MIGRANT SLASHERS UNLEASH RIVERS OF BLOOD

On July 29, 2024 at 11:50 AM, at the Hart Space dance and yoga studio in Southport, Merseyside in Britain, Axel Muganwa Rudakubana took out a knife and stabbed eleven children and two adults. Three of the children, six year old Bebe King, seven year old Elsie Dot Stancombe and nine year old Alice Dasilva Aguiar, were killed. Axel Muganwa Rudakubana, born in Cardiff, Wales on August 7, 2006 to parents from Rwanda. Axel Muganwa Rudakubana, raised in a house built with African hands pronouncing wild spells and curses against the West. Axel Muganwa Rudakubana, the new face of Britain. This is Britain stabbed in the back by its Marxist establishment, Britain terrorized by migrants and the children of migrants, Britain terrorized by parents and their progeny born in distant swamplands, Britain terrorized by carriers of a rabid, malarial, white hot fever of hatred of civilization, Britain terrorized by those unassimilated and unassimilable to the values which crowned the West, the values of the Enlightenment. Axel Muganwa Rudakubana, a walking dagger unsheathed by the Marxist masses and intelligentsia who have made common cause with migrants in their campaign to overthrow five centuries of progress in sanity, reason, science, empiricism and the rights and freedoms of the individual, and return the West to the Dark Ages from whence it arose. Axel Muganwa Rudakubana, a nightmare creature come alive from electrical currents surging through a laboratory built one hundred and fifty years ago by Karl Marx. The laboratory has seen several name changes over years; its latest and final name is the culminating development of Marxism, and reads Gender, Race and Class Politics; and this chamber, equipped for dark experiments, research and teaching with the goal of manufacturing mass killers, has unleashed an army of killers on the West. Axel Muganwa Rudakubana, the face of these killers, the symbol of the Marxist establishment, the terror cloud which overhangs society, the storm of panic which rains down on the cities, the lash of fear which stalks the innocent day and night, and the epidemic of anxiety infecting families, homes, schools and offices. Axel Muganwa Rudakubana, Satan's new king of Britain and new king of the West, decreeing death and destruction to all those who stand up for freedom and the rule of law. In the twenty first century, the British masses have voted into office an axis power to run society. This is an axis comprised of equal parts of migrants and Marxists, and it has submerged Britain, "this precious stone set in the silver sea," into the blackest, filthiest sewer known to mankind. It has submerged Britain, "this other Eden, this earth of majesty, this sceptered isle," into a whirlpool of horror rotating with the images of leering faces instilling abject fear of the street corner agitator and the migrant assassin. This axis power is Britain today, and the new world it has fashioned is the old world of savage yesteryears resurrected, rendering civilization null and void. Look at Britain today and see waves of violence committed by ordinary people seeking to defend themselves against a migrant invasion. See a free society reduced to a Muslim caliphate enforcing the doctrines of the faith. See free cities reduced to wastelands inhabited by people morally and culturally inferior to the West. See Muslim hordes take over the streets and shout slogans in support of Hamas terror and in opposition to the West. See the defenders of liberal values attacked, arrested and jailed by the police, while the perpetrators of Muslim violence are granted legal impunity. See the police don the mantle of thugs, target for persecution those who commit violence in defense of self and nation against violent migrants, and disgrace the uniforms they wear, uniforms which for centuries had stood for professionalism and integrity, and denoted a police force which had been the envy of the free world. See the establishment pretend not to notice Muslim terror and as it jails those who fight back and defend themselves. See the operation of two forms of policing, one form against the defenders of freedom online and offline, which hauls them away to jail, and one form protecting migrant hoodlums which gives them a green light to commit their deeds. See the defenders of freedom attack hotels used to house migrant hoodlums. See the defenders of freedom attack police who protect migrant hoodlums. See the defenders of freedom attack the police who work arm in arm with Muslims. See the defenders of freedom condemned at communist rallies as racists. See the defenders of freedom attack Liverpool which has been transformed into Muslim territory. See the defenders of freedom condemned as nazi dirt by communist protestors. See Muslims rape thousands of women and children with impunity. See the defenders of freedom who condemn the Muslim faith, who demand that its murderous practitioners leave the nation, and who, when confronted with Muslim violence, proclaim Islam out! and Enough is enough!, condemned as racists and national socialists. See Muslims bomb, kill and injure hundreds of people at concerts. See the nation under a state of siege before jihad terror attacks. See the defenders of freedom condemned by communist organizations, such as Hope Not Hate, as hate mongers. See the defenders of freedom who condemn Muslim criminality and totalitarianism condemned as rude, noisy and aggressive. See the police charge at the defenders of freedom and retreat before Muslim enemies of freedom. See people opposed to the establishment of Muslims, people like Nigel Farage, condemned as bigots and rabble rousers. See capitalism condemned as a regime of white privilege and targeted for overthrow. See whites condemned as a privileged race and targeted for extermination. See the establishment encourage the black Marxist terror group Black Lives Matter to riot, loot and vandalize the nation in all directions. See a one thousand year old nation, conceived in liberty and expressed on the ancient parchment of the Magna Carta, descend into primitivism, savagery, and a dictatorship of fear in the hands of the antiWestern, antiEnlightenment, anticivilizational Communities of Allah's Faithful, and return to the year zero: "Should anyone be surprised that what has been called a 'wave of violence' swept the cities of Britain this past weekend? For years, while the mass immigration of Muslims has utterly transformed their country, the overwhelming majority of Brits have stuck to form—keeping a stiff upper lip, queuing politely for buses, and biting their tongues as they watched entire neighborhoods, such as the traditionally cockney East End of London, converted to Muslim enclaves. In the months since October 7, they sat home and sipped their tea while armies of Muslims filled their streets weekend after weekend, screaming their support for antiWestern terrorism and shouting their plans to turn Britain into an Islamic caliphate. Those decent Britishers even tended to stay quiet while the few heroic members of their race who protested these outrages—men like Tommy Robinson and Laurence Fox—were abused, insulted, and unjustly arrested by a police force that has strayed far from the civilized rules of police behavior set down two centuries ago by Sir Robert Peel and has practised 'two tier policing'—turning a blind eye to actual Muslim violence while imprisoning ethnic Englishmen who dare to criticize that violence online. Well, eventually something's got to give. This weekend, according to The Guardian, 'bricks were hurled at police officers in Stoke-on-Trent, fireworks were thrown amid tense exchanges between an antiIslamic group and an antiracism rally in Belfast, and windows of a hotel which has been used to house migrants were smashed in Hull, where three police officers were injured and four people arrested. Several officers were also injured during 'serious disorder' in Liverpool city center, where bricks, bottles and a flare were thrown and one officer hit on the head with a chair. Greater Manchester police said a dispersal notice had been authorised for the city center and scuffles broke out as opposing groups faced each other in Nottingham's Old Market Square with bottles and other items thrown from both sides.' The Guardian further reported that protesters in Leeds who were 'carrying St George's Cross flags' (that is, the English flag) and who were shouting 'paedoMuslims off our street'—an apparent reference to the widespread Muslim grooming gangs who are responsible for the serial rapes of thousands of English girls and whose predations have been ignored for decades by police and other authorities—were 'greatly outnumbered by hundreds of counterprotesters shouting 'Nazi scum off our streets.' Does anybody believe that British streets are populated by nazis in any kind of serious numbers? To criticize even the worst aspects of Islamic ideology and practice these days is to be an Islamophobe, a racist, and, yes, a nazi. The Guardian wrote that the rioters—some of them crying out 'Enough is enough,' others shouting the name of antiIslamic activist Tommy Robinson, and still others demanding 'Islam out!' and saying 'England until I die!'—were triggered by 'the killing of three young girls at a Taylor Swift themed dance class in Southport on Monday.' Has everyone already forgotten the 2017 Manchester Arena bombing, which killed 22 people (most of them young) and harmed more than 800 who were attending a concert by Ariana Grande? Have the other jihadist terror attacks on Britain been dropped down the memory hole, too? The Guardian actually turned to the vile organization Hope Not Hate, which is, roughly speaking, a UK version of the Southern Poverty Law Center, for an explanation of the violence. Hope Not Hate blamed it largely on 'Elon Musk's decision to allow right wing activists such as Tommy Robinson back onto his social media platform X.' Some blame was also cast, unsurprisingly, on Nigel Farage, head of the Reform UK Party and a newly elected member of Parliament—one of the few members of that body to oppose the Muslim appeasing Westminster establishment." (Battle For Britain by Bruce Bawer). Marxist ideologues from the sewers of discontent and the academies of subversion, together with migrants with strange names, strange faces, strange diseases and strange religions, have won the British elections in the twenty first century in a landslide and achieved control over the state and society. The new British state and society has jailed the defenders of freedom who have fought back with action against the Marxist-Muslim establishment. Listen to establishment judge Robert Linford at Plymouth Crown Court send to jail the voices of freedom who fought back: "The word is going to go out from this court that we don't want you behaving in this way. If you come here and do this you are going inside and you are going inside for a considerable period of time." (Three Plymouth Rioters Jailed For More Than 18 Months, BBC News, August 8, 2024). This is the present and future of Britain, absolute power placed into the hands of an establishment standing for atavistic forces, and this is a return to the primordial past.

FAMOUS PHYSICIST SUBVERSIVE IN CHIEF

He is a mythical character in popular culture and was a legend in his own time. He was the personification of modern science and wielded an influence no other scientist possessed. On August 2, 1939, he wrote a letter to Franklin Roosevelt which changed the course of world events. The letter Albert Einstein wrote to President Roosevelt asked him to create a nuclear weapons program to manufacture a bomb which could be dropped on the Axis Powers. The letter recommended government action to advance experimental work, laboratory research, private sector assistance, industrial production and uranium acquisition with the goal of developing a nuclear bomb: "Some recent work by E. Fermi and L. Szilard, which has been communicated to me in manuscript, leads me to expect that the element uranium may be turned into a new and important source of energy in the immediate future. Certain aspects of the situation which has arisen seem to call for watchfulness and if necessary, quick action on the part of the Administration. In view of this situation you may think it desirable to have some permanent contact maintained between the Administration and the group of physicists working on chain reactions in America. One possible way of achieving this might be for you to entrust the task with a person who has your confidence and who could perhaps serve in an unofficial capacity. His task might comprise the following: a) to approach Government Departments, keep them informed of the further development, and put forward recommendations for Government action, giving particular attention to the problem of securing a supply of uranium ore for the United States. b) to speed up the experimental work, which is at present being carried on within the limits of the budgets of University laboratories, by providing funds, if such funds be required, through his contacts with private persons who are willing to make contributions for this cause, and perhaps also by obtaining cooperation of industrial laboratories which have necessary equipment. I understand that Germany has actually stopped the sale of uranium from the Czechoslovakian mines which she has taken over. That she should have taken such early action might perhaps be understood on the ground that the son of the German Undersecretary of State, von Weizsacker, is attached to the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute in Berlin, where some of the American work on uranium is now being repeated." Einstein's letter possessed a two fold significance. First, it instigated direct action from Roosevelt, pushing him to establish national nuclear bomb research, and was the origin of the Manhattan Project and the nuclear bombs dropped on Japan during World War II. Second, it was a case study and preeminent illustration of a terrifying phenomenon in the West, commencing in the twentieth century and enduring up to the present day. This is the phenomenon of communist control over the scientific community and subversives at work undermining the free world. Albert Einstein, one of the greatest scientists of all time, was a poster boy for communist treason and dissimulation in the West. Albert Einstein, whose world famous letter to Franklin Roosevelt accelerated the process of America's nuclear bomb construction and commenced the nuclear age, after the war revealed his true colors. When the great fascist enemy of the free world, Germany, was defeated, and a communist enemy, the Soviet Union, came to the fore and took Germany's place, Einstein became an antinuclear activist. In 1946, he founded the Emergency Committee of Atomic Scientists to agitate for nuclear disarmament. In the early 1950s, he gave antinuclear speeches over the radio to world wide audiences. In 1955, he cowrote with Bertrand Russell the Einstein-Russell Manifesto, which condemned nuclear weapons as engines of universal destruction: "We appeal, as human beings, to human beings. Remember your humanity and forget the rest. If you do so, the way lies open to a new paradise; if you cannot, there lies before you the risk of universal death." Einstein changed his stance on nuclear weapons when the enemy changed, when the Cold War began, and when the greatest threat to freedom became communism. His change is not difficult to understand when one understands who Einstein was and where his political sympathies lay. Albert Einstein, pathbreaker in physics and the world's most celebrated scientist, was a communist. The Monthly Review, established in 1949, is the longest continuously published communist magazine in America. On the first page of its first issue in May is an article by Einstein in which he sets forth his creed. He proclaims that communism, the system of totalitarian tyranny which reduces the individual to a rightless slave of the collective, is superior to the system of liberal freedom, expressed in the institutions of private property and freedom of contract. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of production for use and not for profit. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of providing employment for all. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of eliminating people's fear of losing their job. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of paying workers a fair wage. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of eliminating economic instability. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of eliminating recessions and depressions. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of eliminating labor waste and inefficiency. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of advancing social consciousness. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of eliminating competitive attitudes. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of eliminating the pursuit of acquisition and success. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of advancing social goals. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of making production serve the needs of the community. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of providing a life of dignity to every man, woman and child. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of social ownership of the means of production. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of achieving a planned and regulated economy. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of enabling the individual to realize his highest talents and abilities. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of instilling in people a sense of social responsibility. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of achieving true democracy and expressing the voice of the people. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny as the culmination of the people's long, angry march for freedom. He advocates communist totalitarian tyranny in the name of achieving liberation from the cruel lash of capitalism, individual rights and the Age of Enlightenment: "The situation prevailing in an economy based on the private ownership of capital is thus characterized by two main principles: first, means of production (capital) are privately owned and the owners dispose of them as they see fit; second, the labor contract is free. Of course, there is no such thing as a pure capitalist society in this sense. In particular, it should be noted that the workers, through long and bitter political struggles, have succeeded in securing a somewhat improved form of the free labor contract for certain categories of workers. But taken as a whole, the present day economy does not differ much from pure capitalism. Production is carried on for profit, not for use. There is no provision that all those able and willing to work will always be in a position to find employment; an army of unemployed almost always exists. The worker is constantly in fear of losing his job. Since unemployed and poorly paid workers do not provide a profitable market, the production of consumers' goods is restricted, and great hardship is the consequence. Technological progress frequently results in more unemployment rather than in an easing of the burden of work for all. The profit motive, in conjunction with competition among capitalists, is responsible for an instability in the accumulation and utilization of capital which leads to increasingly severe depressions. Unlimited competition leads to a huge waste of labor, and to that crippling of the social consciousness of individuals which I mentioned before. This crippling of individuals I consider the worst evil of capitalism." (Why Socialism? by Albert Einstein, Monthly Review, May 1949). Listen to Einstein exalt the twentieth century architect of communist totalitarian tyranny. Listen to him exalt as the guardian of social justice and the conscience of humanity the world's first implementer of Marx's system of universal enslavement. Listen to him exalt Vladimir Lenin as the greatest political leader in the history of mankind: "I honor Lenin as a man who completely sacrificed himself and devoted all his energy to the realization of social justice. I do not consider his methods practical, but one thing is certain: men of his type are the guardians and restorers of the conscience of humanity." (Einstein and the Generations of Science by Lewis Feuer, quoting Einstein). In the twentieth century, there was a man, among the most famous men in the world, who affected angel's wings. These were wings which stood for peace and pacifism. Beneath the wings, hidden in his clothes, was a dagger. This dagger and these wings had been fashioned for him by his masters. When Albert Einstein's communist masters told him to cut off the wings, he took out his dagger and obeyed, and became an advocate of the development and use of nuclear bombs against the fascist powers in the name of preparedness and defense. After the war, his masters told him to hide his sword again and acquire new angel's wings, and he again obeyed, and again became an advocate of peace and pacifism. He became an antinuclear activist in the face of communist aggression, and demanded the disarmament and surrender of the West to the Soviet Union. When he died, he was lauded by the world as the man of the century. Albert Einstein: advocate of nuclear war in the name of preparedness and defense against fascists but not communists, advocate of world peace and nuclear disarmament of the West confronted by communists but not fascists. Albert Einstein: he built a mountain top which was the summit of man's knowledge, descended to the depths of moral degeneration, and lowered himself as a human being.

THE COMMUNIST NEXT DOOR

The year is 1949 and the place is the little town of Kirkenes, population 4,000, in Norway. Gotfred Hoelvold is the director of the town planning commission. He is bespectacled, gentle and quiet, and lives with his wife and four children. He is well known throughout the town and is greeted warmly by all those who pass him on the sidewalk or in shops. Few people in town know who he really is. He has confided in them. "I have friends," he tells them, "in Moscow." Gotfred Hoelvold is a communist, and once per week he travels across the border to meet with his comrades in Russia. The story of Gotfred Hoelvold is a story repeated endlessly throughout the West over the past one hundred years, during the twilight stages of civilization. It is the story of people whose friendly persona belies their steel hard reality. It is the story of seemingly ordinary citizens working to subvert free societies. It is the story of seemingly down home, unpretentious, family people acting in the service of an alien religion dedicated to the destruction of civilization. Over the past one hundred years, communism, a religion appealing to those who are angry and afraid, angry at those who possess more and have done more than they, and afraid of the self responsibility demanded by a free society, has achieved mass appeal and become the creed of the majority. Over the past one hundred years, communism has gone mainstream and achieved a level of respectability it had never enjoyed before. It has become the creed of the ordinary person, the prejudice of the proverbial man on the street, and has relegated the voices of freedom to the status of a marginalized minority. In the twenty first century, communism is the face of the establishment and the face of the people, and has arrested and imprisoned the opposition as dangerous antiestablishmentarians. In the twenty first century, communism is peddled in every club, cafe, bar, classroom, sports team and grocery store on Main Street and defines what it means to be citizen of the West. In the former leader of the free world, in the former arsenal of freedom whose rifles defended the cause of freedom and won in two world wars, the new informal, middle class, small town face of communism went on national display on August 6, 2024. This was the day Kamala Harris, the Democrat Party nominee for president, selected Tim Walz as her vice presidential running mate. He is cheerful, friendly and called "Minnesota nice." He was a sergeant and then command sergeant in the National Guard for twenty four years, enlisting as an infantryman at 17, reenlisting after September 11, 2001, deploying on American soil during natural disasters, and to Italy to support American operations in Afghanistan. He was a high school geography teacher in Nebraska and Minnesota and in addition coached the high school football team in Minnesota. He is married to a high school English teacher and has two children. Timothy James Walz, born in West Point, Nebraska on April 6, 1964, is the personification of plain, simple America and is the new American face of communism in the twenty first century, a new amiable, warm hearted face, peddling tyranny with a smile and self deprecating demeanor, which has rung the doorbells, the school bells and the church bells in every village, hamlet and town in the nation, and tolled out pleasantly and cordially for revolution. Look at Tim Walz, masked as Mr Average Man, Mr Everyman, and the folksy, relaxed, nonthreatening, plain speaking drinking buddy and bowling partner next door, and watch him issue a series of proclamations which have sent the chill of fear coursing through the souls of civilized people. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society enforces cultural, political and economic Marxism. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society is a communist society which enslaves people in the name of achieving kindness and neighborliness. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society is a statist, authoritarian society which relegates the individual to the status of a chattel serf. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society is an antisemitic society which has declared war on the only free nation in the Middle East, Israel, and seeks to eradicate Jews. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society a pro Hamas society which rains down terror on Israel and the West. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society votes communists such as Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez, Ilhan Omar and Bernie Sanders into power. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society is an extremist society, extremist for communism, which has evicted anticommunist moderates and independents from its ranks. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society is a boldly left wing society which is shameless in its advocacy of human sacrifice on the altars of a leviathan called the Collective. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society is a radical, zealous, activist communist society. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society is a fiscally mismanaged society in which the government spends what it does not have and borrows and prints money without limit to finance communist programs. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society has established state control over health care and prohibited people from purchasing private health insurance. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society has eliminated fossil fuels in the name of achieving net zero carbon emissions and placed people in shantytowns powered by windmills and solar panels. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society has dissolved its borders and allowed hordes of unassimilated and unassimilable migrant sewage to settle in its midst. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society finances the housing, health care and education of this sewage and gives its members driver's licenses. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society has decriminalized illegal immigration and criminalized opposition to illegal immigration. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society enforces the religion of transgenderism. According to this religion, DNA does not exist, sex chromosomes do not exist, and gender is not fixed or immutable but can be changed by human thought, belief or action. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society encourages psychotic children who imagine they are members of the opposite sex to undergo hormonal injections and surgical mutilation to simulate those members. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society encourages citizens to inform on each other for refusals to wear covid face masks despite scientific evidence establishing the inefficacy of the masks and the potential for harm from their use. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society foments riots by black power activists and gives them immunity from the law. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society is a racist, white hating, neoHitlerite, Black Lives Matter society. Watch him proclaim that a progressive society fuels the flamethrowers of gender, race and class politics and has burned civilization to the ground: "Have you heard about Tim Walz's folksiness? Surely you've noticed the 'folksy demeanor' and 'folksy manner' and 'folksy appeal' and 'folksy mannerisms' of this 'folksy former soldier'? If you somehow missed it, the 'folksy governor of Minnesota' exudes a 'folksy, informal vibe' and 'folksy relatability.' But don't forget his 'folksy rebukes' and 'folksy plainspoken and sharp tongued approach,' either. All these quotes are taken from major media outlets. Kamala Harris' vice presidential pick is a dedicated cultural and economic leftist who happens to inhabit the body of an average middle aged bowling team drinking buddy. And because he doesn't live in DC or NYC, the political media has settled on a nonthreatening description. Who doesn't like folksy? Virtually every major media piece on Walz is identical in its glowing tone and content, stressing his down home everyman appeal while deemphasizing his insane record. Then again, as Walz says, 'one person's socialism is another person's neighborliness.' When Trump announced JD Vance as his veep pick, the stories painted a picture of a dour weirdo who was 'radicalized' into an 'ideological ally' and 'zealous follower of the former president.' Walz, on the other hand, had merely 'evolved' into his 'progressive' positions, as one does. The word folksy typically has two definitions. One denotes having the characteristics of 'traditional culture and customs, especially in a contrived or artificial way.' The other to act in 'informal and unpretentious' manner. It's certainly fair to say that Walz is a more relaxed and unpretentious authoritarian than his tautology spouting running partner. In this case, though, folksiness has a third euphemistic meaning: 'not the Jewish guy'. Has anyone offered a single convincing reason—other than the obvious—for why Harris picked Walz for the national ticket over Josh Shapiro, the popular governor of a must win state with more working class voters than Minnesota? It is highly unlikely that anyone wins 2024 without Pennsylvania. Democrats are gambling that the Jewish vote is secure enough to withstand the rampant antisemitism that's taken hold on the progressive left. It's not a terrible bet, sadly. In Walz, Harris believes she can placate the activist base and growing pro Hamas wing of the party while media covers her running mate as a folksy moderate. It's no accident that Squad members like Representatives Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez and Ilhan Omar were first out of the gate celebrating the Walz pick. Bernie Sanders loves it. Hamas apologists like The Washington Post's Karen Attiah were tweeting like giddy teenagers, 'TEAM WALZ!!!!!!!!!!!! ITS OUR TIME!!' What about moderates and independents? It seems counterintuitive for Harris, who has accumulated a grand total of zero primary votes, to tap one of the most brazenly left wing governors in the country as she attempts to walk back a raft of unpopular positions that were staked only a few years ago. Like Harris, the folksy Minnesota governor has proposed socializing health insurance and eliminating fossil fuels. Like Harris, Walz wants to effectively decriminalize illegal immigration by signing laws to pay for the health care and tuition of illegals, and allow them to have driver's licenses. Walz also signed a bill that lets children with gender dysphoria be mutilated by doctors. Aside from all of that, Minnesota has seen fiscal mismanagement under Walz. Walz, who set up a snitch line to report COVID rule violators, watched as minority neighborhoods in Minnesota were being burned during the Black Lives Matter riots." (Tim Walz, 'Folksy' Socialist by David Harsanyi). In April 1968, Alexander Dubcek, pioneering First Secretary of the Communist Party of Czechoslovakia, at an executive meeting of the party, dropped a bomb and announced a new political program. Seeking to abolish communism and establish a free society but to peddle the abolition in a manner which would not offend the establishment, he described his program with a phrase renowned for its incoherence. He called his program "socialism with a human face." Dubcek knew that socialism is the antithesis of humanity and is the essence of evil. Sixty years after Dubcek announced his program, the peddlers of socialism as a system for decent, ordinary, unsophisticated but sound and wise people are hard at work. They lack Dubcek's honesty and seek to deceive the people and sugar coat communist subversion. Their standard bearer is Tim Walz.

