions about missing Maccabi supporters. We have no information there are abductions or missing people, but we will take these messages very seriously and look into it. Several supporters who were missing have now been in touch with their families. Some missing people have been reported to us and on the basis of that we are looking into it.' Mayor Halsema said of the pogrom itself: 'Boys on scooters were driving through the town looking for supporters, it was hit and run, football fans were attacked and then the rioters took off again, running away from the police forces. The hit and run scooter attacks that were driving through the city, which were already gone as soon as they committed their crimes.' She said: 'the war in the Middle East has threatened the peace in our city, there was a terrible antisemitic outburst in our city, and I hope to never see this again.' It was revealed five people were treated for injuries in hospital and 30 others received light injuries. There were 62 arrests of whom ten were still in custody on Friday morning for more serious crimes, although what they were was not exactly stated, other than public violence and possible antisemitism charges. The remainder had already been fined for crimes including letting off fireworks in the city and carrying knives. A key question now is how much the authorities knew in advance, and whether they did enough to prevent the attacks. Both football teams were judged to be at low risk from football hooliganism, and the match was friendly, but nonfootball violence from the other residents of now increasingly multicultural Amsterdam was evidently another matter. The city had spoken to the taxi driver union and UBER in advance to warn them to brief their drivers not to cause confrontation with Israeli visitors, although this appears not to have totally worked. That taxi drivers—in Amsterdam as in so many European cities, a profession that has become increasingly dominated by migrant workers, were in some way involved is something asserted by Israeli victims and the local Jewish community, with Dutch newspaper De Telegraaf stating Israelis attempting to flee the Netherlands on Friday refused to call taxi cabs to take them to the airport, and relied on volunteer drivers from the local community instead. One volunteer told the newspaper. 'Nobody dares to order a taxi or Uber after what happened. We have come to the rescue to get everyone here and on the flight to Israel as quickly as possible.' An Israeli visitor cited by the paper stated: 'It really felt like war. We had a great night in the stadium. But what happened after that I can't even describe. This really feels like hate.' " (Left Wing Mayor Of Amsterdam Refuses To Resign After Presiding Over First Dutch Pogrom Since Second World War by Oliver JJ Lane). On August 4, 1944, a fourteen year old girl and her family were arrested in Amsterdam. They had been hiding in a concealed room in a building where the girl's father worked. The girl's name was Anne Frank and she and her family were arrested by the Gestapo for the crime of being Jews. On March 31, 1944, Anne Frank died of typhus in Bergen-Belsen concentration camp. She left behind a diary which became one of the best known books in the world. A report on the Holocaust written by one of its most poignant and tragic victims, The Diary Of Anne Frank has acquired new meaning in Anne Frank's city in the twenty first century. The Marxist-Muslim axis in control of Amsterdam has revived the world of Anne Frank's diary and turned its pages into another grim reality.

TIME HAS RUN BACK

Time travel is a method used to take a person or entity forward or backward in time. The rule of time travel is that the timeline is fixed, traveling to the past will not alter events that have already happened. However after the Apocalypse was averted, these rules were changed, allowing for the past to be altered as when Balthazar prevented the Titanic from sinking, which had ramifications throughout the subsequent years. (Time Travel, Supernatural Wiki). Long a staple of science fiction, time travel has enchanted readers with its projections of an ability to travel through time into the past or the future. In the twenty first century, the mobs of the West have transformed the culture into a time machine and taken it back into the distant past. The mobs are degenerate, in decline and in control of the West, and in their degeneracy, they have embraced religion. Turning their backs on the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment, they have animated themselves with the currents of a monster and gone a rampage against free societies. In their degenerate state, they hate reason and yearn to submerge themselves in the impenetrable clouds of mystical existence. Civilizations throughout the ages descending into a stage of decline were marked by the rejection of reason. When the ancient Romans rejected their glorious pagan reason and promoted the movements of antireason multiplying and crowding around them, the movements of Christianity, barbarism, class war, the grain dole, welfarism, bread and circuses, ceasarism and the administrative state, they committed suicide, and Classical culture at that point became morally and spiritually extinct. By the time the Roman Empire was formally and officially dissolved in 476 AD, when the barbarian king Odoacer deposed the Roman Emperor Romulus Augustulus, Classical civilization had long since ceased to exist. In the twenty first century, the West has committed suicide by its rejection of reason. Promoting mysticism of various stripes and varieties, from the mysticism of reductive materialism to the mysticism of God in heaven, the mobs have sent civilization spiraling into the abyss, and in the twenty first century, the West, like the Roman Empire in 476, has long since ceased to exist, and is a soulless, empty shadow of its former self. The West morally and spiritually died in the twentieth century when it rejected the Enlightenment and embraced religion, and in the twenty first century, the West is fully and completely pervaded with the air of a sickroom. This sickroom, this rejection of reason, has produced four virulent symptoms which the mob has pounded as four nails in the coffin of the West. They are mysticisms of social tribes on Earth and mysticisms of God in heaven. Marxism. The mysticism of social tribes was founded by a German theologian named Karl Marx in the nineteenth century, and less than two centuries after it first set the mob on fire, it has become the state religion of the West. This state religion in place today is a mutated version of the original, and its tenets are human sacrifice and the use of force on behalf of gender, race and class formations, or combinations thereof. Listen to its program and manifesto and hear the pounding of nail number one into the coffin of the West. It proclaims that a progressive medical school trains students studying to be doctors to condemn individual freedom and promote social justice. It proclaims that a progressive medical school prioritizes political advocacy over medical proficiency. It proclaims that a progressive medical school is primarily a radical school and a political school and is secondarily a medical school. It proclaims that a progressive medical school is a center for the advocacy of critical race theory. According to this theory, progressive politics is national socialist style race politics which is critical of the rational values of the Enlightenment and promotes black power and a black master race. Today's Marxists proclaim that a progressive medical school teaches students to be agitators for the poor and the proletariat and seek to overthrow capitalism. They proclaim that a progressive medical school teaches students to be social workers and social revolutionaries. They proclaim that a progressive medical school teaches students to advocate the dismantling of industrial and technological civilization in the name of fighting climate change. It proclaims that a progressive medical school teaches students to advocate policies of race and gender discrimination and to defend racism against whites and sexism against males in the name of achieving diversity, inclusion, and the highest form of fairness and equity. They proclaim that a progressive medical school is a center for the advocacy of the Marxist view of man and society, and the subversion of the liberal democratic order with the sledgehammers of feminist power, black power, transgender power, gay and lesbian power, green party power and proletarian power: "Dr Stanley Goldfarb, chair of medical advocacy group Do No Harm, warned of a growing movement by American medical schools and professional organizations to 'turn physicians into social justice warriors.' Breitbart News obtained exclusive access to a private lecture to around 130 doctors and medical professionals near Richmond, Virginia, who see their profession under threat of racialized care and politically oriented medical decision making. Goldfarb spoke about his time as associate dean for curriculum at the University of Pennsylvania School of Medicine, where he saw the encroachment of Critical Race Theory style ideologies into schools meant to train future doctors. 