THE NEW MILLENNIUM COMPLEX

On January 17, 1961, United States President Dwight Eisenhower gave a Farewell Address to the Nation. He described what he deemed to be the greatest threat to freedom in the nation. He called it the "military-industrial complex": "In the councils of government, we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence, whether sought or unsought, by a military-industrial complex. The potential for the disastrous rise of misplaced power exists, and will persist." Nonpartisan observers of the American scene immediately took issue with Eisenhower's assessment, for they knew that the greatest threat to American freedom lay in another entity. They knew that since the turn of the century, a communist, social regulatory, welfare state leviathan had been expanding like a cancer and had spread across every sector of society. Voted into power and sustained in successive landslides, up ballot and down ballot, under tickets stamped progressivism, this leviathan had repealed the American Revolution, disgraced the soil on which the sons of liberty had fallen, and rendered America unrecognizable. This leviathan, this cancer, was fueled by anger and fear. It was fueled by the masses' anger at those who possessed more and accomplished more than they, and by the masses' fear of the adulthood and self responsibility demanded by a free society. It has grown relentlessly since 1900; when Eisenhower delivered his famous speech in midcentury, its growth was accelerating faster than ever; and in the present day, it defines the essence of the new America, the degenerate America, during the twilight stages of civilization. In the twenty first century, a Marxist government-media-academic-industrial complex has assumed total control over the nation and shown what happens to a nation when the majority has chosen to abandon freedom: the nation dissolves; it morally, spiritually and intellectually becomes no more; and the people are reduced to slaves of tribes of various names and colors. Look at America in the twenty first century and see the claw prints of this nightmare creature. With the popular winds at its back, it has invaded every family, home, school, office and factory in the nation, and pushed the institutions of the Enlightenment, which founded America, into the dustbin of history. Look at what the monster has wrought. It has dissolved the nation's borders and enabled an invasion of twenty million illegal aliens, including terrorists, gang members, drug traffickers and mental patients. It has condemned Donald Trump, the forty fifth president of the United States, the leader of the national freedom opposition running for reelection in 2024 and seeking to defeat the Marxist juggernaut of black power, feminist power, proletarian power, gay power, lesbian power, transgender power and animals rights power, as a racist, fascist, Islamophobe, national socialist and admirer of Adolf Hitler, and sought to jail him and assassinate him. On July 24, 2024, the American establishment, the government-media-academic-industrial complex now synonymous with the nation, sent one its agents, one Thomas Matthew Crookes, on a mission to assassinate Trump. At a campaign rally near Butler, Pennsylvania, Crookes fired eight rounds at Trump from his high power rifle, wounding Trump in his left ear, killing one member of the audience and critically injuring two others. The establishment has condemned Trump's supporters as "deplorables" and "irredeemables." It has condemned parents opposed to the Marxist indoctrination of their children at school as "extremists" and "domestic terrorists." It has condemned the supporters of capitalism as "white supremacists." It rigged the 2020 presidential election in Joe Biden's favor. It rigged it by forming a conspiracy between Marxist activists and corporate executives. It rigged it by forcing states to change voting systems and voting laws. It rigged it by securing hundreds of millions of dollars in public and private funding to recruit Biden voters and disqualify Trump voters. It rigged it by recruiting thousands of poll workers who opened the polls for Biden voters and no other voters; who checked in Biden voters and no other voters; who assisted Biden voters and no other voters; who selectively enforced election laws and procedures to include Biden voters and no other voters; who maintained the chain of custody of Biden votes and no other votes; who manipulated voting equipment and voting supplies to count Biden votes and no other votes; who closed the polls to Trump voters and to no other voters; and who ensured that the number of voters checked in were voters for Biden and for nobody else, and the number of ballots cast were for Biden and for nobody else. The establishment rigged the 2020 election by dismissing voter suppression lawsuits on technical and procedural grounds without hearing the merits of the cases. It rigged it by organizing a fraudulent vote by mail campaign which manufactured millions of votes for Biden across the nation. It rigged it by forcing social media companies to suppress damaging stories about Biden's selling of his office when he was vice president, established irrefutably by emails found on Hunter Biden's computer, on the grounds of suppressing "disinformation" and "smears." It rigged it by a secret plan without precedent in the nation's history. Formed by Marxist ideologues, industrialists, news reporters and government officials, it was a plan to manipulate laws, rules, media treatment, public perceptions and the channels of communication to ensure the victory of Joe Biden: "There was a conspiracy unfolding behind the scenes, the result of an informal alliance between left wing activists and business titans. Their work touched every aspect of the election. They got states to change voting systems and laws and helped secure hundreds of millions in public and private funding. They fended off voter suppression lawsuits, recruited armies of poll workers and got millions of people to vote by mail for the first time. They successfully pressured social media companies to take a harder line against disinformation and used data driven strategies to fight viral smears. This is the inside story of the conspiracy to save the 2020 election, based on access to the group's inner workings, never before seen documents and interviews with dozens of those involved from across the political spectrum. It is the story of an unprecedented, creative and determined campaign whose success also reveals how close the nation came to disaster. That's why the participants want the secret history of the 2020 election told, even though it sounds like a paranoid fever dream—a well funded cabal of powerful people, ranging across industries and ideologies, working together behind the scenes to influence perceptions, change rules and laws, steer media coverage and control the flow of information." (The Secret History Of The Shadow Campaign That Saved The 2020 Election by Molly Ball). Look at America in the twenty first century and see the claw prints of the government-media-academic-industrial complex. See universities reject liberal education and human universalism and descend into a jungle of gender, race and class politics. See them promote feminist fiction and black English and feed on the vital essence of the academy, the search for truth, and reduce the academy to a corpse. See them burn the great books of the Western world and promote the literature of race, class, gender, sexual orientation and national identity. See them reject the findings of science establishing the existence of DNA and sex chromosomes, and proclaim that gender is not fixed or immutable but can be changed by human thought, belief or action; males can change into females and females can change into males given the appropriate actions or beliefs; and psychotic individuals who claim they are members of the opposite sex really are such members and are called transgenders. See them consign the Western canon of classics to a bonfire and promote literature focusing on gays, lesbians, bisexuals and transgenders. See them reject the literature of reason and sanity and promote queer theory, feminist theory, monster theory, madness theory, magic theory and mental disability theory. See them reject the literature of nonpartisanship and sound mental health and promote the literature of gender variance, sexual diversity and same sex love. See them reject the values of the Enlightenment and promote critical race theory. According to this theory, progressive political theory is critical of reason and individual rights, and promotes a neoHitlerite, neonational socialist, intersectional politics of black Bolshevism, black Marxism and black proletarian dictatorship. See them condemn capitalism as a regime of antiblack violence. See them assign as homework to students the task of writing Marxist positions on the need to overthrow liberal democracy and the study of the humanities and establish courses of political indoctrination and race and gender agitation in their place. See them screen pornographic films for students stimulating excitement for violence and destruction, and the mass incineration of works by Shakespeare, Milton and Dickens, in the name of hispanic feminism, decolonial theory, antiliberal politics, Marxist psychoanalysis, and black female ways of knowing: "Feminist speculative fiction, Black Englishes, and Vampire Cinema are just a few of the identity based English courses students can take this year at the University of Florida. At least ten of the English department's upper division courses center on film—including the only class that appears to cover Shakespeare. At least thirteen of the courses use an identity angle, such as Afrofuturism and Early LGBTQ Literatures. A Children's Literature course says it 'will question the ways in which these texts represent race, class, gender, and national identity.' A fall 2023 syllabus for the children's literature course says it will apply 'analytical frameworks such as critical disability studies, queer theory, monster theory, feminist theory, and more' in order to 'trace themes of marginalization, madness, monstrosity, and magic in the wonderland of children's literature.' 'The literary (and real) world has always been a place of abundant sexual diversity, gender variance, and same sex love and sex,' the course description for Early LGBTQ Literatures states. 'Yet the cultural meanings of what we now call homosexuality shifts across space and time.' " (Vampire Cinema: University Of Florida English Classes Lean Into Identity Politics, Watching Films by Brendan McDonald). In the 1930s, a sea monster began spreading across Europe. Directed by the Soviet Union, this Marxist octopus linked up with the burgeoning welfare, regulatory states in the continent and in Britain and numbered the days remaining to the West. Its tentacles reached across the Atlantic and linked up with America's domestic Marxist movement. In the twenty first century, this octopus, this insidious spread of influence and control, this system of instincts, sense organs and appendages knowing and seeing only one thing, treason and subversion, this government-media-academic-industrial complex, is in charge of America.

MUSLIM GOVERNMENT IN GERMANY

Wir schaffen das! Yes, we can! Thus proclaimed German Chancellor Angela Merkel in 2015 when she did something never before done by any political figure in European history. She willingly, voluntarily and enthusiastically opened the gates of a European nation to 2.14 million Muslims, and went down as the figure who created a Muslim nation in the heart of the continent. This was the largest influx of Muslims into Europe since the Muslim conquest of Spain in the eighth to the tenth centuries, and it sent the wheels of history racing backward into the year zero. Fueled by a fearsome reactor known as Marxism, the wheel of history has spun around 360 degrees and placed the enemies of freedom back in charge of the West. In the twentieth century, the West rejected science and returned to religion, and demarcated a twilight stage of civilization. The rejection was made by popular demand, and in the twenty first century, the work has been completed and the masses have achieved what they have clamored for. Religion has spread into every nook and cranny of society and banished the values of the Enlightenment. Born in the sewers overflowing with those angry and afraid, angry at those who have more than they and afraid of the adulthood and self responsibility demanded by a free society, Marxism is the ruling religion of the present day. In their campaign to overthrow free societies, Marxists have formed an alliance with the world's second largest religion after Christianity, a religion whose two billion members are like Marxists dedicated to the overthrow of free societies. They have formed an alliance with Islam. In 2015, the national voice of Marxism in Germany was Angela Merkel. Her ostensible party was the Christian Democratic Union, but she marched in reality under the antiWestern, antiEnlightenment, Marxist party of multiculturalism, and she unleashed an invasion by the Community of the Faithful the likes of which Germany had never seen before. Unsettling, unpleasant, dangerous and nightmarish for civilized people, the mass presence of Muslims in Germany has rendered the nation unrecognizable. Look at Germany today and see Muslims beat people to death. See Muslims push people onto train tracks. See Muslims kick people in the genitals. See Muslims assault Germans because they hate them and resent them for being civilized. See Muslims bleed Germany white in costs for housing, education, social welfare and law enforcement. See Muslims make Germans afraid to travel on public transit and send many back to using private automobiles. See the German establishment unleash a bacterial disease on the nation, in the name of achieving diversity, and send the nation plunging into fever and delirium, unable to think or work in a civilized manner, whirling, praying, singing and bowing in submission to Allah. See it grant citizenship to the disease, allow the disease to commit crimes with impunity, proclaim to civilized people that the disease is Germany's greatest strength and health, and see it toll the death bell for the nation: "On January 19, a trial began in Berlin for Tunisian migrant Beshir S. and 'fashion designer' Tarek S, a Palestinian from Syria, who nearly beat a 60 year old street cleaner to death on the subway tracks. The man had told the defendants, who were speaking loudly on their phone, to lower their voices, as it was 4:30 am The victim was on his way to work. The men then rushed toward the victim, beat him, and pushed him onto the train track. He was pulled out by another passenger, who saved the man before a train arrived. The German victim had severe injuries to his genitals, suffered a fractured arm, and remains on sick leave until this day. The Tunisian has been charged with attempted murder for the May 29, 2023, attack. He said in court: 'I had the impression at the time that the obviously German man thought he was superior to my friend. That's why I hit the German, even one or two punches too many.' The federal government has consistently argued that diversity is Germany's strength, while at the same time promoting the idea that Germans should abandon their cars and take more public transport, including the country's rail system. Migrants cost German taxpayers a minimum of €36 billion in social welfare, housing, and education in 2023 alone. However, disruptions to train traffic and the cost of policing crime disproportionately associated with foreign nationals are not counted in these costs. The left government's new immigration law has drastically reduced the amount of time immigrants need to stay in the country before they are eligible for citizenship. Once they obtain citizenship, their foreign nationality is no longer listed in the crime statistics, and they are henceforth listed as Germans when committing any crime." (Germany: Afghan Migrant Masturbating On Train Tracks Halts Rail Traffic Across Kassel Region, Remix News, January 24, 2024). Look at Germany today and see the Muslim call to prayer broadcast throughout the nation. See the Muslim call to war take over the channels of mass communication. See Muslims allowed to smash the cathedrals and church bells of Western civilization in the name of freedom, respect and diversity. See Muslims allowed to exercise force and coercion over neighborhoods in the name of Muslim integration. See the nation transformed into a megamosque, house of dark worship, Allah's main European station, and a center of Muslim world revolution: "All 35 mosques in the German city of Cologne have been granted permission by the local government to publicly broadcast the Muslim call to prayer every Friday between noon and 3 pm. The green light to publicly broadcast the call to prayer was given by leftist Cologne mayor Henriette Reker, who took to Twitter to celebrate the move saying: 'Cologne is the city of (religious) freedom and diversity. Those who arrive at the main station are greeted by the cathedral and accompanied by church bells. Many Cologne residents are Muslims. To allow the call to prayer is a sign of respect for me.' According to a report from the German tabloid Bild, the call to prayer will be allowed every Friday for the next two years but not everyone is as happy with the decision as the city's mayor. Integration expert Ahmad Mansour told the newspaper that the issue does not boil down to religious freedom or diversity, but explained that 'The operators of the mosques want visibility. They celebrate the [call to prayer] as a show of force over their neighbourhoods.' Bavarian Christian Social Union (CSU) Deputy Secretary-General Florian Hahn also spoke out about the new policy, saying: 'In Bavaria, we certainly do not want such pilot projects. They are not part of our Western tradition. Calls to prayer are also not needed for Islamic religious practice.' The mosques in Cologne will, however, have limits on the volume of the call to prayer and must also notify their neighbours ahead of time and the broadcast itself cannot exceed five minutes between noon and 3 pm—at least in theory. Cologne is known as a center for Muslims in Germany, with a so-called megamosque in the city being opened by Turkish President Recep Tayyip Erdogan in September 2018. The city is not the first in Western Europe to grant permission for a public call to prayer to local mosques. In the Swedish town of Vaxjo, for example, the local mosque was granted permission to broadcast the call on Friday afternoons in 2018." (All Mosques Granted Right To Publicly Broadcast Islamic Call To Prayer In Cologne by Chris Tomlinson). Look at Germany today and see Muslims launch terror attacks against Christmas markets. See Muslims threaten and kill innocent people and disturb the public peace. See Muslims radicalized to commit mass murder. See the nation transformed into an Islamic State, condemn as infidels the voices of reason, science, sanity and civilization, and return the heart of Europe to the heart of darkness: "A German court on Friday convicted a 15 year old boy of plotting an Islamic extremist attack on a Christmas market and gave him a four year sentence. The Cologne state court said the boy was convicted of conspiracy to murder and disturbing the public peace by threatening crimes, German news agency DPA reported. The proceedings were conducted behind closed doors under juvenile law, and the defendant's name wasn't released in line with German privacy rules. The teenager was detained in November near Cologne. The court found that he became radicalized last fall and, within a few weeks, had agreed with a 16 year old acquaintance to attack a Christmas market in Leverkusen. The plan was for the defendant to drive a rented truck into the market and kill as many visitors as possible, while his accomplice was to film the attack, the court said. According to the verdict, the defendant posted a video in a chat group announcing an attack on 'infidels,' with a symbol of the Islamic State group visible in the background. There are no formal pleas in the German legal system, but the court said the 15 year old admitted to the charges against him. His alleged accomplice, who also is accused of conspiracy to murder, is due to go on trial July 17 in Neuruppin, near Berlin in eastern Germany." (German Court Convicts Islamic Extremist Teen For Christmas Attack Plot, Associated Press, June 29, 2024). Germany's support for Islam has a long history. As the historical leader of antiliberalism in the West, Germany has shown a natural affinity to Islam. At the beginning of the eighteenth century, Muslim soldiers served under Friedrich Wilhelm of Prussia in a unit called the Muslim Riders. In 1798, a Muslim cemetery was established in Berlin. The philosopher Friedrich Nietzsche exalted the Spanish Moors and proclaimed that the German spirit is similar to Muslim fanaticism and violence. Listen to Adolf Hitler exalt the Muslim hero, warrior and mass murderer: "Had Charlemagne not been victorious at Poitiers, then we should in all probability have been converted to Islam, that religion which glorifies heroism and opens up the seventh Heaven to the bold warrior alone. Then the Germanic races would have conquered the world." (Hitler's Table Talk, 1941 to 1944, edited by Hugh Trevor-Roper). Listen to Hitler join forces with Muslims in his campaign to eradicate Jews, liberal democracy and the people of the free world: "One of the three reasons Germany has an interest in Islam is we are jointly fighting the Jews. This leads Khalid Al Hud to discuss Palestine and the conditions there, and he states that he himself will not rest until the last Jew has left Germany. He observes that the Prophet Mohammed acted the same way. He drove the Jews out of Arabia." (The Arabs And The Holocaust: The Arab-Israeli War Of Narratives by Gilbert Ashcar, quoting Hitler). In the twenty first century, Germany is ten percent Muslim. Following in the footsteps of Friedrich Wilhelm and Hitler, Angela Merkel has unleashed a Muslim holocaust against freedom.

MUSLIM FLOODS SUBMERGE BANGLADESH

On December 16, 1972, one year after its birth, the state of Bangladesh attempted to do the impossible. It attempted to defy the spirit of the times and the will of the masses. It declared itself to be a secular state, becoming the first constitutionally secular state in South Asia, while the

Bangladeshi masses wanted Islam. The will of the masses was not to be defied, and in 1988, Islam was declared to be the state religion. In 2010, the Supreme Court reaffirmed the secular principles of the constitution but to no avail, for the Islamist juggernaut was unstoppable. In the general election held January 2024, the secular Awami League led by Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina won a fourth consecutive term. But the Islamist juggernaut was unstoppable. On August 5, 2024, Hasina resigned and fled to India before the onrushing tide of Islam. On August 8, an interim government was formed under the secular leader Muhammad Yunus, but nothing could halt or turn back the rising wave Islamist power. In 2024, a half a century after achieving independence from Pakistan, Bangladesh has descended into a jungle of Islamist mob rule, and civilized people within the nation have bid farewell to secular society. In the twenty first century, Bangladesh has bowed down in submission to a global movement riding under the banners of the Crescent and Star and dedicating itself to the destruction of civilization. A massive crowd, a horde, a multitude, without reason or order of any kind, intent on enforcing the doctrines of the faith and intent on nothing else, is the final stop of a nation born in the wrong place, at the wrong time and with the wrong kind of people. Look at the final stop of a train wreck called Bangladesh and see a picture of the West in the postEnlightenment, antiEnlightenment, twilight stages of civilization. Look at Bangladesh and see the future awaiting every man, woman and child in the West. See the fiery, frenetic, fanaticized, imagination defying end of the world. See people peddle Islam on the platform of a student movement and student uprising. See people set fire to cars, buildings and Hindu temples in the name of Islam. See people programmed to wage holy war against liberal democracy. See people pray to Allah and kill for Allah like no other people pray and kill on the Indian subcontinent. See people blot out the sunlight of reason and science and put on the nightmare garments of jihad and sharia. See people condemn nonMuslims such as Hindus as a scourge on society and seek to eradicate them. See people rabid with Islam and foaming at the mouth make the streets flow with the blood of unbelievers. See people attack businesses in the name of Allah. See people ransack Hindu shops in the name of Umma. See people plunder Hindu homes, offices and religious establishments in the name of the Prophet Muhammad. See people smash Hindu idols in the name of Heavenly Paradise. See people reduce Hindu culture to ashes in the name of the Community of the Faithful. See people beat up Hindus on the streets in the name of Islamic morality. See people proclaim that a Muslim majority nation can never tolerate the existence of nonMuslims in its midst. See people force Hindus to flee Bangladesh for their lives. See people dedicate themselves to hunt down, torture and kill every Hindu in Bangladesh. See people sell their souls to a devil called Islam and become robotic assassins for the faith. See people carpet the landscape, fill the skies and blacken the air with sights and stench of dead, mutilated Hindus. See people smash the institutions of freedom in the name of Islamic revolution. See people storm the prime minister's residence, carry away food, clothing, furniture, plants, animals and home appliances, join hands with their Marxist comrades, flash the sign of Islamic victory, and carry Bangladesh down into a bottomless chasm: "That Bangladesh has violently toppled a democratically elected government and is going in the direction of Afghanistan is not news anymore. What started in a facade of a 'student movement' has culminated in countrywide mayhem, arson, bloodbaths, and more. But that is not a shock, either. Anyone aware of the current power dynamics in the South Asian Islamic countries has seen this coming. For nonMuslim Bangladeshis, Sheikh Hasina was the lesser evil; she was less Islamic than her arch rival, Khaleda Zia. For how long could a growing jihad inclined population take such a leader? Bangladesh, in recent times, has emerged as the most fanatical nation regarding Islam on the Indian subcontinent, leaving its counterparts far behind. The Muslim youth of Bangladesh long ago moved away from rationalism and embraced Islamic jihad and sharia. The existence of the remaining Hindus was an eyesore for them. And so, in the garb of a student uprising, with the aid of the Jamaat-e-Islami, some Bangladeshi Islamic youth toppled the seemingly secular government. Then, within minutes of Hasina's resignation and fleeing the country, the Hindus of Bangladesh witnessed a gory, bone chilling replay of what their ancestors went through some 50 years ago.

The ISKON temple in Meherpur, Khulna division, became one of the first casualties of the Islamic uprising that swept the country. Shortly after, horrid videos of a 200 year old Hindu temple dedicated to goddess Kali going up in flames went viral on the Internet, leaving Hindus tormented not just in Bangladesh, but in India and elsewhere. There was arson, loot, abduction, and brutal killing all over. The bloodbath is only becoming more grotesque as you read this article. Hindu homes, businesses, religious and religious establishments in 27 districts, including Kaliganj, Hatibandha, Dinajpur, Khansama, and Khulna, were attacked and looted by Islamic mobs baying for Hindu blood. They have looted numerous Hindu temples, torn down the idols, and set the property afire. Hindus in administrative positions were always the targets of Muslims who were only waiting for an excuse to take them down. They formed mobs and vandalized and plundered the house of the secretary of Lalmonirhat Puja Udjapan Parishad, Pradip Chandra Roy, and ransacked and looted a computer shop that was owned by a Hindu who was also a member of the local municipality. At least four Hindu families were robbed in Kaliganj upazila, and 12 Hindu homes were torched in Hatibandha upazila's Purbo Sardubi village. Around 10 Hindu houses were ransacked in Dinajpur town as well. Though numbers are not known, Hindu homes were torn down in Panchagarh also. It is a universal fact that news reports are always conservative when publishing numbers. One can only guess the actual number of Hindu homes that were turned into ashes overnight." (Bangladesh: Horror Unleashed On Hindus by Ashlyn Davis). Look at Bangladesh today and see the destruction of Hindu life, liberty and property enacted as the order of the day. See Prime Minister Sheik Husina, a political moderate who defended the rights of the Hindu minority, run out of office and run out of the nation. See the torches and marauders of Islam plunder and burn down everything Hindus own and value. See Hindu musical instruments taken away and repurposed to play songs of Islamic revolution. See Islamic scripturalists and literalists proclaim that truth is whatever Allah says it is, and that the Earth can be flat and cubes can have three sides if Allah decrees thus. See the fruits of Hindu thought and labor fall under attack in all places and from all directions. See the Hindu minority beaten to a pulp and Indian students forced to flee to India. See Islamists granted the land and money of the nation and use it to blight the nation with indoctrination centers destroying the minds of the young. See Islamic fuhrers, sermonizers and street corner agitators stamp out free thought, critical investigation, empirical methods, scientific inquiry and liberal education, rewrite school textbooks to conform to the Islamic party line, and create a cultural, academic and political monster which has lowered the curtain on Bangladesh: "The Bangladeshi Hindu Buddhist Christian Unity Council (BHBCUC) said on Tuesday that hundreds of Hindu homes, businesses, and temples have been vandalized since Prime Minister Sheikh Hasina was forced out of office by protesters over the weekend. Hasina ended a 15 year run as prime minister on Monday by resigning and fleeing the country while protesters stormed her residence in the national capital of Dhaka. She has taken refuge in Hindu-majority India. Bangladeshi folk singer Rahul Ananda said on Wednesday he narrowly escaped injury with his wife and son when his home in Dhaka was sacked and burned by a mob. A source within his family said the mob 'took everything from furniture and mirrors to valuables,' then 'torched the house' along with the famed singer's musical instruments. Indian Foreign Minister S Jaishankar said on Tuesday it was 'particularly worrying' that 'minorities, their businesses and temples also came under attack at multiple locations.' Jaishankar said most of the 9,000 Indian exchange students living in Bangladesh have returned home due to the protests. Roughly 19,000 Indian nationals currently live in Bangladesh. India's The Print on Tuesday said Hasina sealed her own fate by submitting to Islamists, granting them 'vast amounts of land and huge sums of wealth to enable the building of more madrassas,' even as she cultivated an image as a progressive champion opposed to Islamic fundamentalism. The Print chided Hasina for allowing 'hundreds of Islamic preachers who were antiwomen and antiHindus to indoctrinate young people,' permitting Hindu authors to be 'erased from school textbooks,' and silencing 'free thinkers' who 'critically scrutinized Islam.' In short, the argument was that Hasina made too many concessions to Islamists, creating the social and academic environment that would eventually erupt against her, and that could now shift Bangladesh's alignment away from India and toward Pakistan and its ally China." (Hindu Homes And Temples Vandalized In Bangladesh After Prime Minister's Ouster by John Hayward). Situated on the Ganges Delta, Bangladesh is a land notorious for massive flooding. It is five meters above sea level and is eighty percent floodplain. Every year, 31,000 square kilometers of land are flooded or two thirds of the nation. In the twenty first century, the nation has been stricken by a man made catastrophe far exceeding the damage wrought by its river, sea and rain floods. It has been submerged under the white hot waters of Islam, and its raging hatred and fanaticism have sacked and burned down the Indian subcontinent.

BLACK ARYAN LIVES MATTER

In 2013, three people decided that the time was ripe to start a movement. They were not ordinary people typically seen on the streets but checked all the boxes required for rapid success in the West today. They were black, female and Marxist, and the time was opportune for them to do what they wanted to do. In 2012 in Florida, a neighborhood watch volunteer named George Zimmerman shot and killed a black teenager named Trayvon Martin in self defense after an altercation. There was an immediate nationwide explosion of rallies and marches demanding the overthrow of the capitalist system and the onset of a black Marxist revolution. Proclaiming "I do believe in Marxism," Alicia Garza, Patrisse Cullors and Opal Tometi called their movement Black Lives Matter. The name appeared as a social media post, was chanted as a slogan and referred to a global organization dedicated to the destruction of liberal democracy. The movement was a development of Marxism in the direction of an intersectional politics of class and race, and sought to establish a system of black socialism and dictatorship in the hands of the black proletariat. The three founders of Black Lives Matter assembled the denizens of the sewers to set their movement rolling. They assembled black artists, mothers, students, community organizers and professors preaching African racialism, and ordered them burn down civilization and transform the world into dust and ashes: " 'Seven years ago, we were called together. There were about 30 of us standing in the courtyard of this black artist community in Los Angeles, summoned by Patrisse Cullors, one of our cofounders and one of my dearest friends,' says Melina Abdullah, a professor of Pan African Studies in Los Angeles and cofounder of one of Black Lives Matters first chapters. 'It was students, artists, organizers and mommas. We knew that it was part of our sacred duty to step up. And there was an audaciousness that we could transform the world, but we didn't have a plan for it,' she laughs." (Black Lives Matter: From Social Media Post To Global Movement by Aleem Maqbool). Black Lives Matter had a famous predecessor, which terrorized the world from 1933 to 1945. It was the first Marxist movement to employ racial analysis in addition to class analysis in its advocacy of human slavery. The growth of race Marxism from class socialism was a natural, logical, inevitable development of master Karl Marx's tribalist politics. Marx's logic of tribalism produced multifarious progeny. The view of society, not as a summation of individuals but as a mystical tribe which exists apart from and superior to individuals, was a dark dynamic producing a bitter harvest. In 1933, a forest of raised arms shouting seig heil carpeted Germany and hailed the founder of the world's first neoMarxist movement of race politics. When Adolf Hitler created a racial redefinition of socialism as an alternative to the Marxist panracial proletariat, he set into motion a chain of events and a movement which would produce black Marxism thirty years after the onset of the Third Reich. The development from class socialism to Hitler's race socialism to black Marxism in the mid twentieth century was no process of transmutation, for only the names changed, while the essence remained the same. The essence was collectivism, the doctrine that the primary unit of reality and standard of reality is the collective and not the individual, and the individual possesses reality only insofar as he is a part of the collective and possesses value only insofar as he serves the collective. The doctrine states that the highest form of morality and politics advocates the enslavement of the individual to the collective and the exaltation of collective thought, action and the collective good. Look at the names given to the particular collective of interest and see the basic religion which holds that the individual has no rights painted in different colors and given different uniforms for its different members to wear. Hitler's national socialism or national communism or national Bolshevism projected a master race called Aryans and targeted Jews for extermination. Its heir and successor, black Marxism, projects blacks as a master race and targets whites for extermination. Look at the movement created by Alicia Garza, Patrisse Cullors and Opal Tometi, the largest black Marxist movement in history, whose worldwide membership of fifty million people dwarfs its 1960s precursors, and ranks with Hitler's movement a century before. Look at the movement created by three new millennium Hitlers, three preachers of black Aryan hate politics, and see the final stop of a doomsday flight called Marxism and its crash into a savage jungle. Listen to the proclamations of Black Lives Matter and hear the final iteration of Marx's and Hitler's religion at the twilight stage of civilization. It proclaims that people of African descent form a special race whose lives are more valuable than those of other races. It proclaims that black lives alone possess value, dignity and worth. It proclaims that blacks alone are fully human and alone possess human rights. It proclaims that capitalism is a regime of police brutality and violence against blacks. It proclaims that the liberal institutions of free minds, free markets and private property are expressions of white supremacy. It proclaims that capitalism must be abolished and replaced by Marxism in the name of antiracism and black liberation. It proclaims that religious dogma is superior to scientific investigation, and the greatest dogma is that of black racial superiority: "The phrase Black Lives Matter, as I understand it, can be interpreted in three ways. First, one can consider it to be a philosophical statement affirming and acknowledging that, in the face of current and historical oppression, there is inherent value in the lives and experiences of people of African descent. Second, it represents a global, but mostly Western, social movement against police brutality and other forms of violence perpetrated against black persons. And finally, it signifies the physical, sociopolitical parent organization, its chapters/affiliates, leaders, and advocates. I contend that it is a mistake to assume that all three interpretations are the same or that they all experience the same level of support. While I have no serious issues with those who proclaim the first, it has little personal relevance to me because ascribing value based on immutable characteristics is not how I interact with the world around me. My life matters not because I am of African descent, but because I am human. The second interpretation, which this commentary focuses mostly on, is imbued with kernels of truth but is ultimately founded upon a flawed, cherry picked, nuance deficient, and often hyperbolic interpretation of current reality. The third gains no support from me as I subscribe to classical liberal values, which the organization, its leaders, and advocates have made explicitly clear is somehow racist and white supremacist. They have, instead, promulgated a dogmatic, counterproductive ideology termed antiracism and structured their identity, demands, and vision of the future along Marxist lines." (Why I Do Not Support The Black Lives Matter Movement by Sonia Orlu). Listen to Black Lives Matter proclaim that capitalism is a regime in which racist police terrorize and exterminate blacks. Capitalism is a regime of oppression and hatred of blacks. Capitalism equals systemic racism and must be overthrown. Blacks form a master race and have a right to feed off government welfare like swine and white taxpayers have a duty to support them. The only path to the liberation of blacks is through the abolition of liberal democracy. The highest political system is neoMarxism which elevates the black proletariat to the lords of the Earth: "To BLM and its adherents, all cops are racists. All cops like nothing else than to terrorize and systematically exterminate black people. All white people are complicit in fostering this system of hate. 'Systemic racism' and nothing else is chiefly to blame for the oppression of black people. I also became disturbed by the neoMarxist bent of the movement's rhetoric. They argue that capitalism and the system of white supremacy are not mutually exclusive, therefore to liberate black lives is to tear down the system. I find this ironic because capitalism presents the best chance of lifting all peoples, including blacks, out of poverty and disadvantage (and it has!). Black Americans, for instance, have high levels of confidence in small business, which is significant if we want to have a serious conversation about giving individuals the opportunity to lift themselves out of poverty without resorting to government handouts." (Why I Do Not Support The Black Lives Matter Movement by Sonia Orlu). Black Lives Matter proclaims that people must be judged on the basis of their skin color and black people's lives matter more than other people's lives and possess more value than other people's. Those who believe that all races are equal and all lives matter equally promote racism, political incorrectness and white supremacy, and must be deprived of their rights and freedoms, isolated from the rest of society and forced to recant before the nation: "Seven year old B.B. was moved when her teacher taught the class about Martin Luther King, Jr and the civil rights movement. It was during this lesson that she was first introduced to the phrase Black Lives Matter. The first grader couldn't fathom living in a world where people were treated differently based on the color of their skin. This made her think of her black classmate. She wanted this other little girl to feel welcome and decided to draw her a picture. In big letters, B.B. wrote Black Lives Matter at the top of the piece of paper. Underneath, she drew four circles in different shades, representing her and three of her classmates holding hands. She also included the words 'any life.' The principal confronted B.B. and explained that including the phrase 'any life' in the drawing was 'inappropriate' and 'racist,' and he forced B.B. to apologize to her classmate. B.B. would also no longer be allowed to draw pictures in school. Worse still, the seven year old was not allowed to go to recess for two weeks. Instead, she had to sit and watch her friends play without her." (Ideological Bias Stripped One First Grader Of Her First Amendment Rights by Brittany Hunter). The 2024 Summer Olympics torch relay continued a century old tradition in the Olympic Games. For the Summer Olympics, the relay commenced on April 16, 2024 in Olympia, Greece and concluded on July 26, 2024 in Paris, France. The torch was carried across the Mediterranean, carried across Metropolitan and Overseas France, carried across Monaco, and was used to light the Olympic cauldron at the Tuileries Garden in Paris at the start of the games. Since the dawn of the twentieth century, there has been a relay race happening in hell. The religionists of class Marxism have passed the torch of revolution and destruction to the Hitlerites of Aryan swastika politics. The Aryan Marxists have passed the torch to their black power successors. The Black Live Matter movement has carried this torch into the capital cities of the West and ignited a global conflagration.