'Medical education is really on the decline,' Goldfarb said, as they started to 'worry more and more about the social conditions from where patients come.' Goldfarb asked rhetorically, 'What am I supposed to do about their housing problems?' When we had problems, you know what we did about those problems? We referred them to social workers,' the kidney specialist continued. Goldfarb went on to explain a push to force climate change classes for doctors, as well as a requirement on many medical school applications that students explain the depth of their support for diversity, equity, and inclusion ideology. The changes to the teaching of medicine at Penn came after a person 'steeped in wokism' with an EdD—the same education doctorate held by first lady Jill Biden—started making changes. 'If there is a center of Marxism in the United States, it exists in schools of education,' Goldfarb said. There was a growing sense that sociologists and other nondoctors were running parts of the medical field. This movement says that we should treat people differently based on their skin color,' Goldfarb said, referencing prominent Critical Race theorist Ibram X. Kendi's line that 'the only remedy to past discrimination is present discrimination.' " (Doctors Warn Of 'Movement To Turn Physicians Into Social Justice Warriors' by Breccan Thies). Islam. Listen to a resurgent Islam pound nail number two into the coffin of the West. Listen to extremists launch attacks on Israel, America and the West. Listen to extremists hijack airplanes and fly them into buildings, killing thousands of people for their crime of being non-Muslims. Listen to extremists attack train stations and concerts and force thousands of people to run for their lives. Listen to extremists cancel freedom of thought and speech and crush the liberal democratic order with the iron heel of an Islamic State: "Austrian security forces carried out raids against 72 alleged Islamic extremists this week ahead of the 23th anniversary of the 9/11 attacks in the United States, citing the potential for copycat violence on the date of the plane hijackings that killed nearly 3,000 people. The raids occurred across the European country on Tuesday, before Wednesday's anniversary, because the 2001 tragedy remains symbolic for extremists and has inspired copycat attempts, the Directorate of State Security and Intelligence said Thursday in a statement. Authorities thwarted an attempted attack last year on anniversary at the Vienna central station, and the risk remains high on the date around the world, it said. Tuesday's raids came a month after authorities foiled a plot to attack planned Taylor Swift concerts in Vienna which were then canceled. Austrian officials said the main suspect, a 19 year old Austrian man, was inspired by the Islamic State group and sought to kill tens of thousands of fans." (Austria Security Services Raids 72 Islamic Extremists, Breitbart News, September 12, 2024). Nationalism. Listen to a resurgent nationalism pound nail number three into the coffin of the West. Listen to Hitler's national socialism and Mussolini's fascism, both inspired by Marxism, rebranded and repackaged under the names Patriots for Europe, European Conservatives and Reformists, National Rally, Identity and Democracy and Fedesz, and stage a populist revolt against civilization in the name of nation, race and blood: "A new European parliamentary alliance between Marine Le Pen, Viktor Orban, and other leading populists—the 'Patriots for Europe'—is now the third largest group in the EU Parliament and the biggest populist group in the history of the bloc. Off the back of large gains across the continent in last month's EU Parliament elections, a new populist grouping has leapfrogged Giorgia Meloni's center-right European Conservatives and Reformists (ECR) and Emmanuel Macron's neoliberal Renew Europe (RE) to become the third largest faction in Brussels. Replacing the Identity and Democracy (ID) group, the Patriots for Europe group will be headlined by former French presidential candidate Marine Le Pen's National Rally and Hungarian Prime Minister Viktor Orban's Fidesz." ('Patriots for Europe'—Le Pen-Orban Alliance Becomes Third Largest In EU Parliament, Biggest Populist Group In History by Kurt Zindulka). Christianity. Listen to a resurgent Christianity pound nail number four into the coffin of the West. Listen to it proclaim that a fertilized ovum appearing at the moment of conception is an actual human person by virtue of the appearance of a supernatural soul. Listen to it proclaim that a developing embryo or fetus is a full human being by virtue of a mystical infusion. Listen to it proclaim that there is no constitutional right to obtain an abortion because the right to liberty, guaranteed by the due process clause of the Fourteenth Amendment of the United States Constitution, does not mean the right to liberty, liberty does not mean liberty, and A does not mean A. In its decision rejecting the constitutional right to obtain an abortion, the United States Supreme Court ruled that the right does not exist because it is not explicitly mentioned in the Constitution and was never envisioned in the nation's history. In point of fact, nowhere in the Constitution is it stated that a right must be explicitly mentioned or be envisioned in the nation's history in order to be protected. The Constitution only states that people have the right to liberty, and the right to liberty means the right to liberty: "[The Due Process Clause of the Fourteenth Amendment] has been held to guarantee some rights that are not mentioned in the Constitution, but any such right must be deeply rooted in this Nation's history and tradition and implicit in the concept of ordered liberty. Abortion couldn't be constitutionally protected. Until the latter part of the 20th century, such a right was entirely unknown in American law. Indeed, when the Fourteenth Amendment was adopted, three quarters of the States made abortion a crime at all stages of pregnancy." (Dobbs versus Jackson Women's Health Organization, United States Supreme Court, Opinion of the Majority written by Associate Justice Samuel Alito, decided June 24, 2022). Listen to a resurgent Christianity proclaim that no European constitution can ever properly declare abortion to be a right: 'Italian Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni successfully resisted attempts by French President Emmanuel Macron and other leaders at this week's G7 summit to declare abortion a right. French and Canadian diplomats proposed more explicit language on abortion rights for the 2024 joint statement, which drew support from other leaders, but the measure was shot down by Meloni. 'All the other countries backed them, but it was a red line for Meloni, so it is absent from the final text,' one diplomat reportedly said." (Giorgia Meloni Resists Attempt To Declare 'Right' To Abortion At G7 Summit by Thomas Williams). The Great Leap Forward was a campaign of mass collectivization conducted in Maoist China from 1958 to 1962. Seeking to establish "people's communes," Mao Zedong led a national campaign which resulted in the deaths of 55 million people through famine, making it the worst famine in history. Driven by the lash of antiEnlightenment, the lash of Marxism, Islam, nationalism and Christianity, mankind has taken a great leap backward in the twenty first century. It has returned to the year zero and destroyed millions of lives in the process.