COMMUNISM CANCELS VIETNAM

French Indochina, May 7, 1954. A day which will live forever in the annals of infamy. Troops from the communist Viet Minh front plant the flag of victory over the captured headquarters of the French Far East Expeditionary Corps in the city of Dien Bien Phu. The French defeat leads to the 1954 Geneva Accords in which France plumbs the depths of disgrace on two counts. First, by agreeing to surrender French Indochina to communism, with the sole stipulation that Vietnam be divided at the 17th parallel, with control of the north given to the communists led by Ho Chi Minh and control of the south given to the free forces led by Emperor Bao Dai and supported by America; and second, by agreeing to have the communists supervise the ceasefire and supervise the elections for the reunification of the nation. The Geneva Accords, signed on July 21, 1954, were, after the Yalta Conference in 1945 in which the West surrendered Eastern Europe to the Soviets, the most disgraceful surrender documents ever signed by the West to the enemies of freedom. The Geneva Accords were among the declarations made by the West in the twentieth century granting communism moral and legal status. They recognized communist North Vietnam as a sovereign, independent nation. They proclaimed that communist North Vietnam exists by right because it exists in fact. From the nightmare which was North Vietnam, one million people fled for their lives to South Vietnam, and hundreds of thousands were prevented from leaving and were imprisoned in the north. These people were denied the fundamental right inherent in all human beings, the right to make a free choice as to where they wish to live. The Geneva Accords provided that the ceasefire together with proposed reunification elections be supervised by local communist commissions. This provision was supported by the Soviets and North Vietnam but opposed by America, Britain and the nations of free Indochina, which one and all demanded that the United Nations assumed the tasks of supervision. The Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov unequivocally rejected the American proposal to have neutral, third party oversight of communist activities. South Vietnam demanded that the United Nations protect the order of freedom in Vietnam and the security of people who seek to live in freedom. It demanded that the United Nations protect the ceasefire from communist violations, the administration of the Vietnam from communist invasion, and the reunification elections from communist interference. South Vietnam knew that North Vietnam would never allow the holding of free and fair reunification elections by secret ballot, and knew that the International Control Commission was a marionette of the Soviet Union, whose proxy on the commission was Poland. The establishment of local communist commissions to supervise elections was supported by the Soviets, by North Vietnam, and disgracefully by the forces of surrender ruling France. South Vietnam sought to unite the people in the north and south under the flag of freedom. It knew that the people in the north lived there against their will and sought to effect their liberation by giving them a ballot box guarded by the United Nations. South Vietnam was granted sovereignty by France and power to conduct its own foreign policy, and it rejected communist control over the ceasefire and the proposed reunification elections. The forces of French surrender gave the north a much larger population than the south. In the elections held in North Vietnam, the process was rigged to give Ho Chi Minh one hundred percent of the vote. Two years after the Geneva Accords were signed, the people of North Vietnam turned against their communist masters. They now wanted to fight for their freedom and looked toward a figure who would lead their fight. This figure was Ngo Dinh Diem, the prime minister and president of South Vietnam. The people of North Vietnam suffered under the lash of Ho Chi Minh. They lost all confidence and hope for the future under the rule of the puppet of the Soviets and the Chinese. Their ranks were decimated through mass starvation, mass famine and mass shooting from the barrels of Maoist rifles. They saw in Ho Chi Minh a traitor to their nation, a monster without moral competence or moral integrity, a communist imperialist who bulldozed his nation's houses of freedom, built by France and embraced by the people. They saw a Marxist-Leninist agitator, the chairman and first secretary of a terror organization called the Workers' Party of Vietnam, the predecessor of the present day Communist Party of Vietnam. They saw the leader of a communist one party state who placed the people under the iron heel of totalitarian rule. They saw an avatar of proletarian politics who set up a regime of mass murder which claimed the lives of 100,000 people or one victim per 160 villagers, in the name of "rent reduction," "land reform," and the "elimination of reactionary and evil landlords." They saw a subversive who created the Viet Cong and the National Liberation Front of South Vietnam and gave them the task of overthrowing South Vietnam in a "people's war" to establish communism. They saw the face of an inhuman creed, born in the fever swamps of envy and hatred, and watched helplessly as it cast a specter across the East and enslaved hundreds of millions of people: "July 21 marked the 70th anniversary of the end of the 1954 Geneva Conference on Indochina, which brought to an end more than seven years of war between France and Ho Chi Minh's Communist Viet Minh Front. It produced a ceasefire agreement—signed by France and the Viet Minh—and an unsigned Final Declaration that most participants verbally embraced. However, the United States and South Vietnam explicitly rejected it. In speeches and debates during the Vietnam War, critics regularly misrepresented the documents and their legal status, something many Americans still misunderstand. This seems like an appropriate time to clarify the matter. Although presented as temporary, the documents' legal effect, like the postwar partitions of Korea and Germany, was to establish separate de jure and de facto legal entities possessing the rights of all sovereign nations. Thus, in June 1950, when North Korea invaded South Korea, seeking a forced reunification, the UN Security Council denounced the aggression and authorized the United States to lead a coalition force under the UN flag to drive out the invaders—an event we know today as the Korean War. While many assert that no one expected the partition to last more than a couple of years, Article 14(d) of the ceasefire treaty provided: 'From the date of entry into force of the present Agreement until the movement of troops is completed, any civilians residing in a district controlled by one party who wish to go and live in the zone assigned to the other party shall be permitted and helped to do so by the authorities in that district.' Roughly 860,000 people from North Vietnam fled south at the time—a strong indication that, as in Germany and Korea, people expected a more prolonged partition. The Pentagon Papers noted that the number of refugees fleeing communist rule might have been much greater had the communists not impeded their escape. The Soviet Union and Great Britain cochaired the conference. In addition to France, the Viet Minh, and the three Associated States of Vietnam, Laos and Cambodia, the participants were communist China and the United States—which emphasized it was only there as an observer. In May, the head of the Viet Minh delegation, Pham Van Dong—who would later serve as Communist Vietnam's prime minister from 1955 until 1987—proposed that 'Vietnam be divided into two zones' with 'supervision of elections by local commissions.' The Pentagon Papers documented that Soviet Foreign Minister Vyacheslav Molotov 'expressly rejected the American plan, supported by the Indochinese delegation and Great Britain, to have the United Nations supervise a ceasefire.' The Pentagon Papers noted that Dr Tran Van Do, the head of the South Vietnamese delegation—with whom I met and discussed these issues in Saigon in 1968—proposed 'a ceasefire on present positions' and 'control by the United Nations of the ceasefire, the administration of the entire country and the general elections, until the United Nations believes that order and security will have been everywhere truly restored.' The same papers reveal that 'the United States believed the UN should have two separate functions—overseeing not only the ceasefire but the elections as well. Both these points in [Undersecretary of State Walter Bedell] Smith's remarks were to remain cardinal elements of American policy throughout the negotiations despite French—and communist—efforts to induce their alteration.' According to the Pentagon Papers, the South Vietnamese nationalists rejected the inadequately supervised elections that the communists proposed because they were 'convinced that Hanoi would not permit free general elections by secret ballot, and that the ICC [International Control Commission, which included communist Poland and required unanimity for decisions] would be impotent in supervising the elections in any case.' The Pentagon study observed that South Vietnam's 'rationale for keeping the country united was, as matters developed, eminently clear-sighted.' To make certain there was no misunderstanding, when the conference ended, Under Secretary Smith announced that 'the United States is not prepared to join in a declaration by the conference such as is submitted.' He unilaterally declared, 'In the case of nations now divided against their will, we shall continue to seek to achieve unity through free elections supervised by the United Nations to ensure that they are conducted fairly.' South Vietnam was equally clear in disassociating itself from the conference documents." (Refuting Myths About The 1954 Indochina Geneva Conference by Robert Turner). Russia 1917: the communist flag of victory. Berlin, Germany 1945: the communist flag of victory. Eastern Europe after World War II: the communist flags of victory. China 1949: the communist flag of victory. The headquarters of French forces at Dien Bien Phu, Vietnam, 1954: the communist flag of victory. Saigon, South Vietnam 1975: the communist flag of victory. The two decades from the fall of Dien Bien Phu to the fall of Saigon were two decades of treason, surrender and giving aid and comfort to the enemy by France and America, which were but mirrors and reflections of the general collapse of the West before communism at home and abroad. The twenty year fall of freedom in Vietnam was the fall of freedom in the West beginning in the twentieth century. In the twenty first century, the fall is completed.

SHE DEVIL TURNED LOOSE

A totem is an object or animal worshiped by savage societies for possessing mystical significance, and adopted by them as an emblem. A totem is a symbol of tribe, clan or culture. Totem poles are carved by American Indians from large trees such as the Western Red Cedar, and common figures found on them include the raven, symbol of a supernatural creator, the eagle, symbol of peace and friendship, the killer whale, symbol of strength, and the thunderbird, the beaver, the bear, the wolf and the frog. On July 21, 2024, President Joe Biden suspended his campaign for reelection and endorsed a totem pole for president. This totem pole was endorsed by Jimmy Carter, Bill and Hilary Clinton, Barack and Michelle Obama, and the Congressional Black Caucus. Within the first twenty four hours of its presidency, its campaign raised 81 million dollars, the highest single day total of any presidential candidate in American history. If elected president, it would become the first female Asian president and the second black president, after Barack Obama. On August 5, 2024, it was officially nominated by the Democrat Party after a roll call of delegates. On August 6, 2024, it announced Minnesota Governor Tim Walz as its vice presidential running mate. This totem pole's name is Kamala Harris and it is the preeminent symbol of the Democrat Party today and the United States of America during the twilight stages of civilization. The story of the party and the story of the nation are written in her career and to read it is to read the final chapter of a rampage. This is a rampage conducted by a monster assembled and brought to life in a dark house high atop the mountains of hatred and discontent. It is the house Karl Marx built. On its gates are marked the name of the monster: Gender, Race and Class Politics. This monster is the final development of Marxism, the final excrescence of a cancer fueled by the logic and dynamic of the master's tribal politics invented in the nineteenth century. Nominated by the Democrat Party to run for president of the United States, Kamala Harris is a twenty first century Marxist monster of gender, race and class politics, is this nightmare creature in concentrated form, is the rabid, virulent, distilled essence of everything wrong in the West, is a specter haunting every man, woman and child, greeted on its way by standing ovations of the masses, peddling collectivism as progressivism, as the masses desire, and dedicated to the overthrow of liberal democracy, as the masses desire. Look at the Marxist cancer of gender, race and class politics and listen to her proclamations demand the abolition of everything fought for during the American Revolution and the Age of Enlightenment from whence it emerged. She proclaims that a progressive society is run by feminists wearing pink pussyhats protesting against due process of law protections, reaching back to the beginnings of civilization, extended to men accused of sexual assault. She proclaims that a progressive society is a national Woman's March rioting and vandalizing against equal rights for men and grinding civilization into the dust. She proclaims that a progressive society is a MeToo movement, a radical feminist movement, a movement of hatred of men, which demands that sexual assault be redefined to include nonconsensual touching, demands that men accused of sexual assault be presumed guilty as charged, be convicted on the basis of the word of the accuser or series of accusers, and demands women who make accusations of sexual assault be believed in the absence of eyewitness corroboration or physical evidence. She proclaims that a progressive society seeks to prevent Donald Trump from being reelected president and seeks to assassinate him because he leads the nation's countermovement championing individual rights, limited government and the primacy of science over ideology. She proclaims that a progressive society is a left wing society run by activists on behalf of black and brown power. She proclaims that a progressive society makes martyrs out of black thugs, murderers and drug dealers and worships at their tables and altars. She proclaims that a progressive society is an Antifa society and a Black Lives Matter society which allows blacks to run amok and commit billions of dollars in property damage with impunity. She proclaims that a progressive society is a Summer, Autumn, Winter and Spring of Hate giving an open platform to violent, aggressive, black assassins who have placed whites in their crosshairs and pulled the triggers in the name "racial reckoning." She proclaims that a progressive society promotes Maoist style prairie communism, rural communism, farm communism and peasant communism. She proclaims that a progressive society is an antiliberal, antiWestern society shrouded in alien keffiyehs, is a pulpit for Marxist radicals and revolutionaries, and flutters with Hamas and Hezbollah flags demanding death to America, death to Israel and genocide against the Jews. She proclaims that a progressive society is run by shock troops, assault troops and formations leading a jihad against age old civilizational norms promoting rational flourishing under the rule of law. She proclaims that a progressive society condemns capitalism as a regime of victimization of women, nonwhites and the poor. She proclaims that a progressive society is a state of uncontrolled excitement and wild behavior in the service of cultural, political, economic and militant Marxism. She proclaims that a progressive society is run by intersectional hoodlums at the junction of being black, proletarian, Marxist and Islamist. She proclaims that a progressive society is a terror organization, a mafia gang and an insurrection storming the ramparts of civilization under the banners of Marxism and Islam, and a state of lawlessness and disorder made possible by the mental and moral decline of the West: "On January 21, 2017, hundreds of thousands of feminists wearing pink pussyhats protested the prior day's presidential inauguration of Donald Trump by rampaging throughout Washington, DC. The Women's March on Washington, an extension of the riots and protests that shook the capital on Inauguration Day itself, was not strictly a peaceful affair. Hundreds of anarchists in total were arrested over the multiday period, typically on rioting or vandalism charges. The pussyhat clad feminist rioters thus constituted the first Trump era manifestation of destructive Democratic shock troops. Call it Democratic Street Thuggery 1.0. That particularly virulent strain of radical feminism reached a crescendo during the #MeToo societal struggle session of 2017-2018, culminating in the infamous Christine Blasey Ford-led attempt to derail Brett Kavanaugh's US Supreme Court nomination in September 2018. Arguably the single leading misandrist crusader during that sordid affair, peddling the ludicrous 'believe all women' smear from her senatorial dais and casually throwing out five millennia of 'innocent until proven guilty' civilizational norms in the process, was none other than dimwitted California Senator Kamala Harris. Alas, Joe Biden—or what little remained, even back then, of Joe Biden—was so awestruck by Harris' vile interrogation of Kavanaugh and her own hilariously unimpressive 2020 presidential campaign that he tapped her to be his running mate. Cackling Kamala's grand contribution to the Biden campaign was to dutifully launder her own swarthy complexion to 'empathize' with left wing America during our next great struggle session, the Antifa-Black Lives Matter 'racial reckoning' that followed the May 2020 death of St George Floyd our Martyr. Such 'empathy' included Kamala's unctuous rhetorical support for the rioters, as well as her posting to social media a link to support bail for those rare BLM rioters who were actually arrested. The Antifa-BLM rioters, who caused up to $2 billion in property damage during that infamous Summer of Love, constituted Democratic Street Thuggery 2.0. No politician in recent memory has parlayed such little talent into such stratospheric success as Harris. The cackler in chief 'failed upward' yet again into the vice presidency—and now, following last month's bloodless coup of Biden, into the Democratic presidential nomination itself. And this Tuesday, in announcing her running mate, Kamala ostentatiously passed on her clearly superior option, popular Pennsylvania Governor Josh Shapiro, for the insipid prairie socialist Governor Tim Walz of Minnesota. As the home-state governor of St George Floyd our Martyr, Walz was the original arsonist of the Summer of Love nationwide fire. There was no greater fanner of the flames of Democratic Street Thuggery 2.0 than Walz. Choosing Walz over Shapiro is curious for many reasons, but the peculiar context in which it all went down adds to the intrigue. Kamala made her announcement in Philadelphia, Shapiro's hometown. It came a few days after the mayor of Philadelphia—or, more accurately, the mayor's hapless social media intern—inadvertently posted a polished video in support of a Harris-Shapiro ticket. The implication seemed clear enough: The pick was going to be Shapiro. But then, following a weekend of keffiyeh clad radicals running wild in Philadelphia, waving Hamas and Hezbollah flags and decrying 'Genocide Josh,' the Keystone State governor was suddenly tossed aside. Kamala caved to the 'death to America!' and 'death to Israel!' chanting jihadists who constitute Democratic Street Thuggery 3.0. Harris, intellectually challenged and an empty vessel for Democrats to project their basest desires, is the unique politician to find herself at the tripartite Venn diagram of all three Democratic Street Thuggery movements. The overlap of 'believe all women' style destructive feminism, antifa-BLM 'racial reckoning' anarchy and Hamas/Hezbollah flag flying civilizational jihad is embodied in one person: Kamala Harris. She is the perfect totem of the modern Democratic Party, which exalts intersectional victimhood and will whip its shock troops into a violent frenzy to get what it wants." (Kamala Harris And The Civilizational Jihad Of Democratic Street Thuggery by Josh Hammer). In the twenty first century, darkness has descended on America. It is a leering, cackling, howling presence emitting rays of endless night. Read the message brought by the rays. Radical feminism. Black Marxism. Muslim terror. The surrender of Israel and the extermination of Jews. Soviet command economy price controls on food and grocery prices, the first in American history. The presence signals the dissolution of America as a free society. Its name is Kamala Harris.

GLOBAL AXIS AGAINST FREEDOM

A common denominator is a feature shared by all members of a group. Among reputable business enterprises, the common denominator is the awareness of the importance of quality products and services delivered at fair and reasonable prices. Over the past one hundred years, a global movement has emerged comprised of disparate actors united by a common denominator. This common denominator is opposition to freedom and the worship of state action. Actors of the most diverse kind, wearing the most diverse colors and uniforms, promoting the most diverse programs and platforms, and shouting the most diverse slogans, stand united by their opposition to the values of the Enlightenment and their desire to overthrow liberal democracy. The movement commenced in the early years of the twentieth century, and over the decades has picked speed and new members, as it accelerates onward towards its goal of establishing totalitarian government. This movement against freedom was born from the rejection of reason by the Western masses, and this frightening rejection has been the primary symptom of the decline and fall of civilizations throughout history. The ancient Roman masses rejected their native pagan reason and inaugurated a final age of religion before the end arrived. This age saw the acceptance of Christianity, German barbarism, emperor worship, welfare statism, mob rule, and the mindless scandals and entertainment of bread and circuses. By the fifth century AD, the Apollonian culture of Greece and Rome, dedicated like its patron god to the life of reason, had been reduced to a wasteland of mental ruination on the ashes of which flew the new flags of religion. In the twentieth century, the West entered into an age of second religiousness, which saw the wheel of history spin round 360 degrees and bring back the Dark Ages from whence the culture emerged. Over the past one hundred years, only the actors have changed in the new Dark Ages, while the play, the plot and the tragedy have remained the same. The play, the plot and the tragedy: the mass rejection of reason by a mass epidemic of faith and worship of the supernatural. The actors involved today worship the supernatural either on Earth or in Heaven but they are as dedicated to the destruction of civilization as their Heaven worshipping Christian forerunners one thousand years ago. In the present day, the virulent Christians are back on stage and are joined by their fellow virulent comrades, Orthodox Jews and Muslim extremists. A resurgent Christianity has wielded influence on the United States Supreme Court. In the landmark 2022 decision Dobbs versus Jackson Women's Health Organization, the Court ruled that the Constitution's guarantee of liberty in the Ninth and Fourteenth Amendments is not a guarantee of liberty, that the right to liberty does not mean the right to liberty, and that states have a right to violate the First Amendment and to establish religion, and to declare that a one celled human zygote at the moment of conception is an actual human person because it has been infused with a supernatural soul, and its destruction is an act of murder. The Orthodox Jews have launched a culture war in Israel and seek to destroy its liberal secular character, while Muslim extremists are in control of the nations throughout the East and have made deep incursions into the West. The worshippers of the supernatural on Earth are Marxists, who appear on the form of a triple headed monster called Gender, Race and Class Politics. These mystical gods, natural, logical, inevitable developments from Marx's premise of tribalism, are ubiquitous in every home, school and office in society and form an integral part of the establishment. The twenty first century stage is crowded with the enemies of reason, acting alone or in concert, and the klieg lights of history have lit up an exhibition of cultural degeneration the likes of which have not been seen in two thousand years, since the time Rome fell. Look at the exhibition and see the Western masses pull the trigger of a rifle marked antiEnlightenment and commit suicide. See Marxists and Islamists join forces in an alliance to destroy their common enemy. This enemy is the Enlightenment as embodied in Israel, Jews, and the liberal traditions and institutions of the West. See the West worship the Palestinians, the Muslim Brotherhood and the genocidal terror attacks launched by Hamas. See Marxists wear Arab headdresses, take over universities and advocate the mass murder of Jews. See Marxists worship Tehran, condemn capitalism as a zionist regime and a truncheon of police brutality, and shout Fuck the Police! through Maoist megaphones. See Marxists enact the scriptures of Islam, the Koran and the Hadith, as the supreme law of the land. See Marxists and Islamists condemn capitalism as a regime of injustice and oppression. See the Marxist movements, Antifa, Occupy, Black Lives Matter, and Boycott, Divestment, and Sanctions, declare war on Israel, America and the West. See Marxists and Islamists employ the same terms, tactics, invectives and malice in a campaign to deligitimize the Western constitution of liberty and its Israeli outpost in the Middle East. See Marxists and Islamists reject American power, influence and the American City Upon A Hill. See Marxists and Islamists reject Western pluralism, tolerance, freedom of speech, and the separation between church and state. See Marxists and Islamists promote antisemitism and antiAmericanism in words and pictures, at rallies and marches, in chants and songs, and at book burnings and flag burnings. See Marxists and Islamists reject nonpartisan social analysis and peddle narratives burning white hot with hatred and rage. See Marxists and Islamists reject academic integrity and the pursuit of truth and transform universities into echo chambers of religious orthodoxy and ideological lockstep. See Marxists and Islamists take over corporate suites and mandate political correctness at the workplace. See Marxists and Islamists take over the channels of mass communication and poison the air with slogans of revolution and subversion. See Marxists and Islamists silence the voices of liberal dissent through cancellation, jail, judicial gag orderes, and social and political coercion. See Marxists and Islamists outlaw as Islamophobia all speech which exposes Islamist violence and fanaticism. See Marxists advocate the abolition of America by the return of the land to prehistoric Indian savages. See Marxists force people to address gender dysphoric psychotics who call themselves transgenders and claim, in the face of the existence of sex chromosomes and DNA, that they are members of the opposite sex, with the pronouns of their choice. See Marxists advocate identity politics, which denies the physical existence of individuals and reduces people to phantom abstractions of genders, races and classes. See Marxists exalt tribal identity and tribal justice above individual merit and individual justice. See Marxists reject meritocracy as a vehicle of white supremacy and discrimination against blacks. See Marxists advocate discrimination against white males in order to achieve diversity and inclusion and the highest form of fairness and equity. See Marxists advocate critical race theory. According to this theory, a progressive society is critical of the values of the Enlightenment and has established a black proletarian dictatorship and a regime of extermination of whites in their place. See Marxists advocate the politics of tribal intersections and a dictatorship in the hands of women, nonwhites and the poor. See Marxists condemn capitalism as a regime of white racist power dynamics. See Marxists condemn capitalism as a system of oppression and exploitation of women, nonwhites, the poor, gays, lesbians, transgenders and Muslims. See Marxists and Islamists support terror entities, China, Russia, Iran, Students for Justice in Palestine, the Jewish Voice for Peace, and Codepink, and declare war on the cultural, political, economic and educational system of freedom which the Enlightenment established in the West: "In the rapidly shifting geopolitical landscape of the twenty first century, a disturbing alliance has emerged. It poses a profound threat not only to Jews but to Americans and Western civilization. The confluence of radical Islamic ideologies and extreme leftist orthodoxy, often referred to as the Islamo-leftist alliance, represents a paradoxical yet potent coalition united by a shared animosity toward Israel, Jews, and the values underpinning Western democracy. Part of this alliance, the Palestinian wing of the global Muslim Brotherhood, murdered 1,300 Israelis on October 7. Since then, American leftists wear keffiyehs, set up encampments across American universities, and openly endorse the murder of Jews. The alliance uses the pulpit in Tehran to condemn the 'Zionist regime' and the bullhorn to shout Fuck the Police! across American cities. Understanding this odd, yet burgeoning partnership and the threat it poses is crucial for all who value freedom, democracy, and human rights. The origins of the Islamo-leftist alliance are rooted in a convergence of mutual interests and ideological blind spots. On one side, radical Islamic groups espouse a fundamentalist worldview that seeks to impose its interpretation of sharia law in the West and oppose Western influence in the Muslim world. On the other side, extreme leftists advocate for radical social and political revolution, often viewing Western capitalism as the primary source of global injustice. While these two groups appear ideologically disparate, their collaboration is driven by a hatred toward a common enemy: the West and its allies. The Islamo-leftist alliance holds a particular hatred of Israel, the Jewish people, and their Western values in the Middle East. In the United States, the Occupy Movement, Black Lives Matter, Antifa, and the Boycott, Divestment, and Sanctions (BDS) movement are key actors." (The Islamo-Leftist Alliance by Adam Milstein). In Germany it was called the Achsenmächte. In Italy, it was called the Potenze Dell Asse. In Japan it was called Sujikukoku. It was the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis and it fought against the Allies during World War II and fought for the cause of human enslavement. The axis against freedom has had many members in the West over the past one hundred years. The preeminent members comprised the former Communist Bloc. In the twenty first century, three new members have been added: Islam, the Christian Right, and Marxist gender, race and class politics. The enemies of freedom are legion and multiplying, while its defenders are few and vanishing.

MARXISTS STOP THE PRESSES

The year 1695 was a watershed year in Britain. This was the year freedom of the press was formally established, and its establishment became a beacon of light throughout the world. The new free presses rolling in Britain to speak truth to power gave people oppressed by censorship hope and inspiration to fight for their rights. The free press is an embodiment of Anglo-Saxon liberty and a model for all mankind: "Licensing of the press in Britain was abolished in 1695. Remember how the freedoms won here became a model for much of the rest of the world, and be conscious how the world still watches us to see how we protect those freedoms." (Leveson Inquiry: British Press Freedom Is A Model For The World, Editor Tells Inquiry by Gordon Raynor, quoting Alan Rusbridger). Journalism cannot survive without freedom of the press. It cannot survive beneath the iron heel of censorship or political correctness. The production and distribution of reports on current events, the vital profession which gathers information on the news of the day, dies when truth and objectivity are suppressed and replaced by the enforcement of political bias and the party line. Three hundred years after freedom of the press was officially announced in the West and the first uncensored newspaper, The Daily Courant, rolled off the presses and entranced the people of London, journalism has fallen under sustained attack and has no more reality than the manufactured news it is compelled to report. Journalism today has become the organ of an establishment which has rejected values of the Enlightenment and embraced the tenets of the number one mass gutter religion of our time. When the Western masses fell to Marxism in the early years of the twentieth century, they threw freedom of the press into a bonfire, and what remains today is the smoke, ashes and black powder assembled to form an in house press whose letters spell out the messages of gender, race and class politics and printed them on every page. Today's journalism schools have issued a series of proclamations designed to stop the presses from printing the truth and nullify three centuries of struggle by journalists to inform the public without fear of reprisals. Look at today's journalism schools and listen to the return of a regime of fear and control, this time enforcing the religion of Marxism. Today's schools proclaim that criticism of gender, race and class politics is a form of microviolence and microaggression and must be prohibited. They proclaim that those who reject the religion of transgenderism and refuse address those who pretend to be members of the opposite sex with the pronouns of their choice are the bearers of cisgender privilege and must be silenced. According to transgenderism, sex chromosomes and DNA do not exist and human gender can be changed by means of thought, decision or medical intervention, and males can change into females and females can change into males. Gender is an option on a form and has no basis in science or reality. People can possess a nonbinary gender and be both male and female at one and the same time, and can be agender, or be no gender at all. A progressive society prohibits gender exclusive spaces or activities, such as those reserved for biological women, on the grounds that they discriminate against transgenders. A progressive society prohibits gender exclusive prisons and allows transgender women to share cells with biological women. Children should be taught at the earliest age that gender has no relation to anatomy, and traditional sex lessons discussing "boy parts and girl parts" should be replaced by a course of indoctrination that gender is determined by feeling and desire. Today's journalism schools proclaim that people who object to psychotic individuals who claim they are members of the opposite sex using bathrooms or locker rooms reserved for members of that sex are guilty of discrimination against transgenders and must be silenced. They proclaim that a progressive society enforces identity politics and a policy of discrimination against successful, white, heterosexual, nontransgender, biological males in the name of achieving diversity and civility. They proclaim that the statement 'America is a melting pot' in which immigrants reject their tribal identities and assimilate to Western liberal values is a microaggression against unassimilated migrant scum and must be prohibited. They proclaim that the statement 'I believe the most qualified person should get the job' is a microaggression against incompetent and unqualified blacks and must be prohibited. They proclaim that the statement 'Everyone can succeed in this society, if they work hard enough' is a microaggression against shiftless, indolent, good for nothing blacks and must be prohibited. They proclaim that the statement 'There is only one race, the human race' rejects the primacy of race in society and the racial superiority of blacks, and must be prohibited. They proclaim that a progressive journalism school is a church dedicated to Marxist cultural and political programming of students. They proclaim that a progressive journalism school rejects the traditional goals of teaching students skills in reporting and writing and places emphasis on political and ideological instruction, and requires students to attend lectures and write papers on the varieties of Marxism as a condition for obtaining a degree. They proclaim that a progressive journalism school teaches students that capitalism is a regime of race hatred and discrimination. They proclaim that a progressive journalism school is a course in intersectional politics which advocates that the liberal democratic system be overthrown and absolute power be placed into the hands of the overlapping, intersecting identities black and proletariat. They proclaim that a progressive journalism school teaches students that an individual's race, gender and sexual orientation are the primary, defining aspects of his or her existence. They proclaim that a progressive journalism school advocates the racist and sexist goals of achieving diversity and inclusion in schools, offices and businesses by a policy of discrimination against white males. They proclaim that a progressive journalism school rejects the traditional educational goals of pursuing truth and knowledge in favor of indoctrinating students in the tenets of far left ideologies. They proclaim that a progressive journalism school rejects academic freedom and requires professors to advocate identity politics, policies of diversity and inclusion, and the destruction of Western civilization: "Avoiding 'microaggressions.' Checking your 'cisgender privilege.' Developing a marketing campaign for a hypothetical popstar who uses 'they/them' pronouns. It's all mandatory at Arizona State University's (ASU) Walter Cronkite School of Journalism and Mass Communication, a new report Goldwater Institute Report reveals. This government run institution is requiring its students to invest their time and tuition dollars into learning the nuances of progressive identity politics as part of a 'Diversity and Civility at Cronkite' course, according to the report, which is based on course materials obtained via public records requests. Those materials include the following: Course readings define statements such as 'America is a melting pot' as examples of offensive 'microaggressions.' Other statements—such as 'I believe the most qualified person should get the job' or 'Everyone can succeed in this society, if they work hard enough'—are likewise branded as problematic because they imply that 'people of color are lazy and/or incompetent and need to work harder.' Other course readings argue that objecting to men using women's bathrooms is an example of discrimination against transgender individuals. Course assignments include requiring students to develop a public relations plan for a hypothetical pop star who uses 'they/them' pronouns. More than 400 students were required to take this class in the Fall 2023 semester alone, with more than 2,000 hours of class time spent on what may as well be called Trendy Topics in Progressive Politics 101. The Cronkite School is supposed to be one of the country's preeminent training grounds for journalists; instead it's forcing cultural and political indoctrination down students' throats. And it goes beyond just the Cronkite school. Goldwater has identified more than 100 classes offered in ASU's Spring 2024 course catalog that include terms like diversity, equity, and inclusion, or that fulfill the university's general education requirement in diversity. How many of these courses are preaching progressive dogmas to a captive audience of students who must submit to this instruction just to graduate? To return Arizona's public universities to their educational missions, it is imperative that the institutions themselves—or the bodies that oversee them—adopt a change in policy to eliminate politicized diversity based course requirements like Diversity and Civility at Cronkite. That's why the Goldwater Institute's Freedom from Indoctrination Act prohibits public universities from requiring student to take courses that promote politicized 'diversity, equity, and inclusion' (DEI) concepts like 'microaggressions' and 'cisgender privilege' as general education or major specific requirements. Under this law, public universities, including ASU, cannot force students into DEI courses by failing to provide enough seats in other courses to fulfill university and major requirements. And the law also ensures true academic freedom by preventing these taxpayer funded institutions of higher learning from requiring faculty to include DEI content in their courses. No public university should require students to sit through lectures on the latest fads in progressive politics as a condition of obtaining a degree—especially not a public university that charges students over 10,000 dollars per year." ('Progressive Politics 101': ASU Forces Students To Learn About 'Microaggressions' & 'Privilege' by Tim Minella). On June 3-4, 1989, at Tiananmen Square in the center of Beijing, a statue erected by the Chinese people called Goddess of Democracy was destroyed by government troops, and the thousands of protestors at the square seeking an end to communism were shot dead. The protestors had demanded freedom of speech and freedom of the press. The statue was recreated in Washington DC and renamed Victims of Communism Memorial. In the twenty first century, Beijing's troops have reassembled and expanded their ranks, and taken over the presses of the West.

MARXIST FLAMETHROWERS BURN DOWN UNIVERSITIES

Wilhelm von Humboldt was a German philosopher, linguist and man with a vision. His greatest work was Limits Of State Action, one of the most famous defenses of freedom of speech and scientific inquiry in the West, which influenced the English speaking world via John Stuart Mill's essay On Liberty. Humboldt had a vision to create a university dedicated to his principles, and in 1810, the doors to the new University of Berlin were opened by Frederick Wilhelm II on Humboldt's initiative. The university Humboldt founded became a model and inspiration to universities throughout the West and earned Humboldt the title of Founder of Academic Freedom. This shining freedom, this right of a teacher to teach and right of a student to learn in an academic setting unhampered by political or ideological interference, has fallen under sustained attack over the past one hundred years. It has fallen under attack by a global movement dedicated to the destruction of freedom in all its aspects and to the enslavement of man in his body and mind. It has fallen under attack by a movement peddling enslavement as progressivism, a movement founded by Karl Marx in the nineteenth century. Greeted by the standing ovations of the masses, Marxism burgeoned and blossomed in the twentieth century and placed academic freedom in its crosshairs. Marx's creed of tribalism, which denied the existence and value of individuals and divided mankind into two opposing camps called the proletariat and the bourgeois first reared its totalitarian head in the Soviet Union. In the 1930s, the Soviets brought scientific research under state control, condemned the science of genetics as "bourgeois pseudoscience" because it recognized innate, nonenvironmental factors of change, and prohibited its teaching. In the late twentieth century, a triple headed monster born of Marxism, a nightmare creature which, obeying the logic of tribalism, breathed the fires of gender, race and class politics, commenced a rampage across universities and put an end to academic freedom in the West. In the twenty first century, academic freedom is a distant memory and universities have been transformed into ideological echo chambers and congregations for the propagation of the faith, whose mission is to mass produce agitators and propagandists for the cause of world revolution. Look at today's universities and listen to the platform of a party which will not cease in its efforts to overthrow the traditions and institutions of the Enlightenment. This platform, this party, this mass, populist, global movement of a civilization in a state of decline, proclaims that a progressive society protects the academic freedom of communists and the freedom of nobody else. It proclaims that a progressive university is a rabid, partisan, left wing organization. It proclaims that a progressive university is a league of communist soldiers fighting to overthrow the culture and constitution of liberty. It proclaims that a progressive university peddles the politics of overlapping, intersectional tribal identities and advocates a communist dictatorship in the hands of black, gay, lesbian transgenders. It proclaims that a progressive university promotes the racist and sexist concepts of diversity and inclusion which demand representations of races and genders in schools and offices, policies of discrimination against and exclusion of white males, and demands these as the highest forms of fairness and equity. It proclaims that a progressive university wages war on behalf of black supremacy and tolerates no liberal dissent. It proclaims that a progressive university promotes feminist studies and queer studies. It proclaims that a progressive university sacrifices free speech on the altar of black race politics. It proclaims that a progressive university promotes the religion that gender is created by society and has no basis in reality. It proclaims that a progressive university teaches students that sex chromosomes and DNA do not exist and that gender can be changed by human will, belief and action, that males can change into females and females can change into males, and that transgender males are really males and transgender women are really women. It proclaims that a progressive university rejects traditional academic standards and scientific rigor in the assessment of truth and sets up a standard of ideological needs and interests. It proclaims that a progressive university prohibits free and open debates which challenge the truth of gender, race and class politics. It proclaims that a progressive university prohibits all opinions except Marxist opinions and all dogmas except Marxist dogmas, and places these opinions and dogmas beyond all discussions and criticisms. It proclaims that freedom is a dead dogma and must be replaced by the living truth of communist enslavement. It proclaims that a progressive university rejects meritocracy as a regime of structural inequality and promotes the advancement of women and nonwhites because they are women and nonwhites. It proclaims that academic research and publications which promote meritocracy and equal opportunity without respect to race, and reject diversity and inclusion policies, are racist research and publications and must be prohibited. It proclaims that a progressive university has abolished the practice of professional, nonpartisan peer review in the evaluation of academic research and publications, and established in its place a system of voting by ideologues of gender, race and class. It proclaims that academic disciplines which employ empirical methods of research are vehicles of white supremacy and must be prohibited. It proclaims that a progressive university protects the critics of capitalism and the Enlightenment and expels the critics of communism and totalitarianism. It proclaims that a progressive university provides sanctuary to

Marxist activists parading as scholars. It proclaims that a progressive university subjects traditional empirical sciences such as physics, chemistry and mathematics to intersectional tribal analysis and condemns them as vehicles of white, male, capitalist supremacy. It proclaims that a progressive university rejects the traditional academic ideal of the citadel and ivory tower located high above the shouts of tub thumpers and zealots, and is a deep underground bunker sealed off from the light of truth and understanding. It proclaims that a progressive university teaches history and politics seen through the lens of Marxism, as a struggle of women, blacks and the poor against the oppressive, white, male, capitalist system. It proclaims that a progressive university is a Marxist think tank which has jettisoned all pretenses of providing higher education. It proclaims that a progressive university has established Marxist control over the curriculum. It proclaims that the spirit of a progressive university is the spirit of Marxist culture war and world revolution: "When I began my academic career, my colleagues regarded the American Association of University Professors (AAUP) as the great proponent and bulwark of academic freedom. The senior colleague I admired most—a gentleman and scholar, the embodiment of what it meant to be a professor—was a long time member. My, how times have changed. Yes, the AAUP still speaks up for academic freedom, but in some ways, it seems to have followed the path taken by the ACLU, associating the freedom it stands for mostly with left wing causes. Indeed, my admired senior colleague abandoned his AAUP membership long ago, even before he stepped away from the classroom. I don't mean to say that AAUP is simply a partisan or ideological organization. My campus chapter, comprised of colleagues I respect, has advocated for a robust conception of shared governance, asserting appropriate faculty control over the curriculum. But I haven't heard much talk about the Kalven Report or the Chicago Principles. Perhaps everyone thinks we can take the AAUP's 1915 and 1940 statements for granted, but I'm unsure. The new look AAUP seems to have positioned itself as a combatant in the culture wars, defending an academy marked by intersectionality and 'diversity, equity, and inclusion' (DEI) initiatives against its extramural critics. My doubts began with two books associated with prominent AAUP members: Free Speech and Koch Money: Manufacturing A Campus Culture War and It's Not Free Speech: Race, Democracy, And The Future Of Academic Freedom. I can't resist quoting my review of the first book devoted to the philanthropic efforts of the Charles Koch network. What underlies their appeal to 'the rigors of academic scrutiny' is evident from statements like the following: 'Feminist and queer theorists do not find it necessary within their discipline to continually defend the established finding that gender is socially constructed.' Having established a consensus in some areas of the academy that yields results they find ideologically congenial, they do not wish any longer to entertain challenges. They do not want to 'roll back the current state of academic debates, especially on issues relating to race, class, and gender. I cannot help but quote John Stuart Mill's On Liberty in reply: 'However unwillingly a person who has a strong opinion may admit the possibility that his opinion may be false, he ought to be moved by the consideration that however true it may be, if it is not fully, frequently, and fearlessly discussed, it will be held as a dead dogma, not a living truth.' The spirit of the academy defended by Wilson and Kamola is not the spirit of the academy I entered over forty years ago. I noted the threatening character of a proposed new variation on traditional peer review proposed in the other book. Ordinary professional peer review and institutional review boards are, in their view, by themselves inadequate to guard against 'racist research and publication.' Because these procedures are insufficiently attuned to 'structural inequalities' and because the faculty typically chosen for membership on the relevant committees may be insufficiently aware of their disciplines' 'complicity with white supremacy,' this new committee has to be composed of faculty 'with expertise in the relevant areas' In other words, political science research isn't simply to be judged by political scientists or an assistant professor's application for tenure to be judged by tenured departmental colleagues. They must be judged in addition or instead by specialists in race, racism, and so on." (The AAUP Discredits Itself by Joseph Knippenberg). From its original economic roots set forth by Karl Marx in his 1848 Communist Manifesto, Marxism has evolved into higher states of tribal complexity. From the opening lines of the Manifesto, stating that "the history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles," have grown cancerous cells stamped with the names of evermultiplying groups. Over the past one hundred years, the torch of Marxist revolution has passed into the hands of nonwhites, women, gays, lesbians, transgenders, nonbinaries, agenders, Palestinians and Islamists. Screaming for social justice, the torch bearers have set fire to universities.

GOOGLE SEARCH RESULTS: RACE AND GENDER POLITICS AD INFINITUM

Twenty five years ago in Menlo, Park California, two computer scientists founded a search engine company which would grow to become "the most powerful company in the world." Its power derived from its market dominance, its data collection activities and its advances in the field of artificial intelligence. Founded by Stanford University doctoral students Sergei Brin and Larry Page, Google is now part of the five Big Tech Masters of the Universe, whose members include Amazon, Apple, Meta and Microsoft, and is ranked as the world's most valuable brand. The overwhelming power, dominance and value of the company have made it a mirror of the culture, the spirit of the times and the politics embraced by the masses. The organization's workforce is a cross section of society and its corporate values are the values enforced by society. Google is the West, and wherever the West is, whatever trends and positions it exhibits, Google is present providing nonstop cheers and ovations. In the twenty first century, the Western establishment has been taken over root and branch by a mass gutter religion founded in the nineteenth century. In his 1848 Communist Manifesto, Karl Marx proclaimed that "the history of all hitherto existing society is the history of class struggles" and rejected the human universalism and concern for individual rights which marked the Enlightenment. He invented a religion which denies the existence, value and worth of individuals and exalts mystical collective entities in their place. He divided mankind into two warring tribes, called the proletariat and the bourgeois, the class of muscle laborers and the class of knowledge workers which he proclaimed oppressed and exploited the proletarian muscle laborers, and advocated and predicted a war of extermination waged by the former against the latter, as a decree handed down by the iron laws of matter. Marx opened the door to multifarious doctrines of tribalism and in the twentieth century, these tribes walked through. Obeying the logic of Marx's tribalist premise, a cancer of tribalism has overrun the West over the past one hundred years, and ushered in an age of gender, race and class politics. A triple headed Marxist monster breathing the fires of feminism, gender ideology, black power and proletarian revolution stalks the West and has reduced it to a moral and spiritual wasteland, as far removed from the values of the Enlightenment as Hell is removed from noonday. In the twenty first century, the West has been pushed into extinction by the uncontrolled growth of Marxist and neoMarxist ideas, and Google has been present on the scene, aiding and abetting the forces of civilizational destruction. From its headquarters known as the Googleplex, at 1600 Amphitheater Parkview, Mountain View, California, this global corporate behemoth has issued a series of proclamations capturing the present day ethos of the West as they have disgraced the liberal ideals on which the company was founded. Google in the twenty first century proclaims that a progressive corporation enforces the doctrine that the individual counts for nothing, that there is something bigger and greater than the individual, which is the state and society, and this mystical entity has the right to sacrifice and dispose of the individual to advance its needs and interests. It proclaims that a progressive corporation is governed by the racist and sexist concepts of diversity and inclusion, which demand more blacks and more women in the workforce to make it diverse and inclusive, and a policy of discrimination against white males, and justifies this as the highest form of fairness and equity. It proclaims that a progressive corporation is inspired by the policies of Hitler's Third Reich. The latter proclaimed that Aryans are underrepresented in the workplace and Jews are overrepresented, and that there are too many Jews and not enough Aryans in the workplace. Today's progressive corporation changes the characters involved while it retains the story. In place of Aryans, it substitutes women and nonwhites, and in place of Jews, it substitutes white males, and it proclaims that there are too many white males in the workplace and not enough women and blacks, and white males must be discriminated against while women and nonwhites must be given preferential treatment. Google in the twenty first century proclaims that a progressive corporation discriminates in favor of workers of color and calls this racial justice. It proclaims that a progressive corporation hires a workforce representing the race and gender demographics of society, enforces race and gender based hiring and promotion quotas, and discriminates against white males. It proclaims that a corporation which discriminates on the basis of race and gender, and discriminates against white males, is a better, more just, more innovative and more profitable corporation than one which is race blind and gender blind, treats all candidates and employees equally, and prohibits all forms of discrimination. It proclaims that a progressive corporation rejects all policies of nondiscrimination and hiring on the basis of merit, and concentrates on increasing the number of black hires, latino hires and female hires. It proclaims that a progressive corporation is governed by five year plans to increase black and female representation in its ranks, and informs its partners, users, creators and employees on a regular basis of the progress achieved by its institutional racism and sexism, and how they can advance its progress even further. It proclaims that a progressive corporation rejects the treatment of individuals as individuals, and establishes a workforce reflecting the race and gender of its users and the race and gender demographics of the world's population. It proclaims that a progressive corporation is a leader in affirmative action hiring policies, and promotes its racist and sexist plans throughout the corporate world. It proclaims that a progressive corporation rejects the values of freedom and individualism, elevates a mystical We above the empirical I, and promotes the totalitarian nightmare of social purposes, social service and social sacrifice. It proclaims that a progressive corporation promotes racist and sexist hiring and promotions, and discrimination against white males, in the name of achieving race and gender parity and equality. It proclaims that a progressive corporation is a rally for racist and sexist approaches, practices, programs and goal setting in hiring and promotion; it is rally extending from the chief executive officer down to the office clerk; and it seeks to spread its devil's gospel of race and gender swastika politics to organizations throughout the world: "Melonie Parker, Google's chief diversity officer, enters the BBC's Executive Lounge to talk about 'rerecruiting' top talent, and building something bigger than yourself. Commitments to diversity, equity and inclusion (DEI) are forward looking investments for companies. Research consistently shows embracing diversity makes companies more innovative—and ultimately more profitable. In recent decades, many global companies launched new initiatives to improve their DEI efforts, bringing in new executives and bolstering their hiring of diverse candidates. However, the landscape shifted in 2022, when many tech companies made significant cuts and downsized DEI programs. In many cases, workers of color were among the first affected by layoffs. Despite these changes, Melonie Parker says Google remains firm in its racial equity commitments, which include increasing underrepresented groups in leadership by 30% by 2025, and addressing representation issues in hiring, retention and promotions. Parker, a Googler since 2017, is currently the company's chief diversity officer. She has nearly three decades of expertise in human resources, talent acquisition and DEI, and is at the forefront of Google's endeavors to attract and retain more talent from underrepresented groups. Her leadership emphasises using data driven research to support the company's initiatives. In the first two years in her role, Parker and her team increased the annual percentage of black hires within the US, from 5.5% in 2019 to 9.4 percent in 2021. Similarly, Latino US hires rose from 6.6% to 9 percent during this period. As a result, 2021 was Google's largest percentage of new black and latino hires in the US. Additionally, women currently account for 32.6% of Google's global leadership—an increase of 5.9% since 2019. 'I'm really proud of the way I've been able to grow the work here, specifically of how we deepened the DEI work following the murder of George Floyd,' Parker tells the BBC. 'We're taking an enterprise wide approach in our five year racial equity goals, looking at our milestones on a continual basis and reporting it out annually to allow for transparency internally and externally. This way, our partners, users, creators and workforce are not only aware of the progress we're making, but also are able to participate.' Parker believes in building a workforce that reflects the diversity of its users and the global community. She discusses her leadership role, the challenges she has faced and lays out an actionable plan for all leaders. What about your background led you to Google? I spent the bulk of my career in aerospace and defence, and I wanted to take on a different set of challenges. What I looked for coming into tech was, how do I use my experiences to bring other people along? I was able to do that successfully in aerospace and defence, and I wanted to do that in tech, because I knew the beginnings of tech weren't as inclusive as we aspire to. I was ready to do something bigger than myself. The way I approach my life and my career is—it's not about me. It's about the greater we and about who I'm serving. I grew up service and purpose minded, and I'm very grounded in my personal values and principles that my parents poured into me." (How Google Is Sticking To—And Soaring Past—Its DEI Goals by Omoso Ighodaro). Query: the highest form of human progress and civilization. Result from a software engine used by 99 percent of the Earth's population. Result from Google Search: the highest form of progress and civilization is the reversion of mankind to the nameless prehistoric eons of tribal immolation and tyranny. This is the world of Google, the world of race and gender based representation, percentages and quotas at the workplace and throughout society, and this is the world of the West.