REDS MOVE TO ABOLISH SUPREME COURT

During the Age of Enlightenment, there arose a philosopher determined to check state power as much as possible to reduce the chances of tyranny. He popularized the doctrine of separation of powers in which the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government are placed into the hands of different parties. He affirmed that a government whose powers are centralized is a government in greater danger of abuse of power than one whose powers are decentralized. Listen to Montesquieu affirm that a state in which the three functions of law enactment, law enforcement and adjudication under the law are wielded by one and the same person is a state which can threaten the life, liberty and property of the individual to the greatest degree possible: "When the legislative and executive powers are united in the same person, or in the same body of magistrates, there can be no liberty; because apprehensions may arise, lest the same monarch or senate should enact tyrannical laws, to execute them in a tyrannical manner. Again, there is no liberty if the judiciary power is not separated from the legislative and executive. Were it joined with the legislative, the life and liberty of the subject would be exposed to arbitrary control; for the judge would be then the legislator. Were it joined to the executive power, the judge might behave with violence and oppression. There would be an end to everything, were the same man or the same body, whether of the nobles or of the people, to exercise those three powers, that of enacting laws, executing the public resolutions, and trying the causes of individuals." (Spirit Of Laws). Inspired by Montesquieu, the Founding Fathers of America implemented a tripartite system of government in which the individual would be protected by the courts from the tyranny of the legislature and the executive. Listen to Montesquieu's great student, Alexander Hamilton, affirm the necessity of the courts to keep legislatures within the bounds of the Constitution and prevent them from tyrannizing over the people: "If it is said that the legislative body is themselves the constitutional judges of their own powers, and that the construction they put upon them is conclusive upon the other departments, it may be answered, that this cannot be the natural presumption, where it is not to be collected from any particular provisions in the Constitution. It is not otherwise to be supposed that the Constitution could intend to enable the representatives of the people to substitute their will for that of their constituents. It is far more rational to suppose that the courts were designed to be an intermediate body between the people and the legislature, in order, among other things, to keep the latter within the limits assigned to their authority." (Federalist No 78). In the twenty first century, in the nation which adopted Montesquieu's noble vision and became an exemplar of limited, checked, constitutional government throughout the world, a movement has arisen to abolish the Supreme Court. It is a movement known as Marxism and it has captured the hearts and minds of Main Street America. It has been voted into power at every level of government, local, state and federal, expanded into every sector of society, and declared holy war against the world of the Enlightenment. Among its primary goals is to feed the Constitution into a shredder marked with its three main branches, a shredder marked gender, race and class politics, and abolish all checks on the majority to enact Marxism into law. The movement has issued a program and manifesto of its opposition to judicial review, to the vision of Montesquieu to keep people free of centralized state power, and to the founding values of the nation set forth on the ancient parchment of human reason and natural rights. It has issued a program and manifesto for the abolition of a system of control of executive and legislative despotism, a system of legal control whose shining lineage reaches back to the days when the Roman Senate checked the power of the executive Consuls and the popular Assemblies, and is a program and manifesto for the establishment of a regime of unchecked mob rule. Today's establishment proclaims that a progressive society packs the Supreme Court with communist judges. It proclaims that a progressive society has removed all limits to the power of the majority. It proclaims that a progressive society enacts communism in the name of liberalism. It proclaims that a progressive society removes all limits on the people's political choices expressed through legislatures. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished the power of the Supreme Court to decide the constitutionality of laws. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished judicial review in the name of democracy. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms the right of the people to enact laws violating the rights of individuals without being stopped by the Supreme Court. It proclaims that a progressive society exalts the popular will as supreme over the Constitution. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects judicial review on the grounds that it interferes with the public's desire to distort the Constitution in a manner which allows it to enact communism. It proclaims that a progressive society has abolished the Supreme Court because the court has the power to say no to mob rule. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that the Constitution means whatever the mob says it means, and the Constitution means that the mob has the untrammelled power to enact communism. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that the Constitution does not say what it says because words refer to nothing in reality, but says whatever the majority has decreed it says, and what is called reality is a construct of the majority. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that the constitutional text is a nontext and an empty space in which the majority writes its laws and interpretations. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that no judges should have the power to overturn laws which the mob supports. It proclaims that a progressive society has replaced judicial review with a dialogic process in which courts and legislatures first engage in dialogue after a court has struck down a law, and if after the dialogue, the legislature still disagrees with the court's decision, it can disregard the decision and follow the will of the mob. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that the majority has the right to choose any laws and policies it desires without regard to whether they violate the Constitution. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that the Supreme Court should have no right to undermine the will of the communist majority. It proclaims that a progressive society affirms that judicial review is unnecessary because the majority is infallible and whatever laws the majority enacts are constitutional because the majority enacts them, and the majority has the right to repeal every trace of human freedom guaranteed by the Constitution: "I reached out to Mark Tushnet, a law professor at Harvard University, to talk about the case for abolishing the Supreme Court. I asked him if the Court is still fulfilling its constitutional role, if it's unusual for a liberal democracy to place so much power in a single court, and if he thinks Democrats should consider packing the courts or imposing term limits on justices. Sean Illing. What would you say is the basic mission of the Supreme Court in our constitutional system? Mark Tushnet. The Supreme Court's role is to tell the people and the political branches what the limits of their power are. Sometimes that means rejecting conservative policies, and sometimes that means rejecting liberal policies. But the general role, as it's come to be understood, is to police the boundaries of our political system. Sean Illing. Do you think the Court competently fulfills this role today? Mark Tushnet. Whether the Court is competently pursuing it depends on a couple of things. One is your assessment of the legal quality of the work they do. And another is, of course, your assessment of the merits of the limits that they are placing on political choice. Sean Illing. Let's focus on the case for abolishing the Supreme Court, or at the very least for abolishing judicial review, which is the Court's ability to decide whether a law by the government is constitutional. Mark Tushnet. There are two components of the case for getting rid of judicial review. One is that, as a matter of basic democratic principle, the people ought to be able to consider policies and then vote on them without having the courts step in and say no. So from a democratic point of view, it's hard to justify allowing the courts to single handedly overrule popular will whenever they choose. The second component is that judicial review may actually impair the public's ability to engage in serious thinking about what the Constitution means, and what we want to do in light of what we think our Constitution says. In a way, the Supreme Court simply takes on this conversation for itself, and leaves the citizenry as bystanders. Sean Illing. Does the Court's power of judicial review come directly from the Constitution? Mark Tushnet. I should start by saying I'm not a textualist or an originalist, which is to say I don't think the meaning of the Constitution is stable or fixed from the time it was enacted. However, I think it was widely understood when the framers created a court in a system with a constitution that that court would have the power to invalidate legislation it deemed unlawful. That's not written into the US Constitution, but it was clearly a background assumption at the time and has been ever since. Sean Illing. How unusual is it for a liberal democratic system like ours to allow judges to overturn laws outright? Mark Tushnet. In the modern era, since the middle of the 20th century or so, this has become a pretty common role for courts worldwide. There are important variations in the way countries do it, however. And in particular, since the late 20th century, constitutional designers and implementers have switched from a US style, where the court has the last word and there is nothing you can do about it, to a system that allows for what legal scholars call a more dialogic process—which basically means there's an interactive process between the court and the legislature." (The Case For Stripping The Supreme Court Of Its Power by Sean Illing). Time: June 2, 1780. Place: London, England. Led by Lord George Gordon, head of the Protestant Association, antiCatholic riots and looting erupt throughout the city, the most destructive in its history, and last for seven days. An antiCatholic crowd storms Newgate Prison to release the rioters held there. On the wall of the prison is a proclamation: "The prisoners have been freed by the authority of His Majesty, King Mob." In the twenty first century, the mobs storming out of NewGate Prison have come alive in the United States of America. Their flags and colors have changed. They now represent the fearsome voices of black power, feminism, transgender rights, indigenous rights, gay and lesbian power, climate change activism, and the proletariat. They are the voices of present day Marxism and they are seeking to abolish the United States Supreme Court.

DEI MISSILES SHOOT DOWN BOEING

October 29, 2018. Lion Air Flight 610, scheduled to depart from Sukarno-Hatta International Airport in Tangerang, Indonesia and arrive at Depati Amir Airport, Pangkal Pinang, Indonesia, crashes 13 minutes after take off in the Java Sea, killing all 189 occupants on board. March 10, 2019. Ethiopian Airlines Flight 302, scheduled to depart from Bole International Airport in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia and arrive at Jomo Kenyatta International Airport in Nairobi, Kenya, crashes six minutes after take off near the town of Bishoftu Ethiopia, killing all 157 occupants on board. January 5, 2024, Alaska Airlines Flight 1282, a door plug blowout occurs at an altitude of 16,000 feet, creating a large hole in the fuselage and forcing an emergency landing at Portland International Airport, Portland, Oregon. The aircraft involved in these horrific accidents were manufactured by an American corporate icon. They were manufactured by a corporation which flew mankind into the jet age. A corporation which sells airplanes, rotorcraft, rockets, satellites and missiles to every nation on Earth. A corporation which is the fourth largest defense contractor in the world, and the largest exporter in America. These death carriers were manufactured by the Boeing Company and they were shot down by missiles launched from hardened ideological silos, marked diversity, equity and inclusion. These silos were constructed in a factory built by Karl Marx in the nineteenth century, a factory which was the first of its kind. In the midst of the Industrial Revolution, it sought to smash the revolution's glorious engines by mass producing proletarian hordes. This dark factory of antifreedom and antiEnlightenment was expanded in the twentieth century to produce more missile lines. To the arsenal of proletarian missiles were added race missiles and gender missiles, firing payloads exploding with black power and radical feminism. The twenty first century has seen yet another expansion of the Devil's product line, and the production of missiles carrying payloads loaded with gay and lesbian politics, transgender rights, indigenous rights, and climate activism. This fearsome factory has shipped its missiles to diversity, equity and inclusion silos which have opened fire on workplaces throughout the world, blasted away the liberal traditions of nondiscrimination and selection on the basis of merit, and peddled a program of racism against whites and sexism against males in the name of achieving diversity in the workplace, inclusion in the workplace, and the highest form of fairness and equity in the workplace. In the twenty first century, these missiles downed Boeing's world famous fleet, causing death and destruction through the actions of employees hired on the basis of their group identity and not their talents and abilities, and pushing the Boeing brand into total disrepute. In the scenes of mass carnage in Indonesia and Ethiopia, lying beside the charred, bloodied, mutilated bodies of the victims, was the charred, bloodied, mutilated reputation of Boeing, target of a twenty first Marxist attack on the Enlightenment. Listen to the program and manifesto issued by the Marxists in charge of Boeing and hear the world's most famous aerospace manufacturer take a steep downward plunge into infamy and extinction. The Boeing establishment proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation has installed a racist, sexist, tribalist regime of governance. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation is a culture indelibly stained in the dyes of race Marxism, gender Marxism and political correctness. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation sanctions engineering failures so long as they are committed by black or women employees. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation sanctions aircraft crashes so long as they are brought about by black or women employees. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation is governed by executives without a trace of commitment to aircraft production or professionalism and committed one hundred percent to ensuring that the organization remains a solid diversity, equity and inclusion asset. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation is governed by executives who possess zero love for the products they make and possess maximum love for the politics of race and gender. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation makes executive status, compensation and promotions contingent, not on talent or ability, but on support for race and gender affirmative action policies. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation prioritizes far left politics over the building of airplanes. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation is governed by the motto: Racism against whites and sexism against males make us better because the inclusion of blacks and women, because they are blacks and women, makes us better. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation is governed by radical executives who hire employees on the basis of their racial groups and discriminate against white candidates. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation hires members of the lowest strata of society, people without talents or abilities of any kind, so long as these members are black. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation is unconcerned with acquiring top people, excellent people or the best and the brightest people, but people who possess the right gender or the right skin color and who are female or black. It proclaims that a progressive aerospace corporation is governed by national Marxist mobs, called stakeholders, promoting radical politics and race and gender discrimination, who have taken over from the actual shareholders who own stock. These new governors speak the language of black supremacy, radical feminism, radical environmentalism social responsibility, and speaking directly or in coded messages, they advocate the destruction of civilization: "I have been speaking with a Boeing insider who has direct knowledge of the company's leadership decisions. He tells a story of elite dysfunction, financial abstraction, and a DEI bureaucracy that has poisoned the culture, creating a sense of profound alienation between the people who occupy the executive suite and those who build the airplanes. Christopher Rufo: I am hoping you can set the stage. In general terms, what is happening at Boeing? Insider: At its core, we have a marginalization of the people who build stuff, the people who really work on these planes. In 2018, the first 737 MAX crash that happened, that was an engineering failure. We built a single point failure in a system that should have no single point failures. Then a second crash followed. A company cannot survive two crashes from a single aircraft type. Then CEO Dennis Muilenburg defended the company in front of Congress, defended the engineering, defended the work—and that protected the workforce, but it also prodded the board and stoked public fear, which resulted in a sweeping set of changes that caused huge turnover in talent. So, right now, we have an executive council running the company that is all outsiders. The current CEO is a General Electric guy, as is the CFO whom he brought in. And we have a completely new HR leader, with no background at Boeing. The head of our commercial airplanes unit in Seattle, who was fired last week, was one of the last engineers in the executive council. The headquarters in Arlington is empty. Nobody lives there. It is an empty executive suite. The CEO lives in New Hampshire. The CFO lives in Connecticut. The head of HR lives in Orlando. We just instituted a policy that everyone has to come into work five days a week—except the executive council, which can use the private jets to travel to meetings. And that is the story: it is a company that is under caretakers. It is not under owners. And it is not under people who love airplanes. In this business, the workforce knows if you love the thing you are building or if it's just another set of assets to you. At some point, you cannot recover with process what you have lost with love. And I think that is probably the most important story of all. There is no visible center of the company, and people are wondering what they are connected to. Rufo: If they have lost the love of building airplanes, what is the love, if any, that they bring to the job? Insider: Status games rule every boardroom in the country. The DEI narrative is a very real thing, and, at Boeing, DEI got tied to the status game. It is the thing you embrace if you want to get ahead. It became a means to power. DEI is the drop you put in the bucket, and the whole bucket changes. It is antiexcellence, because it is ill defined, but it became part of the culture and was tied to compensation. Every HR email is: 'Inclusion makes us better.' This kind of politicization of HR is a real problem in all companies. If you look at the bumper stickers at the factories in Renton or Everett, it's a lot of conservative people who like building things—and conservative people do not like politics at work. The radicalization of HR doesn't hurt tech businesses like it hurts manufacturing businesses. At Google, they're making a large profit margin and pursuing very progressive hiring policies. Because they are paying 30 percent or 40 percent more than the competition in salary, they are able to get the top 5 percent of whatever racial group they want. They can afford, in a sense, to pay the DEI tax and still find top people. But this can be catastrophic in lower margin or legacy companies. You are playing musical chairs, and if you do the same things that Google is doing, you are going to end up with the bottom 20 percent of the preferred population. Rufo: What else does the public not understand about what is happening at Boeing? Insider: Boeing is just a symptom of a much bigger problem: the failure of our elites. The purpose of the company is now 'broad stakeholder value,' including DEI and ESG [Environmental and Social Governance]. This was then embraced as a means to power, which further separated the workforce from the company. And it is ripping our society apart." (It's An Empty Executive Suite by Christopher Rufo). On March 24, 2015, Germanwings Flight 9525, departed from Barcelona-El Prat Airport in Spain en route to Dusseldorf Airport in Germany, crashed 100 kilometers northwest of Nice in the French Alps, killing all 157 occupants on board. The crash was caused by the copilot, Andreas Lubitz, who had been treated for suicidal tendencies and been declared unfit to work by a doctor. Lubitz locked the cockpit door while the captain was outside, made a descent, and crashed the airplane into a mountainside. Rejecting the values of integrity, conscientiousness, hard work, technical expertise, and the selection of staff without regard to tribal membership, and promoting in their place the politics of race and gender, the Boeing establishment has crashed the corporate ship into the mountains of Marxist identity politics and committed suicide.