AMERICA'S HIGHEST OFFICES: JOE BIDEN'S REAL ESTATE

A flood is an overflow of water which submerges dry land. Floods can produce devastating consequences for agriculture, civil engineering and public health, and have wrought billions of dollars in damages and the destruction of people's livelihoods. Scenes of floods have engulfed the four corners of the Earth, from Morpeth, England to Darwin, Australia to Ostrobothnia, Finland to Porto Alegre in Brazil, and blocked all avenues of escape for their victims. The most devastating and destructive floods of all are the floods of political scandal, and America in the twenty first century lies buried underwater in a scandal which has dwarfed all previous scandals in its history and signaled the moral and political collapse of the nation. The former leader of the free world which protected the weak and vulnerable with its mighty arsenal has been laid low by moral and legal wrongs which have shocked the conscience of the nation's vanishing minority of civilized people. The majority is unconcerned because the majority looks past acts of wrongdoing committed by public figures who share its political coloration. The coloration is far left and the coloration commenced at dawn of the twentieth century when the masses first voted for communism under a ticket stamped progressivism, and President Joe Biden, the national political leader of the far left representing the Democrat Party, has received a free pass for acts of malfeasance which occupy page one in the world's annals of infamy. On August 19, 2024, three committees of the United States House of Representatives released a report finding that Joe Biden committed criminal offenses during his tenure as vice president and president. Three committees found that Biden abused his office and violated his oath to an extent never before seen in American politics. Three committees found that Joe Biden engaged in a conspiracy to peddle his influence as vice president and president to enrich himself and his family. Law abiding American who have read the report assembled by the House Committee on Oversight and Accountability, the House Committee on the Judiciary, and the House Committee on Ways and Means, can scarcely believe what they have read, for they have read a historical first, something which never happened before in two hundred years of the nation's history. They have read the hitherto inconceivable, unthinkable, imagination defying collapse of America as a law abiding nation. Listen to what they have read, listen to an official report on Joe Biden's crimes established by irrefutable evidence, and see the freedom of Americans placed on the sacrificial altars of Joe Biden's corruption and reduced to dust and ashes. The congressional report states that Joe Biden initiated a secret agreement to sell the office of the vice president and president for the benefit of himself, his family, his friends and his business associates. It states that Biden received tens of millions of dollars from foreign actors in exchange for giving them entrance into his office and a seat at his desk. It states that Biden attended dinners with his family's foreign business partners, spoke to them by telephone, and made them partners in crime by selling his office to them. It states that Biden's son Hunter received 3.5 million dollars from Russian business leader Yelena Baturina via Hunter's firm Rosemont Seneca Thornton in exchange for Baturina's access to Joe Biden's office. It states that Biden told Baturina, "you be good to my boy" and continue giving him multimillion dollar payments in exchange for access to Joe Biden's office. It states that Biden sold his office of public trust beginning in 2014 in foreign business dealings involving Ukraine, China, Russia, Romania and Kazakhstan. It states that Romanian businessman Gabriel Popoviciu gave three million dollars to the Biden family and its associates in exchange for access by Romanian President Klaus Iohannis to Biden's vice presidential office, and Biden's influence over federal government agencies. It states that Biden supervised a global pay for play operation which peddled the office of the president and vice president as his personal brand. It states that Biden monetized the office of vice president and vpresident and received 27 million dollars from foreign individuals and entities in exchange for influence. It states that Biden sold the office of vice president and president in exchange for the success of his son's and his business partners' foreign business dealings. It states that Biden concealed these bribes as payments to shell companies and as loan repayments to him from his brother Jim Biden. It states that Biden received over eight million dollars from Democrat Party donors in exchange for his influence as vice president and president. It states that these bribes were disguised as loans, for which there is no proof or paperwork. It states that the State Energy Company of China gave the Biden family and its business associates eight million dollars in exchange for Joe Biden's influence as vice president. It states that the Ukraine energy company Burisma gave 5.5 million dollars to the Biden family and its business associates, plus a seat on the board of directors for Hunter at a salary of one million dollars per year, in exchange for Joe Biden's influence in getting the Ukraine government to drop its investigation of corruption at Burisma, which the government did. It states that Biden, through in person meetings, on the telephone and at dinner conversations, committed the most egregious acts of corruption in the history of the nation by placing a for sale sign in the offices of the vice president and president: "A congressional report, just as Democrats were starting meetings aimed as formally removing him from the party's 2024 presidential ticket amid riot fears in Chicago, has dealt the outgoing Joe Biden a massive blow: a determination that he is impeachable. 'First and foremost, overwhelming evidence demonstrates that President Biden participated in a conspiracy to monetize his office of public trust to enrich his family. Among other aspects of this conspiracy, the Biden family and their business associates received tens of millions of dollars from foreign interests by leading those interests to believe that such payments would provide them access to and influence with President Biden,' said the report. 'As vice president, President Biden actively participated in this conspiracy by, among other things, attending dinners with his family's foreign business partners and speaking to them by phone, often when being placed on speakerphone by Hunter Biden. For example, in 2014, Vice President Biden attended a dinner for Hunter Biden with Russian oligarch Yelena Baturina. Following the dinner, Baturina wired $3.5 million to Rosemont Seneca Thornton, a firm associated with Hunter Biden. Then, months later, as Hunter Biden and his business associates continued to solicit more money from Baturina, Vice President Biden participated in a phone call with Baturina and Hunter Biden where Vice President Biden told Baturina, 'you be good to my boy.' Moreover, President Biden knowingly participated in this conspiracy. Based on the totality of the evidence, it is inconceivable that President Biden did not understand that he was taking part in an effort to enrich his family by abusing his office of public trust.' The report, 291 pages, was assembled by three House committees that charged Biden profited from an influence peddling scheme to enrich not just himself but also members of his family through foreign business dealings beginning in 2014. 'The committees present this information to the House of Representatives for its evaluation and consideration of appropriate next steps,' the report said. According to Reuters, 'The House investigators say that Biden used his influence to benefit the business dealings of his son, Hunter Biden, with partners from Ukraine, China, Russia and other countries. Hunter Biden has been convicted on charges that he lied about his illegal drug use to buy a gun and is awaiting trial on charges of tax evasion, including an allegation that he accepted payments from a Romanian businessman who sought to influence US government agencies in connection with a criminal probe in Romania.' The committees who contributed to the fact finding about Biden's pay for play operations included the Judiciary, Oversight and Accountability. Their report concluded Biden 'committed impeachable offenses.' The report details evidence to establish President Biden abused his office and violated his oaths of office as Vice President by engaging in a conspiracy to peddle influence to enrich his family. 'Our impeachment inquiry shows conclusively that Joe Biden abused his public office for the private financial benefit of the Biden family and Biden business associates. The facts speak for themselves, and Democrats can no longer stretch the truth to cover for President Biden. As Democrats celebrate Joe Biden and crown Kamala Harris as his heir apparent this week, Americans should remember the reality of the Biden-Harris Administration: crime, chaos, and corruption,' said House Committee on the Judiciary Chairman Jim Jordan, R-Ohio. Representative James Comer, R-Ky., chief of Oversight, added, 'President Biden's legacy is marked by abuse of public office, corruption and obstruction. The evidence produced by our impeachment inquiry is the strongest case for impeachment of a sitting president the House of Representatives has ever investigated. Americans now know Joe Biden was the brand the Bidens sold around the world to enrich the Biden family, and Joe Biden knew of, benefited from, and participated in his family's influence peddling schemes. The entire Biden influence peddling model relied on Joe Biden's presence—at meetings, on the phone, or at dinners—to demonstrate his family members' influence over him, and he repeatedly provided it. Key findings included: From 2014 to the present, as part of a conspiracy to monetize Joe Biden's office of public trust to enrich the Biden family, Biden family members and their associates received over $27 million from foreign individuals or entities. In order to obscure the source of these funds, the Biden family and their associates set up shell companies to conceal these payments from scrutiny.' (Overwhelming Evidence: Blistering Congressional Report Says Biden Committed Impeachable Offenses by Bob Unruh). In 2014, America was struck by a rogue actor and began sinking to the bottom of the ocean of failed states. This year marked the commencement of a timeline of influence peddling which has endured up to the present day. Peddling his offices of vice president and president to the highest bidders in Romania, Ukraine, China and Russia, Joe Biden torpedoed the American ship of state in a ten year period, and in the wreckage of its freedom lies the wreckage of the West.

MARXISM TURNED LOOSE

Mass murder is the crime of killing a substantial number of innocent people. Swathes of human history have been pockmarked by mass murder and the blood and gore have sent the chill of fear coursing through homes, communities, nations and continents. The recent past has seen mass murder rear its monstrous head. In the September 11, 2001 suicide air attacks in New York City carried out by Al Qaeda, 3,000 people were killed. In the Camp Speicher Massacre in Tikrit, Iraq on June 12, 2014, carried out by the Islamic State, 1,000 people were killed. In the suicide bombings in Paris, France on November 13, 2015 carried out by the Islamic State, 130 people were killed. These gruesome statistics have been dwarfed and reduced to a statistical vanishing point by the crimes of a mass murderer active over a one hundred year period commencing at the dawn of the twentieth century. The toll of its victims has made it the greatest mass murderer in the history of mankind and sent the West plunging into a killing field and savage jungle. This murderer is a mass movement and religion born in the gutters of a mind in the nineteenth century. In the dark channels of Karl Marx's consciousness flowed the sewage of envy, hatred, revenge and discontent, and it brought forth a creed which would capture the hearts and minds of the masses. A half a century after Marx wrote his Communist Manifesto, the twentieth century dawned and his creed was elected by the masses in landslides, up ballot and down ballot, under tickets stamped progressivism, to rule the cultural, political, literary and academic establishment of the West. In addition to its status as the ruler of the Western establishment, this mass murderer known as Marxism spread outward across the world and established an empire called the Communist Bloc which, in the seven decades of its existence, claimed the lives of two hundred million people and submerged free nations in rivers of blood and chains of slavery the likes of which history had never seen before. Look at the character and crimes of this monster and see the Prince of Darkness at work on his proudest creation and project: universal human destruction in body and soul. Since its inception, Marxism has issued a series of proclamations which have defied the imagination of civilized people, and shocked the judgments of the balanced and the well adjusted, as they have rejected the truths of human sanity and common sense, and turned the moral universe upside down. Riding on waves of mass adulation, on rising breakers of failure and resentment, on ascending crests of those who feel burdened by free choice, and on bursting onrushes of those who seek to live in planned and regulated prisons as their model of a progressive society, Marxism has issued a series of proclamations declaring a jihad against the crowning glory of the West: the values championed by the Age of Enlightenment. Marxism has proclaimed over the past one hundred and fifty years of its existence that man is a purely material being controlled by the laws of matter, and man's free will is an illusion. It proclaims that all morality is relative to class interests and there are no universal notions of good and evil. It proclaims that man's machines and the modes of production create all thoughts and ideas and not the reverse, as affirmed by common sense, and man in fact has no thoughts or ideas because material processes cannot produce such things as minds. It proclaims that since the notion of mind is a relic from the discredited age of religion, individuals have no inherent value, dignity or worth. It proclaims that the primary unit of reality and standard of value in society is the mystical tribe which is superior to and apart from the individuals which comprise it. It proclaims that in addition to master Marx's original class tribes, called the proletariat and the bourgeois, there is a universe of other tribes, based on such attributes as race, gender, ethnicity, culture and sexual orientation, and there are as many different truths and realities as there are tribes which create them. It proclaims that in addition to these basic tribes, there are intersectional tribes or combinations of tribes, such a black women, black lesbians and black proletarians, and these as well serve as the creators of truth and reality, and the torches of revolution. It proclaims that a progressive society is ruled by social justice warriors who reject individual justice and self responsibility. It proclaims that an anticapitalist society alone can achieve the liberation of blacks. It proclaims that a progressive university is a course in black studies which teaches students the tenets of black supremacy and promotes black communist dictatorship. It proclaims that capitalism is a regime of white racism and the grievances of blacks can only be redressed by overthrowing the regime. It proclaims that a progressive society enforces the racist concepts of diversity and inclusion which demand a regime of race numbers, race quotas, race representations and the selection of people on the basis of race, and discrimination against whites, and justifies this racism as the highest form of fairness and equity. It proclaims that a progressive society enforces the tenets of critical race theory, which is called such because it is critical of the values of the Enlightenment, the values of reason and individualism, and promotes in their place mystical black tribalism and dictatorship. It proclaims that a progressive society is run by strict, active, committed Marxists whose only notion of political analysis is one based on the categories of gender, race and class and promotes the interests of women, nonwhites and the poor. It proclaims that capitalism is a regime of patriarchy, white supremacy, bias toward heterosexuals, and unfair discrimination against those who are ignorant, indolent and incompetent. It proclaims that a progressive university teaches American history as a history of capitalist exploitation and oppression of women, nonwhites, native tribes and the poor. It proclaims that America, the Enlightenment and the West are one and all white supremacist cultural and political projects. It proclaims that a progressive university is a Marxist studies program and black freedom movement which indoctrinates students on the necessity to overthrow liberal democracy by a revolution of black, Bolshevik, Hitlerian tyranny. It proclaims that a progressive society is a black fascist, national socialist dictatorship in which absolute power is concentrated into the hands of black fuhrers who have organized a holocaust against whites: "Former NFL second string quarterback and professional social justice warrior Colin Kaepernick now claims he had to team up with avowed Marxists to edit his new black studies anthology book because 'black liberation simply isn't possible under capitalism.' The national anthem protesting former player is promoting the new book, Our History Has Always Been Contraband: In Defense Of Black Studies, in which members of the grievance class rise to defend things like Diversity, Equity, Inclusion, Critical Race Theory, and the like. According to activist writer Indigo Olivier in The New Republic, Kaepernick worked with 'two of the most prominent black Marxists in the country,' and the writers in the book were anticapitalists. But Kaepernick explained his reasoning for working with hardcore Marxists. 'I've long admired Keeanga and Robin's work as well as their uncompromising political analysis and understanding that black liberation simply isn't possible under capitalism,' Kaepernick said, Olivier reported. 'I think the anthology makes this argument quite well, and I hope it challenges readers to see that racism is not white supremacy's only ingredient. White supremacy persists in part because of its relationship with capitalism, heteropatriarchy, ableism, and so on.' In her interview with the former San Francisco 49ers player, she insisted that Florida Governor Ron DeSantis 'doesn't want you to read' the sort of things in Kaepernick's book and asked his thoughts on the 'GOP's obsession with attacking Black Studies.' 'Black Studies and, more generally, a critical engagement with US history, threatens the white supremacist status quo,' Kaepernick bloviated. 'Any attempt to whitewash the past should actually be understood as a concrete step toward fascism and a desire to build a nation state where power is concentrated in the hands of a self anointed (read: white) few. That said, I wouldn't characterize GOP attacks on Black Studies as an obsession but rather as core to their white supremacist political project.' Kaepernick also insisted that white people must be exposed to his Marxist theories because it is an 'absolute necessity in order for white people to support the black freedom movement without unknowingly doing great harm in the process.' " (Colin Kaepernick Says He Partnered With Marxist Editors Because 'Black Liberation Simply Isn't Possible Under Capitalism' by Warner Todd Huston). Today's Marxism proclaims that a progressive university rejects the liberal doctrine of equal opportunity for all and is a system of racism and sexism directed against white males. It proclaims that a progressive university admits students on the basis of race and gender and gives preferential treatment to women, nonwhites and nonAsian applicants. It proclaims that a progressive university is run by gender, race and class dogmatists who enforce the Devil's gospel that whites, males and Asians must be excluded from admissions, without regard to who they personally are or to whether they are academically qualified, and solely because they are whites, males and Asians, and it exalts this institutional racism and sexism as the highest form of fairness and equity: "A class action lawsuit has been filed against six Texas medical schools for implementing sex and race preferences in their admissions processes. America First Legal (AFL), which filed the lawsuit on behalf of a would be medical student, argues that Texas medical schools use sex and race preferences to determine the admission of an applicant—even in instances where grade point averages (GPA) and Medical College Admission Test (MCAT) scores are lower for women or nonwhite and nonAsian applicants. 'Whites, Asians, and males bear the brunt of this egregious policy granting applicants with lesser academic credentials medical school admission over academically more qualified candidates on the basis of race and sex,' a press release for the lawsuit said. 'Universities and medical schools across America have been coopted by woke ideologues pushing the divisive 'equity' agenda.' " (Class Action Lawsuit Filed Against Six Texas Medical Schools Over Sex, Race Admissions Preferences by Breccan Thies). Over the past one hundred years, a crime wave has hit the world the likes of which mankind has never seen before. Its perpetrators are honors graduates of the school of Marx. Their names occupy page one in the world's annals of infamy. Lenin, Stalin, Mao, Pol Pot, Antifa, Black Lives Matter and MeToo. They are Marx's children and tribalist murderers on behalf of gender, race and class, and have wrought death and destruction in the name of women, nonwhites and the poor. They rule academia, the popular imagination and the institutions of the West. They have been killing people and ideas for a century and pushed civilization into extinction.