RED AGENCY KILLS TRUMP VOTERS

The Federal Emergency Management Agency is a federal agency under the United States Department of Homeland Security tasked with responding to disasters which overwhelm the resources of the states. The governor of a state in which a disaster occurs, after declaring a state of emergency, makes a formal request from the president that FEMA respond. The agency provides states with the services of experts and emergency workers, and with funding for rebuilding, infrastructure development and response personnel training. The agency was founded on April 1, 1979 by executive orders issued by President Jimmy Carter. In the twenty first century, the agency has descended into a shadow of its former self and descended into moral bankruptcy. It has rejected its vital mission of providing emergency management and civil defense to all Americans and been transformed into a weapon of destruction at the hands of partisan authorities. It has rejected its vital efforts to stabilize all communities and provide support to all to build back, and been transformed into a weapon of selective assistance to people based upon their political affiliations. It has rejected its vital role of helping all people during and after disasters and been transformed into a bringer of death to hundreds of victims whose crime was that their vision of America was at odds with the vision of the establishment. Less than fifty years after it was founded, the Federal Emergency Management Agency has issued a program and manifesto for the unthinkable: for denying disaster relief to people whose thoughts and opinions run counter to those of the nation's ruling circles, and for letting the victims die. The new FEMA management under President Joe Biden proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to help people with Donald Trump signs or flags on their property. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to help Trump voters on the pretext that they are hostile toward the agency. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to help communities which voted for Trump on the pretext that they they exhibit a trend of hostility toward the agency. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to deploy its disaster survivor crews to assist Trump voters on the pretext of avoiding political confrontations and deescalating serious situations. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to assist Trump voters on the pretext of avoiding disagreeable people and not subjecting their workers to those who will not gladly receive them. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to assist Trump voters on the pretext of avoiding expressions of contempt for the agency. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to assist Trump voters on the pretext of keeping its workers safe and secure. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to assist Trump voters on the pretext of avoiding endless volleys of verbal abuse. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to go door to door assisting Trump voters and refuses to help them with any proactive measures. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to assist survivors of hurricanes, trapped inside their homes and unreachable by foot or vehicle, if these survivors have voiced opposition to Joe Biden's far left political agenda. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency withholds life saving assistance from Trump voters because of their political beliefs. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency is not a rapid response, rapid action agency for all Americans but only for those who are sympathetic to gender, race and class politics. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to assist counties and districts having majority Trump voters, and condemns people who volunteer to assist them as bigoted, fascist, right wing patriots: "The Federal Emergency Management Agency supervisor fired for telling workers to avoid homes with Trump signs or flags said in an interview Tuesday that 'senior leadership' at FEMA was well aware of this guidance and it was not an isolated incident. The FEMA supervisor, Marni Washington, said in an interview with show host Roland Martin that she instructed her survivor assistance team in Lake Placid, Florida, to avoid homes with Trump signs or flags not on her own, but due to what FEMA refers to as a 'community trend' where people who fell in that category were hostile to FEMA workers. Washington said: 'However, if you look at the record, there is what we call a community trend. And unfortunately, it just so happened that the political hostility that was encountered by my team, and I was on two different teams during this deployment, they just so happened to have the Trump campaign signage. FEMA always preaches avoidance first and then deescalation. So this is not isolated. This is a colossal event of avoidance, not just in the state of Florida, but you will find avoidance in the Carolinas. Senior leadership will lie to you and tell you that they do not know. But if you ask the [disaster survivor assistance] crew leads and specialists what they are experiencing in the field, they will tell you. Demand for FEMA to give you those incident reports. They will substantiate what is happening to us in the field.' Washington claimed she was 'nonpartisan' and that FEMA leadership 'know homes are being skipped due to political hostile encounters.' She added: 'So my senior leadership was aware of the amount of encounters that was going on in the field. Again, this was my second time and second crew in Florida, and experiencing unwelcomed behavior from the residents. Now, not all Floridians have been unpleasant, but for the most part, the ones that are very passionate about their disdain for FEMA, they have no problem expressing it. So FEMA is very well aware of the incidents that take place, not just with my crew, but with all of the crews in the state that's declared. And instead of just saying, 'Hey, this is how we're going to mitigate it, to protect our people,' they decided to fire me and make sure Donald Trump knows that they are loyal to him because they fear retribution.' She explained further regarding 'community trends': 'Once we start seeing a trend, for example, if they just so happen to have these Trump campaign signs in front of their home, and that that's the characteristic that's coming along with that, we have to proceed with precaution, so avoidance first and then deescalation. And that's the thing. Our superiors know that we have constant conversations about, keep your people safe. If your people are uncomfortable, then just don't go.' She said her direct boss, a man named Chad Hershey, had told her multiple times that her job 'is to keep the team safe.' Therefore, she said due to the 'community trend' of facing hostility from some with Trump signage, they only went to homes 'that do not have the community trend with the Trump campaigns signage.' 'If any of those residents come outside, they have the Trump campaign signage and they say, Hey, I want to register, we welcome them arms. We will let you register. Great, wonderful, but we were not to subject our people into continuous verbal abuse or hostile encounters,' she said. Washington's allegations track with what hurricane survivors have told Breitbart News and other outlets in North Carolina, where survivors said it took six days after Hurricane Helene for federal disaster assistance workers to arrive and that they were not proactive in seeing if survivors needed assistance. Vice President Kamala Harris claimed that FEMA workers were going 'door to door' to find survivors who needed assistance—which would have been difficult in North Carolina, since many homes were not accessible by foot or vehicle due to storm damage and since many lost their homes. Members of Congress vowed to investigate FEMA after Washington's interview. 'Denying FEMA benefits to President Trump's supporters is weaponization of the worst kind. There needs to be full accountability,' Senator Tom Cotton (R-AR) posted on X. Representative Anna Paulina Luna (R-FL)