BRITAIN GUTTED AND DEMOLISHED

A bonfire is a large, controlled outdoor fire, ignited as part of a celebration. Bonfires have appeared in all cultures throughout history, celebrating good and evil causes. Celebrating the season of summer, bonfires take place across Europe, from Norway to Spain, at or near the summer solstice, the longest day of the year, when the Earth is maximally tilted toward the Sun. In 1933 across Hitler's Germany, bonfires were ignited in celebration of evil. As the flames lit up the skies of Berlin and cities across the nation, darkness descended on the lives of the people, and the brighter the flames grew, the blacker was the darkness. Books promoting the values of the Enlightenment and deemed to be politically incorrect by the new German masses and regime were removed from libraries and bookshops and burned en masse in open squares, to the wild shouts of onlookers. One hundred years after Hitler's book burnings incinerated German freedom and scandalized civilized people throughout the world, the book burners are back in business and the bonfires have returned, and they are present in the one nation in Europe in which they were least expected to be present. They are present in the nation which first codified free speech in the West, in the nation whose Speakers Corners were shining symbols of the right of the people to speak out in public as they see fit without fear of reprisals from the government. They are present in the nation which led the struggle of free Europe to defeat Hitler's tyranny. Listen to the leader of this nation voice the determination of his people to prevail in the struggle against the enemies of freedom: "We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills; we shall never surrender, and even if, which I do not for a moment believe, this island or a large part of it were subjugated and starving, then our Empire beyond the seas, armed and guarded by the British fleet, would carry on the struggle, until, in God's good time, the new world, with all its power and might, steps forth to the rescue and the liberation of the old." (June 4, 1940). When Winston Churchill delivered these inspiring words to the House of Commons during World War II, the Britain he led was not the Britain existing today, and had nothing in common with it beyond a name, a history and a geographical locale. The Britain existing in the twenty first century is morally, spiritually and culturally unrecognizable from the Britain existing in 1940 and is a vanishing shadow of its former self. Britain today has fallen under attack by the armies of the number one mass gutter religion of our time. A nation which had served as a beacon of hope and inspiration to the oppressed for a thousand years, which held a patent and trademark called Anglo-Saxon liberty and franchised it to savage cultures throughout the world, has fallen under attack by armies marching under alien flags decorated with red stars and hammer and sickles emerging from the sewers of envy, rage, resentment and discontent. A nation which had promulgated the first statutes and constitutions of freedom and championed like no other nation in Europe the values of the Enlightenment has fallen under attack by armies originating from Germany, spreading a black gospel transcribed from the Devil high atop the mountains of hate by the Devil's messenger, Karl Marx. The gospel is tribalism, the doctrine that the individual possesses existence, meaning and value insofar as he serves the tribe, and possesses no existence, meaning or value apart from the tribe or in and of himself. In the century and a half since Marx set forth his creed of tribalism involving the proletariat and the bourgeois, his children have created new tribes from their master's premise, and made the world tremble before a triple headed monster called Gender, Race and Class Politics. In the century and a half since Marx set forth his declaration of war against the Enlightenment, and set it forth in the only nation in Europe which would grant him the freedom to do so, grant him freedom of speech in the name of Anglo-Saxon liberty and the values of the Enlightenment, the monster Marx and his children created have repealed freedom of speech. In the bitterest of bitter ironies, Britain, the protector of Karl Marx's right of free speech in the mid nineteenth century, has under the influence of this right's greatest beneficiary, Karl Marx, reduced this right to a dead letter. In the twenty first century, Britain has been laid low by its Marxist mobs filling the ranks of the Conservative and Labor Parties, and they have transformed it into an ideological echo chamber sealed off from the light and air of truth, on whose walls bounce off poisonous radiation particles carrying Marxists slogans of feminists, blacks, gays, lesbians, transgenders, Muslims, illegal migrants and the poor. Britain in the twenty first century has constructed national firing squads blasting out the execution of free speech. It has descended into an authoritarian iron heel which has prohibited political beliefs opposing Marxism and put the oppositionists into jail. It has introduced a bill of rights which is the negation of a bill of rights because it does not overturn antifree speech directives handed down by cabinet ministers. It has prohibited antiMarxist speech in the name of combating misinformation, false communication, threats of violence, acts of self harm, cyberbullying and harassment, and protecting children from pornography. It has prohibited speech criticising Muslim gangs which kidnap, enslave, abuse and rape children, and punished those who have exposed these gangs with judicial gag orders, financial bankruptcy, and years in solitary confinement. It has prohibited speech criticising the human rights violations involved in mandatory covid vaccines, mandatory mask wearing, mandatory social distancing and mandatory lockdowns. It has prohibited antiMarxist speech in the name of combating public disorder, riotous processions, unlawful assemblies and the spread of race hatred. It has prohibited antiMarxist speech as worse than the commission of murder and punished it more severely than the commission of murder. It has prohibited antiMarxist speech in the name of combating incitement to violence. It has prohibited antiMarxist riots but not proMarxist riots. It has prohibited riots against illegal immigration but not riots in favor of illegal immigration. It has prohibited antiMarxist speech in the name of protecting public safety. It has prohibited speech criticising the Muslim takeover of the nation, Europe and the West. It has allowed Muslims to convulse the nation, advocate the extermination of Israel and Jews, prevent the flow of urban traffic, and burn the British flag in the name of freedom of speech and expression. It has prohibited speech criticising the existence of a separate, alien, unassimilated, antiWestern, Muslim nation existing within Britain. It has prohibited speech criticising Muslim migrants who bully and assault innocent people. It has forced to school officials to sign nondisclosure agreements preventing them from revealing to the public the existence of Muslim gangs and hoodlums operating in schools. It has enforced ideological lockstep on lives, careers and communities and placed them in the service of world Marxist and Islamist revolution: "The Founding Fathers gave America a gift when they wrote the Constitution. By ensuring the rights of all Americans are protected and valued, the US remains to this day, a beacon of hope and freedom. The United Kingdom, on the other hand, is nose diving into authoritarianism after a plethora of anti free speech laws, geared towards citizens with opposing political beliefs, is putting dissidents into prison. In 2022, then Prime Minister Boris Johnson introduced a new 'bill of rights' which was presented to the public in such a way to make it appear to protect the free speech of British citizens. However, the bill contained a clause—the laws created by ministers would be exempt, it would not protect the people from threats posed by the government, and would in actual fact, extinguish government accountability. Online threats of violence, encouraging self harm, and transmitting deep fake pornography became illegal in 2023, when the UK government passed another controversial law, the Online Safety Act, which was pitched as a way to protect children from pornography, cyberbullying, and harassment. However, the act created the new offense of 'false communication,' which would include sharing any information the government deems 'misinformation.' Such 'misinformation' would include sharing anything negative surrounding Muslim grooming gangs or the COVID–19 pandemic, its subsequent vaccines, and its lockdowns. Both laws ride on the back of the Public Order Act 1986, which is 'an act to abolish the common law offenses of riot, rout, unlawful assembly and affray and certain statutory offenses relating to public order; to create new offenses relating to public order; to control public processions and assemblies; to control the stirring up of racial hatred.' According to a report from the National Review, Britain is in the grip of two-tier policing, and a two-tier justice system. Online 'rightwing' social media users accused of 'publishing online material intended to stir racial hatred,' have been sentenced to prison terms of three years. Meanwhile, a man who murdered a 14 year old boy with a machete, received a 6 month sentence. In late July, an unprovoked knife attack that killed three young girls and injured eight others at a dance class in Southport, England, sparked riots against immigration, which resulted in the arrest of over 1,000 people. According to the BBC, 139 individuals received an immediate sentence, with an average prison term of two years. While the guise of public safety has been used in the passing of these laws, underneath they are designed to silence dissent, squash freedom of expression, and eliminate those who might complain about anything the government does, including the Islamic takeover which has become prevalent over the past decade in the UK, and Europe." (Rest In Peace: Freedom Of Speech In Major Nation Is Officially Dead by Andrew Powell). The twenty first century has seen a bonfire rage in Britain, fueled by its ancient, illustrious human rights documents. They are all in the fire, the Magna Carta, the writ of habeas corpus, the Petition of Right, the Bill of Rights, the Claim of Rights, and John Locke's Two Treatises Of Government, all in the depths of the heat and light, making the flames leap into the heavens, blackening the Earth beneath them and silencing the ancient British right of free speech. They were tossed into the national pit by the voices and expressions of the new British masses and establishment. They were tossed in by the communists and fascists who have pushed the nation into extinction.

AUSCHWITZ REPURPOSED FOR WHITES

If international finance Jewry inside and outside Europe should succeed in plunging the nations once more into a world war, the result will be not the Bolshevization of the earth and thereby the victory of Jewry, but the annihilation of the Jewish race in Europe. January 30, 1939. German Fuhrer Adolf Hitler speaks to the Reichstag and delivers his best known speech. The annihilation of "international finance Jewry": Hitler reveals his Marxist roots in his plan and prophecy of a global, anticapitalist, class war of extermination directed against Jews. Above all I charge the leaders of the nation and those under them to scrupulous observance of the laws of race and to merciless opposition to the universal poisoner of all peoples, international Jewry. April 29, 1945. Hitler's last will and testament, dictated and signed in the Fuhrerbunker one day before he committed suicide. In the intervening six years, a holocaust was perpetrated which saw the murder of ninety percent of Poland's Jews and two thirds of Europe's Jews, claiming a total of six million lives. Less than a century after the Third Reich's Marxist based slaughter of a group of people deemed to represent the capitalist class, the race haters are back in business, again fueled by Marxism, with a new race to slaughter. The natural, inevitable, logical metastasis of original Marxism into a triple headed tribalist monster called Gender, Race and Class Politics in the mid twentieth century brought forth a movement of black supremacy which has gained speed and force in the twenty first century and commenced a holocaust against whites. In the new campaign, Hitler's Jewish victims have been replaced by whites, while the Marxist notions and premises have remained the same. Hitler's race Marxism, in which an Aryan master race was declared to be at war with a capitalist Jewish subhuman race, and to possess the right to exterminate it, has been resurrected with the names and faces changed. In the new version of race Marxism, a black master race is declared to be at war with a capitalist white subhuman race and to possess the right to exterminate it. This terrifying new development, this new face of Hitler's creed, has engulfed the twenty first century in a nightmare and left its claw prints in every home, family, school and office in the West. The twenty first century heirs and successors of Hitler's national socialists have issued a series of proclamations making race

Marxism an expression of black power and the death rattle of civilization. The new Hitlerites proclaim that a progressive society is ruled by the religion of antiwhite racism. They proclaim that a progressive society shuts the door on whites and relegates them to the bottom rungs of subaltern existence. They proclaim that a progressive society is an antiwhite, antiliberal, antiEnlightenment, antiWestern, antiAmerican jungle of black revolutionary politics. They proclaim that a progressive society is an intolerant society ineradicably attached to the doctrine of racism, which hates whites with a rabid, malarial fever. They proclaim that a progressive society see whites for what they are and sees them as evil, ignorant, violent, oppressive demons. They proclaim that a progressive society is a left wing society which condemns right wing people who fight for the rights, freedoms, dignity and worth of the individual, people led in a national movement organized by Donald Trump, and sentences them to death. They proclaim that the highest forms of political analysis, expertise and commentary are those which reject individual existence and affirm mystical tribes as the primary units of reality and standards of value. They proclaim that a progressive society is a black feminist society and a black communist society. They proclaim that a progressive society fuels the flames of Marxist agitation and propaganda and condemns capitalism as a regime of white supremacy. They proclaim that a progressive society condemns everything whites say and do, and condemns them when they exalt the freedom of the individual, when they fight on the streets for the cause of freedom, and when they run for public office on a platform of freedom. They proclaim that whites are racially inferior to blacks and are racial poisoners of blacks and must be prevented from having children and overrunning society. They proclaim that a progressive news media hands out megaphones and platforms to Marxist incendiaries. They proclaim that a progressive society promotes a rising tide of anger and racism toward whites and seeks to kill them whenever and wherever they catch them. They proclaim that a progressive society is alert to the racial injustice and discrimination perpetrated against blacks by the capitalist system and has overthrown the system. They proclaim that a progressive society is actuated by a program to eradicate whites by means of mass immigration of nonwhites, the sterilization of whites and the outright killing of whites. They proclaim that a progressive society values and promotes the reproduction of human life so long as it is black life. They proclaim that a progressive society cherishes families and children so long as they are black families and black children. They proclaim that a progressive society condemns nuclear families as instruments of white, heterosexual, patriarchal oppression and promotes single parent black families headed by gays or lesbians. They proclaim that a progressive society is a subversive society whose target is the liberal traditions and institutions, the structures of racial equality and equal protection under the law, which are the crowning glory of Western civilization: "As the presidential election looms ever larger on the horizon, the desperate left, saddled with a catastrophe of a candidate, is doubling down on the only tired old strategy it has, which is smearing their political opponents as racist—exposing their own antiwhite racism in the process. First, documentary propagandist Michael Moore ecstatically asserted in recent blog post that under a presidential administration of mixed race (not black) Kamala Harris, white America 'will be shown the door.' What does that even mean? How would that play out? It's unclear, but what is clear is that the left and its favorite filmmaker Michael Moore revel in a cultural milieu they created which reeks of open, antiwhite racism. Moore, author of a book titled Stupid White Men, has long been one of the most rabidly outspoken antiwhite and antiAmerican bigots among our cultural elites. Indeed, it's the foundation for his entire career. And yet the left insists relentlessly that it is the right that is irredeemably racist. Imagine the media conflagration that would ensue if a right wing pundit crowed that under a Trump presidency, black America would be 'shown the door.' But the left has constructed a culture in which it is socially acceptable to demonize white people as the fount of all evil and oppression. An even more egregious example of antiwhite bigotry exhibited by the left in the last couple of days was a jaw droppingly stupid smear of Trump's vice presidential running mate JD Vance from MSNBC 'political analyst' Molly Jong-Fast. What is her background in political analysis? Her parents are feminist novelist Erica Jong and the son of novelist and communist Howard Fast; Molly made sure to exploit both of those left wing reputations by hyphenating her last name. Those are her journalistic credentials. Even The New York Times acknowledges that the Bennington College liberal arts major is a 'privileged' amateur. In a profile titled How Molly Jong Fast Tweeted Her Way To Liberal Media Stardom, the Times observes, 'She wasn't a political expert. But her Trump era angst found a following among Democrats.' It adds, 'Her rise is a testament to the power of social media, the increasingly blurred lines between armchair pundits and professional commentators, and the opportunism of writers, on the right and the left, who used Donald Trump's presidency to reinvent themselves.' So Jong-Fast is not a political analyst but an anti-Trump ideologue. That explains why she seized the opportunity during an appearance on the Morning Joe show on Tuesday to demonize Vance. Jong-Fast was asked to respond to Vance's viral comments about pushing for more family supporting policies against the 'childless cat ladies' of the left. The question was in the context of a recent Pew survey which noted a sharp spike in the number of US adults who don't want children. 'What's interesting is that this is this natalism that comes from an authoritarian playbook, right? That there need to be more white children, right? That's the idea,' Jong-Fast declared. Really? That's the idea? Where is her evidence for this ugly assertion that Vance and other 'natalists' are calling only for more white children? When did he ever say such a thing? You would think a so-called political analyst would be informed enough to know that Vance is married to the daughter of Indian immigrants, and they have three biracial children. You would also think that a so-called political analyst would be honest enough to ask herself if a white man who marries a nonwhite woman and has a larger than average number of biracial children could legitimately be defined as a white supremacist. But Molly Jong-Fast is not a serious political analyst; she is a leftwing propagandist and hateful smear merchant, which explains her indefensible lie that Vance is a white supremacist. But a creepily gesticulating Jong-Fast (see the video) wasn't done piling on the hateful accusations: 'This is about great replacement theory racism, right? This is what this is,' she continued, with zero pushback from the host (because Morning Joe is not a program of serious political analysis; it is a propaganda outlet for left wing mental defectives). 'So don't misunderstand it for [Vance] wanting more children. He wants a certain kind of racist thing.' Shameful. And slanderous. Vance should demand an apology and retraction from Jong-Fast and Morning Joe, and sue if he doesn't get them." (The Left Ramps Up Its AntiWhite Bigotry by Mark Tapson). On January 20, 1942, in the Berlin suburb of Wannsee, at 58 Am Grossen Wannsee, a conference was held of senior government officials of Hitler's Germany. Called by Reinhard Heydrich, director of the Reich Security Main Office, the conference sought to ensure the cooperation of all sectors of the national government in the implementation of the Final Solution of the Jewish Question, in which the Jews of German occupied Europe would be deported to Poland and killed. The Wannsee villa overlooked Lake Wannsee, in whose reflection the Devil and his Grim Reaper looked back at the conference members and escorted them and their nation into the depths of Hell. In the twenty first century, the Wannsee Conference has been reassembled in every nation in the West and given a new task to reflect the exigencies of the times. The race Marxists in Hitler's Germany who planned and organized the mass murder of Jews have been given a new lease on life. They have become the architects of the astounding, imagination defying extermination of the white race.

TYRANNY MUST DIE

"If there is no other way to escape from such distress, then it is morally permitted, indeed, necessary, to kill the one who threatens to drag us and our entire people into a state of inhumanity." Thus spoke Carlo Schmid, renowned German politician, among the authors of the nation's postwar Basic Law adopted in 1949, referring to the necessity of assassinating tyrants such as Hitler who cannot be removed peacefully from office. A tyranny cannot be removed peacefully from power for one of two reasons. It cannot be removed because it is backed by an armed force acting against the wishes of a majority which seeks to remove it, or because the majority itself supports it and the majority will not change its mind. Over the past one hundred years, the nations of the West have by peaceful, democratic means installed tyranny into power and the majorities in these nations have shown themselves irrevocably wedded to them. In election after election, in landslide after landslide, up ballot and down ballot, at all levels of government, under tickets stamped progressivism, the majorities have elected to power the number one mass gutter religion of our time and made it immune from removal by peaceful, democratic means. Marxism was first elected to power in the West at the dawn of the twentieth century and has been in power continuously since that time. The twenty first century has seen electoral gains made by another totalitarian movement, called the Christian Right, but over the past century, Marxism, in its original version together with its race and gender offshoots, its fearsome progeny including Hitler's swastika socialism, black power socialism, gender ideology, radical feminism, and an alliance with Islam, has served to define the Western political establishment and remove it permanently from the values of the Enlightenment which for decades had been exalted as the crowning glories of the West. Wherever there is a welfare state, wherever there are condemnations of liberal democracy as exploitative and oppressive, wherever there are words of admiration and defense given to nonWestern cultures and their savage wastelands, wherever there are agitations of gender, race and class politics, there the long shadow of Marxism is cast and there the face of the Western establishment stands revealed. Democratically elected and greeted by standing ovations of the majority, the establishment cannot be removed from office by democratic means because the religion founded by Karl Marx has captured the hearts and minds of the majority in a way the values of the Enlightenment once did. In the twentieth century, the majority rejected the rule of reason exalted by the Enlightenment and embraced the rule of religion, and an age of second religiousness commenced in the West which marked a return to the Dark Ages from whence the West emerged. In this new Dark Ages, the names and faces have changed while the rejection of reason has remained the same. The names and faces are now those of Marxism. Look at the West today and see what the majority has wrought and see the wreckage of a civilization which killed itself. See the descent into subterranean lands where the enemies freedom dwell and make plans for world revolution. See a series of proclamations issued by the establishment which reveal the multifarious, inhuman forms of a religion championing tribalism, emerging from the sewers of a German mind granted refuge in Britain in the nineteenth century. The establishment proclaims that a progressive society grants asylum to migrant scum with knives in their hands and murder in their hearts. It proclaims that a progressive society revokes deportation orders given to illegal aliens. It proclaims that a progressive society grants refuge to terrorists killing under the banners of Islam. It proclaims that a progressive society grants protection and extraprotection to the sworn enemies of the West shouting Allahu Akbar! as they kill helter skelter. It proclaims that a progressive society holds festivals of diversity which exalt Marxist women, Marxist blacks, Marxist gays, Marxist lesbians, Marxist transgenders, Marxist Muslims and the Marxist poor, and vow to exterminate successful, white, heterosexual, nonMuslim males who fight for the cause of freedom. It proclaims that a progressive society legalizes mass murder committed by Muslims. It proclaims that a progressive society is a stabbing society flowing with rivers of blood unleashed by the hands of unvetted immigrants. It proclaims that a progressive society establishes refugee centers as fronts for Muslim revolutionaries. It proclaims that a progressive society sets up police forces and radar tracking devices to capture and imprison all those opposed to the Muslim subversion of free institutions. It proclaims that a progressive society is an Islamic State targeting the infidel, rational human existence, for total destruction. It proclaims that a progressive society grants residence to the knifemen of the Prophet and encourages them to slash their victims' throats before they behead them. It proclaims that a progressive society is a leftist coalition of Marxists, neoMarxists, race Marxists, gender Marxists and old time Muslims confronting a common enemy, the system of the Enlightenment, and determined to overthrow it. It proclaims that a progressive society rejects Western freedom and is ruled in spirit and soul from Syria and

Afghanistan. It proclaims that a progressive society opens its gates to mass migration from Africa and the Middle East, elects a government of Marxists and Islamists, and plunges the West into the greatest crisis in its history: "The Syrian asylum seeker suspected of killing three and injuring several others at a 'festival of diversity' in Germany on Friday reportedly had a deportation order last year, but authorities failed to remove him from the country. According to information obtained by the by German paper of record Die Welt, 26 year old Issa Al H, the Syrian asylum seeker who surrendered himself to police on Saturday after the mass stabbing in Solingen, was supposed to be deported in 2023. The suspected terrorist had a removal date scheduled to have him sent to Bulgaria, the country where he first entered the European Union, and therefore, under the Dublin regulations, the country where he should have had his asylum claims processed. However, following his deportation order, Issa Al H disappeared from his residence in the Western German city of Paderborn. He reappeared several months later, but rather than removing him, he was reportedly granted 'subsidiary protection' for people from countries with civil wars and transferred to a refugee center in Solingen, where Friday's attack took place. While the suspect was apparently not on the radar of police for extremist leanings, the so-called Islamic State (ISIS) claimed responsibility for the attack in Solingen, claiming that it was intended as an act of revenge against Christians for 'Muslims in Palestine and around elsewhere.' The alleged knifeman is also reported to have shouted out the jihadist war cry Allahu Akbar! during Friday's attack on the diversity festival, which saw three people killed and eight others injured, including four with life threatening wounds. The suspected terrorist is said to have specifically targeted the necks of his victims. The attack has led to increased pressure on the leftist government coalition of Chancellor Olaf Scholz to crack down on mass migration and ramp up deportations. The leader of the center right Christian Democratic Union (CDU) party, Friedrich Merz, called for the government to begin deportations to Syria and Afghanistan, which have been halted over safety concerns, and to stop accepting asylum seekers from the countries. 'It's enough,' Merz wrote, saying: 'After the terrorist act in Solingen, it should now be finally clear: it is not the knives that are the problem, but the people who run around with them. In the majority of cases, these are refugees, in the majority of the deeds, there were Islamist motives behind them.' The CDU leader also called on the government to immediately revoke residence status for any alleged asylum seeker who travels back to their home country after it was revealed that many so-called refugees from Afghanistan had vacationed in their homeland despite supposedly needing asylum from the country. However, while the center-right party has been out of power since the end of 2021, some have still cast blame on the party given its role, under former leader Angela Merkel, for 'opening the gates' to mass migration from the Middle East and Africa in 2015 and sparking the Europe Migrant Crisis. A sign placed at the memorial in Solingen sarcastically quipped, 'Thank you, Angela Merkel Party Greens.' " (Germany Mass Stabbing Suspect Had Deportation Order But Was Not Removed: Report by Kurt Zindulka). Look at the West today and see the rejection of one hundred years of science establishing the existence of genes, chromosomes and DNA. See the rejection of the discovery that gender is determined by instructions contained in genes and cannot be changed. See the proclamation that gender can be changed by human action or belief, males can be transformed into females and females can be transformed into males, and transgender females are as real as biological females and transgender males are as real as biological males. See the proclamation that a progressive society grants legal recognition to psychotics who claim to be members of the opposite sex, and grants to them all the rights and protections enjoyed by members of that sex, in the name of equality, nondiscrimination and the right of a psychotic to live authentically, proudly and to be himself or herself. See the proclamation that those who affirm the existence of genes, reject the religion of transgenderism, and affirm that so-called transgender people must be treated as members of their biological sex, are haters and bigots and must be evicted from society: "For generations, LGBTQI+ Americans have summoned the courage to live authentically and proudly, even when it meant putting their lives and livelihoods at risk. LGBTQI+ Americans continue to inspire and bring hope to all people seeking a life true to who they are, and to enrich every aspect of American life. But the fight for equality is far from over, as the LGBTQI+ community continues to face attacks and bigotry in states across the country. Democrats are committed to defending LGBTQI+ rights. President Biden is committed to leading the most proequality Administration in history. He reversed Trump's unAmerican ban on transgender service members. On Day One of his presidency, he signed a historic executive order extending federal nondiscrimination protections to LGBTQI+ people, and he signed executive orders strengthening civil rights protections in housing, employment, health care, education, and the justice system. He pardoned service members who had been discharged for being themselves." (Democratic Party 2024 Platform). These men knew that there was only a slight hope of winning, but that they still had to try. They tried in the larger hope that their act, even if it should fail, would serve as a beacon to the future. Thus spoke world famous German writer Carl Zuckmayer referring to the would be assassins of Hitler, military officers led by Claus Schenk Graf von Stauffenberg, who sought to carry out their plan on July 20, 1944. Sic semper tyrannis! Thus always to tyrants! The famous words first uttered by Marcus Junius Brutus after he assassinated the tyrant Julius Caesar on March 15, 44 BC. These words have been the rallying cry of freedom fighters throughout history in their violent struggles against abuses of power which cannot be redressed by peaceful, democratic means. Freedom fighters have understood that assassination attempts, even if unsuccessful, are torches of glory which light up the future and give it promise and hope.