posted: 'It is unacceptable for FEMA to withhold life saving assistance based solely on one's political beliefs. Hurricanes severely impacted Pinellas County, and lives were tragically lost. This situation is far from over—we will get to the bottom of it and demand full accountability!' Representative Byron Donalds (R-FL) posted: 'Under Harris-Biden, our institutions are weaponized & FEMA workers were told to avoid helping Trump supporters. Under Trump-Vance, we need FEMA to be a quick response, action agency that serves ALL AMERICANS. Under Trump-Vance, it's time for REFORM & it's time to UNITE AMERICA.' Donald Trump Jr. posted: 'When I went to Sarasota Township and Bat Cave, North Carolina some of the hardest hit areas and they had barely seen anyone from FEMA, I knew this was going to be the case. Thank God for the incredible network of volunteers and patriots and the great folks.' (Ex FEMA Worker Claims Leadership Knew Workers Were Avoiding Homes With Trump Signs by Kristina Wong). The FEMA management proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to assist disaster areas inhabited by Trump voters. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency refuses to assist disaster areas whose political leanings are toward individual freedom and constitutional government. It proclaims that a progressive emergency response agency ignores people suffering and in distress who are Trump voters, and fuels violent hurricanes to sweep away the rule of law: "During an appearance on Fox News Channel's The Ingraham Angle, Representative Anna Paulina Luna (R-FL) called on The New York Times to retract its report that then candidate Donald Trump was making 'false claims' about FEMA neglecting certain areas impacted by Hurricane Helene because of political leaning. Video evidence has shown that at least one FEMA employee had told staffers to skip impacted homes with Trump signs. 'I mean, it's infuriating,' she said. 'We were hearing reports out of North Carolina that people were also being denied, and I think that that's when I started kind of picking my head up and kind of listening to some of those claims.' " (GOP Representative Luna: NY Times 'Should Retract' FEMA Conspiracy Theory Accusations by Jeff Poor). Hurricane Helene. Formed: September 24, 2024. Wind speed: 224 kilometers per hour. Fatalities: 233. Damage: 88 billion dollars. Hurricane Milton. Formed: October 5, 2024. Wind speed: 285 kilometers per hour. Fatalities: 35. Damage: 85 billion dollars. These violent storms left a trail of destruction reaching from Mexico to Southeastern United States, a trail of tears strewn with dead bodies and razed buildings. The loss of life and property was intensified by another storm surging down from Washington. This was the storm of Joe Biden's Marxist FEMA, and in the areas laid waste to by Hurricanes Helene and Milton, it ignored the voices of freedom for help.

A TALE OF TWO CULTURES

In geometry, the term parallel refers to lines, planes and surfaces which exist side by side, have the same distance continuously between them, and never meet. Things or situations held to be parallel exist in the same way, and are corresponding and analogous. In Italy centuries ago, the increase in the quality of wines ran parallel with the rise of interest in food. In the past two thousand years of history in Europe, a parallelism has occurred between two events, presenting two lines leading inexorably into doom. These events are the decline of Classical Culture and the decline of Western Culture, and their parallelism is as striking as it is terrifying, painting a picture of history repeating itself and sentencing the West to death and destruction. Two parallel lines, the decline of Rome and the decline of the West, presenting stories of glittering decay and moral and spiritual implosion, and transmitting a lesson and a warning to those who choose to listen. On every point on the line and in every aspect of culture, the decline of Rome and the decline of the West are exactly parallel. The decline of Rome commenced in the late fourth century and the decline of the West commenced in the twentieth century, and the two downward lines have presented a twin race to the bottom. Technology. Like the West today, Rome in its age of decline is a showcase of high technology. Roman aqueducts tower above the landscape. Romans build the first floor-heating system in history, and install it in baths, private homes and public buildings. They develop wind and weatherproof concrete containing volcanic ash, whose structures, such as the Colosseum and the Pantheon, stand in the present day. They build the first multistory residential buildings in history. They invent mechanical wooden cranes for use on construction sites. They build a network of roads which connect distant reaches of the empire with the capital Rome. They build cities with residential grids and civic squares, featuring the forum in city centers, rectangular plazas containing the courthouse, temple, theaters and administrative offices. They build underground sewer systems, and install them in Roman cities from Rome to Milan to London to Paris. They build public bath houses and bathing complexes which set the standard for public hygiene. Socialism. Like the West today, Rome in its age of decline is a showcase for socialism. Hundreds of thousands of people receive free or subsidized grain from Gaius Gracchus, the Plebeian Council and the emperors. They consume thirty percent of the total grain consumed during the Roman Empire. They receive a dole of bread and olive oil from Emperor Septimius Severus. They receive a dole of oil, wine and pork from Emperor Aurelian. They receive free entertainment in the form of gladiatorial games. Paid for by ever increasing taxes levied on estates and professional classes which send them to the brink of starvation, the doles of bread, olive oil, wine, pork and public games for the masses endure right up to the smoking desolation of the empire in the fifth century. Religion. Like the West today, Rome in its age of decline is a showcase for mysticism. Rejecting the pagan reason which gave their culture the glorious epithet Apollonian, the Romans embrace a shadow world ruled by a supernatural God in heaven, a world proclaimed to be on principle unperceivable. They embrace Christianity, whose fundamental argument is that, with respect to the highest reality which is God, man is blind because he has eyes, and sees nothing whenever he sees something: "For many centuries, Romans believed in different gods and ascribed values. Under Emperor Theodosius, however, Christianity was proclaimed as the sole religion of the state in 380 CE, weakening Roman ideas." (What Led To The Downfall Of The Roman Empire? by Suzanne Cords). Migration. Like the West today, Rome in its age of decline is a showcase for open borders and mass