ENGLISH SYLLABUS: MARXISM

A bulldozer is a large, heavy motorized vehicle with a metal blade at the front for pushing material. Bulldozers push soil, sand, snow, rubble and rock. They are indispensable in construction, mining, quarrying, agriculture and heavy industry. They travel on continuous tracks and are equipped with large hooks at the back to loosen dense, impacted material. The twentieth century saw the appearance of the largest, most powerful bulldozers in the history of mankind. These were bulldozers which pushed, not material things, but the thoughts, creations, canons and culture of free people, and pushed them into massive pits, where they were left to rot and decay. These bulldozers were manufactured in a factory built in the nineteenth century by a master demolitionist, the greatest demolitionist in history, named Karl Marx. Rejecting the values of the Enlightenment, rejecting the achievements of reason, science, sanity and liberal order which had made that age the crowning glory of the West, rejecting everything cherished and held dear by civilized people throughout history, Marx transcribed the revelation he received high atop the mountains of hate from the Prince of Darkness. In the quiet, sedate Reading Room of the British Museum, the mark and epitome of civilized existence, he wrote down the creed vouchsafed to him by his master and set forth plans for a factory which would construct the bulldozers of civilization demanded by his creed. His creed exalted mysticism, tribalism and the party of the proletariat, the party of the envious, the discontented and the disaffected for whom freedom was burden and self responsibility an unbearable weight, and his creed would become the number mass gutter religion in the West. His factories appeared soon after the publication of his dark classic The Communist Manifesto, but his creed took off in massive waves of popularity in the twentieth century, spread far and wide across the East, and in factories constructed in Russia and China, mass produced bulldozers against the West. Driven by a radicalized establishment cheered on by the masses, fleets of bulldozers soon appeared on the scene in every nation of the free world and commenced the demolition work against the arts and humanities envisioned by Marx. The bulldozers rolled into universities from San Diego to Spain and razed the embodiments of high culture literature to the ground. The bulldozers rumbled and roared and issued a series of proclamations which sent the chill of fear coursing through the souls of civilized people. The demolition work continued unabated for a century and in the new millennium, the work is complete. Universities have been walled up and sealed into ideological echo chambers; literary studies programs have been removed from the high shelves of nonpartisanship and relocated to the basements of Marxist beerhall agitation; and a triple headed Marxist monster, breathing the fires of three tribal religions emanating from the Devil's prophet Marx, the fires of gender, race and class politics, has incinerated the great books of the Western world. Listen to the proclamations of the Marxist literary establishment broadcast over the past one hundred years and see the curtain lowered on the human essentialism, universalism and freedom which defined the West's Enlightenment and have defined successful, moral civilizations throughout history. The establishment proclaims that a progressive English department teaches students that capitalism is a regime of imperialism, colonialism and conspiracy ranged against the working class. It proclaims that a progressive English department is run by the people's comrades and is prolabor, procommunist, prostrike and prorevolution. It proclaims that a progressive English department prohibits the study of Ovid's Metamorphoses on the grounds that it depicts rape in a politically incorrect manner. It proclaims that a progressive English department has replaced the study of the masterpieces of Western literature with a study of the masterpieces of Marxist literature of gender, race and class. It proclaims that the only legitimate works of literature are those which preach radical feminism, black racism and proletarian revolution. It proclaims that a progressive English department is run by Marxist pseudoscholars who have prohibited the study of rational, liberal humanism. It proclaims that the only legitimate literary theory is Marxist theory which analyses literary texts from the standpoint of gender, race and class. It proclaims that a progressive English department preaches Marxism, Islam, anticapitalism and antisemitism in all its texts and student assignments. It proclaims that a progressive English department offers courses in Marxism, Leninism, the Soviet Union and far left hate ideologies and courses in nothing else. It proclaims that progressive literature promotes grievances against capitalism, and Marxist revolution as the means to redress them. It proclaims that the only progressive literature is extremist literature, political literature, ideological literature, hate literature, antiliberal literature, literature composed by hands of evil, literature springing from the moral underground of man, literature with an agenda of revolution and destruction, literature promoting the creeds of Karl Marx and his postEnlightenment progeny such as Michel Foucault, Judith Butler and Edward Said, literature which now occupies the mainstream of the West during the twilight stages of civilization: "I scanned the first message I received in my Columbia University MA English group chat. Bookmarking my copy of Ayn Rand's We the Living, a novel about the ills of post revolutionary Russia, I recoiled. Reviewing the text, sent by a researcher of 'imperial conspiracy' in a 'postcolonial context,' I felt my vision blurring. This couldn't be real. 'Comrades. There will be a Union training about the upcoming strike authorization vote in March. English is amongst the biggest (and most left leaning and prolabor) departments, so we need you trained up and up to speed for the strike we might have end of Spring!' The researcher had inadvertently verbalized the plague that had set over English departments across the nation: English is amongst the most left leaning and prolabor departments. From the moment I stepped foot on campus to study English Literature at Columbia University, I felt that something was amiss. My freshman year of college, for instance, the university had removed Ovid's Metamorphoses from an introductory freshman literature course called Masterpieces Of Western Literature because several students had complained about its 'graphic'—the work is far from graphic—depictions of rape. The eighteen year old literature nerd in me couldn't help but balk: the Metamorphoses, the largest Ancient collection of Greco-Roman myths in a single text, is arguably one of the most important works to the foundation of the Western canon. Yet, after speaking with several professors about this decision, I grew disheartened. 'Just because the Metamorphoses is on the syllabus,' one such professor remarked, 'does not mean that it is a valuable piece of literature.' The work that my favorite poet, TS Eliot, alludes to several times throughout his monumental twentieth century poem, The Waste Land, was not important? I did not know what these professors were on—crack?—but I intended to find out. Over the next four years, I grew increasingly disheartened by the volume of literary theory assigned throughout my English classes. I had arrived at Columbia intending to become a humanistic scholar, which is what was advertised to me during my application process. Yet, I found the vast majority of critical theory readings not only biased but also far off the mark: I was asked to understand Jane Austen's early nineteenth century novel Mansfield Park under the twentieth century postcolonial lens of the notorious antisemite Edward Said, and I was fed Karl Marx in nine out of the sixteen literature courses that I took during my time as an undergraduate student. Each winter break, I'd update my parents, who are Soviet expats who had come to America on refugee status, on every new Marxist text we had been assigned. In response, they'd nearly fly off their chairs, raising their voices in fulmination: 'We did not leave that oppressive regime founded on Marxist-Leninist values just so that our daughter would be reading Marx for breakfast!' As I prepared myself for graduate English applications, vowing to restore literary study back to its proper foundations—to explore the humanistic tradition—I wondered why English literature had become so forcefully seized by far left ideologues. While one explanation might be that English professors, who work long hours and feel undercompensated for the value that they bring, are turning to Marxism to voice their grievances, the history of Marxism in the academy hits even deeper. A New York Times piece from the late 1980s chronicles the 'mainstreaming of Marxism' in the academy and argues that while Marxism had fallen out of vogue in terms of practical application—likely due to the imminent failure of the Soviet Union at the time—it has been coopted in 'the abstract world of literary criticism.' Where Marxists did not find a voice politically, they found it in the study of literature—a field so subjective that no one could call out these extremist takes as erroneous. It is no wonder that an increasing number of faculty members now identify as far left and that these lopsided ideologies have found a home in English departments nationwide. As a daughter of Soviet immigrants who personally suffered under Marxism, I understand the pitfalls of this noxious ideology and have been disheartened to see it prevail in the study of English literature. Yet while Marxist ideologues have indeed annexed literature, it doesn't have to continue this way. Throughout my years as a reader and literary scholar, I have witnessed countless works imprint themselves on my psyche as I have grown into a richer human being." (Why We Should Free Literary Study From Marxist Proponents by Liza Libes). In the twenty first century, university English departments throughout the West have been stricken by an infectious disease caused by a bacterium. The disease is a mass epidemic of cultural degeneration and the bacterium is Marxism. Proclaiming that the purpose of literature is to promote Marxism in its gender, race and class varieties, and that literature is a work of art which teaches in the form of stories our moral obligation to subvert free institutions, the bacterium has blackened literary studies and rendered them unrecognizable.

BEDLAM

On Monks Orchard Road, in Beckenham, London, is an institution which gave a word to the English language. Founded in 1247, it has had a famous history. It was the first mental hospital in Britain and its name was for centuries synonymous with horror, uproar and confusion. The morbid life behind its walls was described by William Gregory, Lord Mayor of London, in 1450: "A Church of Our Lady is named Bedlam. And in that place are found many men fallen out of their wits. And full honestly they are kept in that place until they are restored into their wits and health again. And some abide therein for ever, for they are fallen so much out of themselves that it is incurable unto man." (Management And Mismanagement At Bedlam, 1547-1633 by Patricia Allderidge). The name is bedlam and it houses those who have bid farewell to reality and descended into snake pits of raging insanity. Civilized people studying Bedlam have seen it as frightful metaphor for the culture in which they live. Cultures are defined by the philosophies they embrace, and Europe over the past three thousand years has been host to two cultures whose philosophies are as opposed to each other as the darkness of hell is opposed to the light of noonday. The first culture to appear on the scene was Greco-Roman culture, founded in Southern Europe in the eighth century BC at the time of Homer. It was founded in sunlit lands and exemplified the sunlit world of human sanity. Its prime symbol was Apollo, the Classical god par excellence, symbol of reason and order. Apollonian culture affirmed what sane people throughout history have affirmed, affirmed as something beyond all doubt, discussion or debate, and affirmed as plain and as self evident as the noonday Sun. They affirmed what no sane person could ever doubt, discuss, debate or question in any manner. They affirmed the existence of physical objects and affirmed that when man perceives, this existence is what he perceives. Listen to the preeminent philosopher of Apollonian culture affirm that existence physically exists or else nothing whatever exists. Listen to Aristotle affirm that when we perceive, we perceive physical objects, that an act of perception held to perceive nothing beyond itself is a contradiction in terms, and that perception does not start or actualize itself, anymore than a fire starts itself or that which is potentially combustible bursts into flames without the action of an external agent. Listen to Aristotle affirm that the doctrine of subjectivism, the doctrine that man does not perceive physical objects but only his own mental contents, is the doctrine that man is blind because he has eyes, and is incoherent and insane: "Here arises a problem: why do we not perceive the senses themselves as well as the external objects of sense, or why without the stimulation of external objects do they not produce perception, seeing that they contain in themselves fire, earth, and all the other elements, which are objects of perception? It is clear that what perceives is only potentially, not actually. The power of perception is parallel to what is combustible, for the power never ignites itself spontaneously but requires an agent which has the power of starting ignition; otherwise it could have set itself on fire, and would not have needed actual fire to set it ablaze." (On The Soul by Aristotle, Book II, Chapter 5). Around 1000 AD, centuries after Apollonian culture descended into ruination through its rejection of the values its prime symbol represented, another culture arose in Europe. It arose at the opposite end of the continent, in the dark, twilight plains and forests of Northern Europe, and created a picture of reality born of mental darkness. It was the antithesis of noonday and sanity. The prime symbol of this new, northern culture of the West is Faust. Johann Georg Faust, a German scholar dissatisfied with his life, makes a pact with the Devil at a crossroads, and exchanges his reason and sanity for infinite will, power, experience and pleasure. Rejecting what no sane people in history ever doubted, debated, discussed or questioned in any manner, rejecting the existence of physical objects, the new Faustian culture of the West exalted infinite subjectivity and embodied a mind out of control and burning up in a white hot fever, which placed reality in its crosshairs. In this inconceivable, unthinkable, imagination defying Faustian culture of the West, civilized people have seen the life of Bedlam writ large and seen an inexorable course of civilizational destruction. They have examined the philosophies ruling the West since its inception and have seen expressed in academic treatises and essays the symptoms of schizophrenia which have afflicted benighted souls for thousands of years. They have seen these symptoms, these hallucinations, delusions and acts of withdrawal, elevated into formal academic systems, and seen a civilization which through its philosophers has declared war on the human mind. They have turned the pages of histories of Western philosophy and seen in chapter after chapter, in volume after volume, in philosophy after philosophy, a denial of the existence of physical objects and a withdrawal of the mind from the perception of reality. They have seen the preeminent philosophers of the West stationed in a rogues' gallery of mental subversives disgracing the glittering achievements of Western science and technology. They have read every major philosopher in the West and seen the same evil story of philosophic dementia. This story is epitomized in the doctrine of the number one philosopher in the West, who played the role in his Faustian culture which Aristotle played in Apollonian culture: the voice of the intellectual form and essence of the culture. Listen to Aristotle's counterpart in the West set forth the aim of his thought in the following: "I have found it necessary to deny knowledge in order to make room for faith." (Critique Of Pure Reason by Immanuel Kant). To deny knowledge. The eternal cry of the schizophrenic since time immemorial. To deny knowledge. The rallying cry of Faustians in their crusade to demolish the traditions and institutions of reason and sanity which set man apart from animals and to make human society descend into the savage wastelands of religion. Listen to

Immanuel Kant proclaim that the world of perception is a universal delusion and has no relation to things as they are in themselves. Listen to Kant proclaim that all perception is subjective perception and space and time have no existence outside the mind: "I understand by the idealism of appearances the doctrine that they are all together to be regarded as mere subjective representations and not things in themselves, and accordingly that time and space are only subjective forms of perception and not determinations given for themselves or conditions of objects as things in themselves. To this idealism is opposed realism, which regards space and time as something given in themselves (independent of our perception)." (Critique Of Pure Reason by Immanuel Kant). Listen to Kant proclaim that objects which are nonphysical, nonspatial and nontemporal are nonperceivable but this nonperceivability does not prove they cannot exist, because all perception is processed perception, colored perception, distorted perception, filtered perception, subjective perception and is an act of nonperception, and man is blind because he has eyes, and is blind every time sees and every time his eyes function. Listen to Kant proclaim that all knowledge is acquired independently of experience by a process of mental navel gazing. Listen to him proclaim that knowledge is acquired apriori because the power or potentiality to perceive necessarily exists prior to any actual perception of objects. Therefore this power or potentiality produces fixed, apriori forms implanted in the mind, and space and time are thus apriori constructs and are not discovered in reality: "Since then the power of the subject, its capacity to perceive objects, must necessarily precede all perceptions of these objects, it can readily be understood how space and time can be given prior to all actual perceptions, and so exist in the mind apriori." (Critique Of Pure Reason by Immanuel Kant). Listen to Kant proclaim, on the basis of the false premise that knowledge is acquired apriori and not by any process of induction or abstraction from the data of experience, that all knowledge is therefore subjective because based on fixed, implanted, internal spatial and temporal forms which cannot be removed. Listen to him proclaim that perception is not the perception of physical objects but is the perception of perception and is the perception of nothing. Listen to him proclaim that objects do not create perception but perception creates objects: "Hitherto it has been assumed that all our knowledge must conform to objects. But all attempts to extend our knowledge of objects by establishing something in regard to them apriori, by means of pure concepts, have on this assumption ended in failure. We must therefore see whether we may not have more success in the tasks of metaphysics, if we suppose that objects must conform to our knowledge." (Critique Of Pure Reason by Immanuel Kant). Civilized people know that the story of Kant did not begin with Kant and did not end with Kant, but began before him and has continued up to the present day. The story of Kant is the story of Faust and it commenced in spirit at the distant beginnings of the culture, and commenced formally on the pages of philosophy with Rene Descartes. Listen to Descartes proclaim that the existence of physical objects cannot be known with certainty and the only thing which can be known with certainty is "the prior certainty of consciousness." He proclaims that the only certain statement known to man is the statement "I think, therefore I exist." The story of Kant continued in the philosophy John Locke and David Hume, which proclaim that the sole objects of perception are mental ideas and impressions and reality itself is a "something I know not what." It continued in the philosophy of George Berkeley, which proclaims that "to be is to be perceived" and being has no existence apart from perceivers. It continued in the philosophy of G. W. F. Hegel, which proclaims that reality is an antisystem called absolute realism in which the elements form an Absolute Mind which contains internal contradictions and unites in a special, higher, mystical "dialectical logic" A and nonA. It continued in the philosophy of Friedrich Nietzsche, which proclaims that reality is the will to power and lacks all physical, extramental existence. It continued in the philosophy of pragmatism, which proclaims that reality is anything which advances human needs and interests and has no physical reality outside these needs and interests, and what is real is determined by a process of mass voting and polling. It continued in the philosophy of Edmund Husserl, which proclaims that reality consists in pure mental phenomena, forms and essences, that the task of philosophy is to effect a

"phenomenological reduction" of physical statements into mental statements, and a "bracketing" or rejection of all beliefs that physical objects exist as products of "naturalistic" prejudice and bias. It continued in the philosophy of Martin Heidegger, which proclaims that reality is human reality, "human thereness" or Dasein and lacks all physical, extramental existence. It continued in the philosophy of Ludwig Wittgenstein, which proclaims that reality is a creation of "language games" and lacks all physical, extramental existence, and the task of philosophy is an analysis of these subjective games. It continued in the philosophy of Jacques Derrida, which proclaims that true philosophy is "postmodern" philosophy or postEnlightenment philosophy which affirms that reality is the creation of texts which can be endlessly interpreted or "deconstructed." It continued in the philosophy of the Frankfurt school and its critical theory, which proclaims that true philosophy follows in the footsteps of Karl Marx and is critical of the Enlightenment prejudice that man perceives physical objects, and affirms that reality is a social construct, a creation of tribes, a creation of genders, races and classes, a creation of nonwhites, women, gays, lesbians, transgenders and the proletariat. It is continued in the philosophy of critical race theory, which proclaims that that true philosophy follows in the footsteps of Karl Marx and is critical of the Enlightenment prejudice that man perceives physical objects, and affirms that a progressive society is a black power society in which reality, truth and right are whatever black communist mobs decree they are. Civilized people today, a vanishing minority in the West, inhabit a nightmare. They inhabit an insane asylum, a scene of programmed machines graduated from the schools of Faust and Kant, a jungle flooded with the sights and sounds of schizophrenic breakdown in which people see and hear the products of their own consciousness and are detached from all reality. They were born in this culture, they have their lives and careers in this culture, and they cannot get out.