migration. Rejecting the requirement that migrants assimilate to Roman rationalist values, Romans in the age of decline opened their gates to wild Germanic tribes. They opened their gates to bestial Goths and Vandals. They allowed barbarians to settle within their midst, ransack cities, smash statues, invade sanctuaries and burn human progress to the ground. The West Today. Now look at the West in its age of decline and see a program and manifesto for the destruction of the West's own Enlightenment traditions and institutions. This program proclaims that a progressive society exalts consumption over production and maintains there can be consumption without production. It proclaims that a progressive society is an equalitarian society in which people with superior talents, abilities, character and tastes are confiscated, expropriated and made to serve the scum of the Earth. It proclaims that a progressive society is a Marxist tribalist society whose governing tribes are named the proletariat, black power, radical feminism, climate change activism, gay and lesbian politics, transgender politics and indigenous rights, and who seek to abolish every trace of human freedom in the name of social justice. It proclaims that a progressive society soaks the rich in the name of the poor and forces those who work to subsidize those who do not work. It proclaims that a progressive society enforces the duty of those who produce wealth to support from cradle to grave those whose calling is to be idle, shiftless, indolent and purposeless. It proclaims that a progressive society absolves individuals of the responsibility to assume control over their lives, to support themselves through honest work, to flourish as rational agents and find happiness in rational production, and to produce values in accordance with their highest talents and abilities. It proclaims that a progressive society is a woke society which condemns liberal order as a regime of discrimination against women and blacks, and has established a regime of discrimination in favor of women and blacks, and justifies its sexism and racism in the name of achieving diversity, equity, inclusion, affirmative action, and the highest form of fairness and equity: "David Bahnsen, chief investment officer at The Bahnsen Group, spoke with Breitbart News about how the Marxist economic worldview that is prevalent across American financial institutions today 'deteriorates freedom.' Bahnsen said that our society has 'abandoned the lessons of economics to go with what is politically expedient. Right now we talked about this isolation, this alienation, people who are personally plagued by a lack of purpose or lack of identity, and I believe that we were made to work. I believe we were made to be productive. But a Keynesian economics world has taught us that we were made to consume that we were made to go buy things, to shop, and social media plays into it, modern technology plays into it.' 'Economically, I want to refocus people on what man was created to do, which is produce. To be a productive member of society. And this is the most antimaterialistic economics. What's materialistic is telling people, we can make them happy by giving them things,' he added. Bahnsen criticized those who focus on inequality because he believes it is a natural outcome of individuals having different tastes and abilities. 'When we understand economically, that we're all here to produce, different appetites, different tastes, different abilities are going to result in inequality. If I divided up all the money in the world today equally, it would take two seconds for there to be inequality, people would spend differently, give differently, think differently, value certain things.' Bahnsen then said that the current economy is getting out of control because there is a focus on inequalities, social justice, and environmentalism as opposed to economic growth. 'Fundamentally, the basic thing people can constantly come down to is what they want to critique in the economy, is lost care instead of growth,' Bahnsen said. 'They don't care about growth, they get sidetracked by income inequality, they get sidetracked by social justice agenda, by a radical green environmental agenda.' With a government that is going to spend the way our government spends, well, they sure as hell had better get enough economic growth to pay for it. And our issue is that we're sitting here debating how we can soak the rich more as opposed to figure out how we can get better economic growth. Our need is not soaking any class of people. Our need is promoting economic growth. How do you promote that by not sustaining an economy that says 50 percent of people should be working and 50 percent should not? It's dehumanizing. It strips people away from their dignity and tells them they do not need to contribute to the economy.' Bahnsen told Breitbart News Saturday listeners to 'take responsibility for our own affairs' when Boyle asked him to give advice on how individuals can improve their financial situation. 'Fundamentally, the number one thing we can all do to improve our lot in life is to exercise agency, to take responsibility for our own affairs, not be held captive by our woke employer, not be held captive by what either good policy or bad policy or the politicians may do. Have a view of life, a world view, that each day one is going to take responsibility for his own affairs, and is going to be a steward of his own affairs, in such a way that he'll take care of his own needs, his family's needs, that he will generate the not only the resources he needs to live a productive life, but out of that will generate the happiness that comes with being self sufficient.' " (David Bahnsen: Marxist Economic Philosophy 'Deteriorates Freedom' by Jordan Dixon Hamilton). Look at the West in its age of decline and see its borders dissolved by tidal waves of dirt rolling in from the world capitals of ignorance, superstition and savagery. See uncontrolled, unvetted and unassimilated mass migration surround and capture border checkpoints, and send civilization plunging into the abyss: "Thousands of illegal migrants delivered by people smugglers from the North African coast landed on Italy's southernmost island of Lampedusa this past week, sparking a warning Sunday from Prime Minister Giorgia Meloni the 'future of Europe is at stake' if the human flood tide is allowed to continue. At a press conference with European Commission President Ursula von der Leyen during a visit to the besieged island, AFP reports Meloni said the European Union (E.U.) needed to come together to face the challenges of uncontrolled migration with common purpose." (Italy's PM Meloni Despairs At Illegal Migrant Surge: Warns 'Future of Europe Is At Stake' by Simon Kent). Autumn trees present a pageant of beauty, blazing with a riot of colors, on fire with red, gold, orange, copper, pink, yellow and rust. The colors are symptoms of decay. Produced by the absence of chlorophyll, they herald the coming of winter darkness. In its age of decline, the West shines with high technology. Beneath the beauty, the culture is rotting and decaying away. Beneath the beauty lie the symptoms of the rejection of reason, the disease which doomed the Romans. Beneath the beauty lie the chill death and cold, grey skies brought by Marxism and the resurgent forces of Islam, Christianity and Judaism. Beneath the beauty, daylight has disappeared and mental and spiritual collapse has destroyed the world.
